TO THE
Most High and Mighty Prince
CHARLS,
King of Great Britain, France, and Ireland.

SIR,
Your Gracious Acceptance of the first Fruit of my Travels, when You were our Hope, as now our Happines, hath actuated both Will and Power to the finishing of this Piece; being limn'd by that un-perfect Light which was snatcht from the hours of the Night and Repose: For the Day was not mine, but dedicated to the Service of your Great Father and Your self; which had it proved as fortunate, as faithfull to me and others more worthy, we had hoped, e're many Years had turned about, to have presented you with a rich and well peopled Kingdom, from whence now,
with myself, I onely bring this Composure,

Inter Vitrices Hederam tibi serpere Laurus.

It needeth more then a single Denization, being a double Stranger sprung from the Stock of the ancient Romans, but bred in the New world, of the rudeness whereof it cannot but participate; especially having Wars & Tumults to bring it to light, in stead of the Muses. But however imperfect, Your Favor is able to supply, and to make it worthy of Life, if You judge it not unworthy of Your Royal Patronage. Long may you live to be,
You are, the Delight and Glory of Your People; and slowly, yet surely, exchange Your mortal Diadem for an immortal. So wishes

Your Majesties most humble Servant,

GEORGE SANDERSON

OVID'S METAMORPHOSIS.

THE FIRST BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

*The World form'd out of Chaos. Man is made.
The Ages change. The Giants Heav'n invade,
Earth turns their Bloud to Men. Jove's Flames con-
Lycaon, now a Wolf. The World is drown'd. (found
Mankind cast Stones restore : All-quickning Earth-
Renews the rest, and gives new Monsters Birth.
Apollo Python kills : heart-wounded, loves
Lust-flying Daphne : She a Laurel proves.
Jove Io made a Cow, to mask foul Deeds.
Hermes a Herdsman, Syrinx chang'd to Reeds.
Dead Argus Eyes adorn the Peacock's Train.
The Cow to Io Jove transforms again.*

OF Bodies chang'd to other shapes I sing.
Assist, you Gods, (from you these Changes spring)
And from the World's first Fabrick to these Deduce my never-discontinued Rhymes. (Times
5 The Sea, the Earth, all-covering Heav'n unfram'd,
One face had Nature, which they Chaos nam'd :
An undigested Lump ; a barren Load,
Where jarring Seeds of things ill-joyn'd abode.
o No Titan yet the World with Light adorns ;
Nor waxing Phæbe fill'd her wained Horns ;

METAMORPHOSIS,

- Nor hung the self-pois'd Earth in thin Air plac'd ;
 Amphirite the vast Shore imbrac'd.
 15 With Earth was Air and Sea : the Earth unstable,
 The Air was dark, the Sea unnavigable :
 No certain form to any one assign'd :
 This That resists. For in one body joyn'd,
 The Cold and Hot, the Dry and Humid fight,
 20 The Soft and Hard, the Heavy with the Light.
 But God, the better Nature, this decides,
 Who Earth from Heav'n, the Sea from Earth divides ;
 And purer Heav'n extracts from grosser Air.
 All which unfolded by his prudent Care
 From that blind Mass, and happily dis-joyn'd,
 25 With strifeless Peace He to their Seats confin'd.
 Forth with up sprung the quick and weightless Fire,
 Whose flames unto the highest Arch aspire.
 The next, in Levity and place, is Air.
 Gross Elements to thicker Earth repair,
 30 Self-clogg'd with weight. The Waters flowing round
 Possess the last, and solid Tellus bound.
 What God soever this Division wrought,
 And every part to due Proportion brought ;
 First, lest the Earth unequal should appear,
 35 He turn'd it round in figure of a Sphear.
 Then Seas diffus'd, commanding them to roar
 With rustling Winds, and give the Land a Shore.
 To those he added Springs, Ponds, Lakes immense ;
 And Rivers, whom their winding Borders fence.
 40 Of these not few Earth's thirsty Jaws devour ;
 The rest their Streams into the Ocean pour ;
 When in that liquid Plain, with freer Wave,
 The foamy Cliffs in stead of Banks they lave.
 Bids Trees increase to Woods, the Plains extend,
 The rocky Mountains rite, and Vales descend.
 45 Two equal Zones, on either side, dispose
 The measur'd Heav'ns ; a fifth, more hot then those.
 As many lines th' included Globe divide.
 Ith' midst unsufferable Beams reside :
 50 Snow cloaths the other two : the Temperate hold
 'Twixt these their Seats, the Heat well mixt with Cold.
 As Earth, as Water upper Air out-weighs ;
 So much doth Air Fire's lighter balance raise.
 There he commands the changing Clouds to stray ;
 55 There thundring terrors mortal minds dismay ;

And,

- And, with the Lightning, Winds ingendring Snow :
 Yet not permitted every way to blow,
 Who hardly now to tear the World refrain,
 60 (So Brothers jarr) though they divided reign.
 To Persis and Sabea Eurus flies,
 Whose Gums perfume the blushing Morn's up-rise.
 Next to the Evening, and the Coast that glows
 With setting Phæbus, flowry Zeph'rus blows.
 65 In Scythia horrid Boreas holds his Reign,
 Beneath Bootes and the frozen Wain.
 The Land to this oppos'd doth Auster steep
 With fruitfull shows, and Clouds which ever weep.
 Above all these he plac'd the liquid Skies;
 Which, void of earthly Dregs, did highest rise.
 Scarce had he all thus orderly dispos'd,
 Whenas the Stars their radiant Heads disclos'd,
 70 (Long hid in Night) and shone through all the Skie.
 Then, that no place should unpossessed lie,
 Bright Constellations and fair-figured Gods
 In Heav'nly Mansions fixt their blest Abodes :
 The glittering Fishes to the Flouds repair,
 75 The Beasts to Farth, the Birds resort to Air.
 The nobler Creature, with a Mind possest,
 Was wanting yet, that should command the rest.
 That Maker, the best World's Original,
 Fith' him fram'd of Seed Celestial :
 80 Or Earth, which late he did from Heav'n divide,
 Some sacred Seeds retain'd to Heav'n ally'd ;
 Which with the living Stream Promethæus mixt,
 And in that artificial Structure fixt
 The form of all th' all-ruling Deities.
 And whereas others see with down-cast Eyes,
 85 He with a lofty Look did Man indue,
 And bade him Heav'n's transcendent Glories view.
 So that rude Clay, which had no Form afore,
 Thus chang'd, of Man the unknown Figure bore.
 The Golden Age was first; which uncompell'd,
 And without Rule, in Faith and Truth excell'd.
 90 As then there was nor Punishment nor Fear ;
 Nor threatening Laws in Brass prescribed were ;
 Nor suppliant crouching Pris'ners shook to see
 Their angry Judge : but all was safe and free.
 To visit other Worlds no wounded Pine
 95 Did yet from Hills to faithless Seas decline.

4 METAMORPHOSIS,

- Then un-ambitious Mortals knew no more,
 But their own Countre's Nature-bounded Shore.
 Nor Swords nor Arms were yet : no Trenches round
 Besieged Towns , nor strifefull Trumpets sound :
 The Souldier of no use. In firm Content
 100 And harmless Ease their happy daies were spent.
 The yet-free Earth did of her own accord
 (Untorn with Plows) all sorts of fruit afford.
 Content with Nature's un-enforced Food,
 They gather Wildings, Straub'ries of the Wood,
 105 Sour Cornels, what upon the Bramble grows,
 And Acorns, which Jove's spreading Oak bestows.
 'Twas alwaies Spring : warm Zephyrus sweetly blew
 On smiling Flowers which without setting grew.
 Forthwith the Earth Corn (unmanured) bears,
 110 And every year renews her golden Ears.
 With Milk and Nectar were the Rivers fill'd,
 And Honey from green Holly-Oaks distill'd.
 But after Saturn was thrown down to Hell,
Jove rul'd ; and then the Silver Age befell :
 115 More base then Gold, and yet then Brasse more pure.
Jove chang'd the Spring (which alwaies did endure)
 To Winter, Summer, Autumn, hot and cold :
 The shortned Springs the Year's fourth part uphold.
 Then first the glowing Air with fervour burn'd ;
 120 The Rain to Ice-icles by bleak Winds turn'd.
 Men Houses built, late hous'd in Caves profound,
 In plashed Bowers and Sheds with Osiers bound.
 Then first was Corn into long Furrows thrown,
 And Oxen under heavy Yoaks did groan.
 125 Next unto this succeeds the Brazen Age ;
 Worse-natur'd, prompt to horrid War and Rage ;
 But yet not wicked. Stubborn Ir'n the last.
 Then blushless Crimes which all degrees surpass
 The World surround Shame, Truth and Faith depart
 130 Fraud enters, ignorant in no bad Art ;
 Force, Treason, and the love of wicked Gain. (strain
 Their Sails those Winds which yet they knew not
 And Ships, which long on lofty Mountains stood,
 Then plow'd th'impractis'd Bosom of the Floud.
 The Ground as common earst as Light or Air,
 135 By Limit-giving Geometry they share.
 Nor with rich Earth's just nourishments content,
 For Treasure they her secret Intralls rent.

- 140 The powerfull Evil which all Power invades,
By her well hid and wrapt in Stygia shades,
Curst Steel, more curst Gold, ~~the~~ now forth brought ;
And bloody-handed Var, who with both fought.
All live by Spoil. The Host his Guest betraies ;
- 145 Sons, Fathers-in-law : 'twixt Brethren Love decaies,
Wives Husbands, Husbands Wives attempt to kill ;
And cruel Step-mothers pale Poisons fill.
The Son his Father's hasty Death desires :
Foil'd Piety, trod under foot, expires.
- 150 Atræa, last of all the Heav'nly Birth,
Affrighted leaves the Bloud-defied Earth.
And that the Heav'n is their safety might suspect,
The Giants now celestial Thrones affect ;
Who to the Skies congested Mountains rear.
Then Jove with Thunder did Olympus tear ;
- 155 Steep Felion from under Ossa thrown.
Prest with their Burthen their huge Bodies groan,
And with her Children's Bloud the Earth imbrou'd :
Which she, scarce throughly cold, with Life indu'd,
And gave thereto, t' uphold her Stock, the Face
- 160 And Form of Man : a God-contemning Race,
Greedy of Slaughter, not to be withstood ;
Such as well shews that they were born of Bloud.
Which when from Heav'n Saturnius did behold,
He sigh'd, revolving what was yet untold
- 165 Of fell Lycaon's late inhumane Feast.
Just Anger, worthy Jove, inflam'd his Breast.
A Synod call'd, the summoned appear.
There is a Way well seen when Skies be clear,
The Milky nam'd ; by this the Gods resort
- 170 Unto th' Almighty Thunderer's high Court.
With ever-open Doors, on either hand,
Of noble Deities the Houses stand :
The Vulgar dwell disperst : the chief and great
In Front of all their shining Mansions seat.
- 175 This glorious Roof I would not doubt to call
(Had I but boldness lent me) Heav'n's White-hall.
All set on Marble Seats, he leaning on
H's Ivo-y Sceptre, in a higher Throne,
Did twice or thrice his dreadfull Tresses shake ;
- 180 (The Earth, the Sea, the Stars (though fixed) quake)
Then thus, inflam'd with indignation, spake :

- I was not more perplext in that sad time
 For this World's Monarchy, when, bold to climb,
 The Serpent-footed Giants durst invade,
 185 And would on Heav'n their hundred Hands have laid.
 Though fierce the Foe, yet did that War depend
 But of one Body, and had soon an end.
 Now all the Race of Man I must confound,
 Where-ever Nereus walks his wavy Round.
 And this I vow by those infernal Flouds
 Which slowly glide through silent Stygian Woods.
 195 All Cures first sought; such Parts as Health reject
 Must be cut off, lest they the sound infect.
 Our Demi-Gods, Nymphs, Sylvans, Satyrs, Fawns,
 Who haunt clear Springs, high Mountaines, Woods and (Since yet on them we please not to bestow (Lawns, 195 Celestial Dwellings) must subsist below.
 Think you, you Gods, they can in safety rest,
 When me (of Lightning and of you possest,
 Who both at our Imperial pleasure sway)
 The stern Lycaon practis'd to betray?
 200 All bluster, and in Rage the Wretch demand.
 So when bold Treason sought with impious hand
 By Cesar's Bloud t' out-race the Roman Name,
 Mankind and all the World's affrighted Frame
 Astonish'd at so great a Ruine, shook:
 Nor thine for thee less thought, Augustus, took,
 205 Then they for Jove. He, when he had suppress
 Their Murmur, thus proceeded to the rest:
 He hath his Punishment; remit that Care.
 The manner how, I will in brief declare.
 210 The Times accus'd, (but as I hop'd bely'd)
 To try, I down from steep Olympus slide.
 A God, transform'd like one of Humane birth,
 I wandred through the many-peopled Earth.
 'I were long to tell what Crimes of every sort
 215 Swarm'd in all parts; the truth exceeds Report.
 Now past den-dreadfull Menalus Confines,
Callene, cold Lycaeus clad wi h Pines,
 There where th' Arcadians dwell, when doubtfull Light
 Drew on the dewy Chariot of the Night,
 I entred his unhospitable Court.
 The better Vulgar to their Pray'rs resort,
 220 When I by Signs had shewn a God's repair.
Lycaon first derides their zealous Pray'r;

Then

- Then said, We straight th' undoubted truth will try,
 Whether he be immortal, or may die.
 In dead of Night, when all was whist and still,
 Me in my Sleep he purposed to kill:
- 225 Nor with so foul an Enterprize content,
 An Hostage murtherers from Molossia sent.
 Part of his sever'd, scarce-dead Limbs he boils;
 Another part on hisling Embers broils.
- 230 This set before me, I the House o' return'd
 With vengefull Flames, which round about him burn'd.
 He, frighted, to the silent Desert flies;
 There howls, and Speech with lost endeavour tries.
 His self-like Jaws still grin: more then for Food
- 235 He slaughters Beasts, and yet delights in Blood.
 His Arms to Thighs, his Cloaths to Bristles chang'd;
 A Wolt; not much from his first form estrang'd.
 So hoary hair'd, his Looks so full of Rape,
 So fiery ey'd, so terrible his Shape.
- 240 One House that Fate, which all deserve, sustains:
 For through the World the fierce Erinnys reigns;
 You'd think they had conspir'd to sin. But all
 Shall swiftly by deserved Vengeance fall.
Jove's words a Part approve, and his Intent
- 245 Exasperate; the rest give their Consent.
 Yet all for Man's Destruction griev'd appear,
 And ask what Form the widowed Earth shall bear;
 Who shall with Odours their cold Altars feast.
 Must Earth be onely by wild Beasts posselt?
- 250 The King of Gods recomforts their Despair,
 And biddeth them impose on him that Care;
 Who promis'd, by a strange original
 Of better People, to supply their Fall.
 And now about to let his Lightning fly,
 He fear'd lest so much Flame should catch the Sky,
- 255 And burn Heav'n's Axle-tree. Besides, by Doom
 Of certain Fate he knew the time should come,
 When Sea, Earth, ravisht Heav'n, the curious Frame
 Of this World's mass, should shrink in purging Flame.
 He therefore those Cyclopean darts rejects,
- 260 And different-natur'd Punishments elects:
 To open all the Flood-gates of the Sky,
 And Man by Inundation to destroy.
 Rough Boreas in Æolian Prison laid,
 And those dry Blasts which gathered Clouds invade,

- Out flies the South, with dropping Wings, who shrouds 265 His terrible Aspect in pitchy Clouds; (Shows,
 His white Hair streams, his Beard big-swoln with Mists bind his Brows, Rain from his Bosom pours.
 As with his Hands the hanging Clouds he crusht,
 They roar'd, and down in Showrs together rusht.
 270 All colour'd Iris, Juno's Messenger,
 To weeping Clouds doth Nourishment confer.
 The Corn is lodg'd, the Husbandmen despair;
 Their long Year's Labour lost with all their Care.
 Jove not content with his Æthereal Rages,
 275 His Brother's auxiliary Flouds engages.
 The Streams convented; 'Tis too late to use
 Much speech, said Neptune; all your Powers effuse,
 Your Doors unbar, remove what're restrains
 280 Your liberal Waves, and give them the full Reins.
 Thus charged, they return, their Springs unfold,
 And to the Sea with headlong fury roll'd.
 He with his Trident strikes the Earth: the shakes,
 And way for Water by her motion makes.
 285 Through open Fields now rush the spreading Flouds,
 And hurry with them Cattel, People, Woods,
 Houses, and Temples with their Gods inclos'd.
 What such a Force (un-overthrown) oppos'd,
 The higher-swelling Water quite devours,
 290 Which hides th' aspiring Tops of swallow'd Towr's.
 Now Land and Sea no different Visage bore;
 For all was Sea, nor had the Sea a Shore.
 One takes a Hill: one in a Boat deplores,
 And where he lately plow'd, now strikes his Oars;
 O're Corn, o're drowned Villages he sails.
 295 This from high Elms intangled Fishes hales.
 In Fields they Anchor cast, as Chance did guide;
 And Ships the under-lying Vineyards hide.
 Where Mountain-loving Goats did lately graze,
 300 The Sea-calf now his ugly Body laies.
 Groves, Cities, Temples, cover'd by the Deep,
 The Nymphs admire: in Woods the Dolphins keep,
 And chase about the Boughs: the Wolf doth swim.
 Amongst the Sheep: the Lion (now not grim)
 305 And Tigres tread the Waves: swift Feet no more
 Avail the Hart, nor wounding Tusks the Boar.
 The wandring Birds, hid Earth long sought in vain,
 With weary Wings descend into the Main.

- Licencious Seas o're drowned Hills now fret,
 310 And unknown Surges airie Mountains beat.
 The Waves the greater part devour ; the rest
 Death with long-wanted Sustenance opprest.
 The Land of Phocis, fruitfull when a Land,
 Divides Aonia from th' Aethian Strand ;
 315 But now a part of the insulting Main,
 Of sudden-swelling Waters a vast Plain.
 There his two Heads Parnassus doth extend
 To touched Stars, whose Tops the Clouds transcend.
 On this Deucalion's little Boat was thrown :
 With him his Wife : the rest all overflown.
 320 Corycian Nymphs and Hill-gods he adores ;
 And Themis, then oraculous, implores.
 None was there better, none more just then he :
 And none more reverenc'd the Gods then she.
 Fere when he saw that all a Lake was grown,
 325 And of so many thousand Men but one,
 One of so many thousand Women, left,
 Both guiltless, pious both, and all bereft,
 The Clouds (now chas'd by Boreas) from him throws,
 And Earth to Heaven, Heaven unto Earth he shews.
 330 Nor Seas persist to rage : their awfull Guide
 The wild Waves calms, his Trident laid aside ;
 And calls blew Triton, riding on the Deep,
 (Who'e Mantle Nature did in purple steep)
 And bids him his loud-sounding shell inspire,
 And give the Flouds a signal to retire.
 335 He his wreath'd Trumpet takes (as given in charge)
 That from the turning bottome grows more large :
 To which when he gives breath, 'tis heard by all,
 From far-uprising Phæbus to his fall.
 When this the watery Deity had set
 340 To his large mouth, and sounded a retreat ;
 All Flouds it heard, that Earth or Ocean knew :
 And all the Flouds, that heard the same, withdrew.
 Seas now have Shores:full Streams their channels keep:
 They sink, and hills above the waters peep.
 345 Earth re-ascends : as Waves decrease, so grow
 The forms of things, and late-hid Figures shew.
 And after a long day, the trees extend
 Their bared tops ; with mud their branches bend.
 The World's restor'd. Which when in such a state,
 So deadly silent, and so desolate,

350 Deucalion saw, with Tears which might have made
Another Flood, he thus to Pyrrha said:

O Sister! O my Wife! the poor remains
Of all thy Sex, which all in one contains!
Whom humane Nature, one Paternal Line,
Then one chaste Bed, and now like Dangers joyn!

355 Of what the Sun beholds from East to West
We two are all: the Sea intombs the rest.
Nor yet can we of life be confident;
The threatning Clouds strange Terrours still present.
O what a heart wouldst thou have had, if Fate
Had ta'n me from thee, and prolong'd thy Date!
So wild a Fear, such Sorrow, so forlorn

360 And comfortless, how couldest thou have born?
If Seas had suck'd thee in, I would have follow'd
My Wife in death, and Seas should me have swallow'd.
O would I could my Father's Cunning use,
And Souls into well-modell'd Clay infuse.

365 Now all our mortal Race we two contain,
And but a Pattern of Mankind remain.

This said, both wept; both Pray'rs to Heav'n ad-
And seek the Oracle in their Distress. (dress,
Forthwith descending to Cepheus Flood,

370 Which in known Banks now ran, though thick with
They on their Heads and Garments water throw, (Mud,
And to the Temple of the Goddess go,
At that time all desit'd with Moss and Mire;
The unfrequented Altar without Fire.

375 Then humbly on their Faces prostrate lay'd,
And kissing the cold Stones, with fear thus pray'd:
If Powers Divine to just Desires consent,
And angry Gods do in the end relent,

Say, Themis, how shall we our Race repair?
O, help the drown'd in Water and Despair.

380 The Goddess, with Compassion mov'd, reply'd,
Go from my Temple; both your Faces hide;
Let Garments all unbraced loosely flow;
And your great Parent's Bones behind you throw.
Amaz'd, first Pyrrha Silence breaks, and said,

385 By me the Goddess must not be obey'd;
And, trembling, Pardon craves: her Mother's Ghost
She fears would suffer, if her Bones were tost.
Meanwhile they ponder and re-iterate
The words proceeding from ambiguous Fate.

Then

- 390 Then Promethides Epimethida
 Thus recollecteth, lost in her Dismay :
 Or I the Oracle misunderstand,
 Or the just Gods no wicked thing command.
 The Earth is our great Mother ; and the Stones
 Therein contain'd I take to be her Bones.
 These, sure, are those we should behind us throw.
- 395 Although Titania thought it might be so,
 Yet she misdoubts. Both with weak Faith rely
 On aiding Heav'n. What hurt was it to try ?
 Departing with Heads veil'd and Cloaths unbrac't,
 Commanded Stones they o're their Shoulders cast.
- 400 Did not Antiquity avouch the same,
 Who would believ't ? the Stones less hard became :
 And as their natural Hardness them forlook,
 So by degrees they Man's Dimensions took,
- 405 And gentler-natur'd grew, as they increast ;
 And yet not manifestly Man exprest :
 But like rough-hewn, rude marble-Statues stand,
 That want the Work-man's last Life-giving hand.
 The Earthy parts, and what had any Juice,
 Were both converted to the Body's use :
 Th' unflexible and solid turn to Bones :
- 410 The Veins remain that were when they were Stones.
 Those thrown by Man the form of Men indue :
 And those were Women which the Woman threw.
 Hence we a hardy Race, inur'd to pain :
- 415 Our Actions our Original explain.
 All other Creatures took their numerous Birth
 And Figures from the voluntary Earth.
 When that old Humour with the Sun did sweat,
 And slimy Marishes grew big with Heat ;
- 420 The pregnant Seeds, as from their Mother's Wombe,
 From quickning Earth both Growth and form assume.
 So when seven-chanell'd Nile forsakes the Plain,
 When ancient Bounds retiring Streams contain,
- 425 And late-left Slime ætherial Fervours burn,
 Men various Creatures with the Glebe up turn.
 Of those, some in their very time of Birth ;
 Some lame ; and others half alive, half earth.
- 430 For Heat and Moisture, when they temperate grow,
 Forthwith conceive, and Life on things bestow.
 From striving Fire and Water all proceed :
 Discording Concord's ever apt to breed.

- 435 So Earth, by that late Deluge muddy grown,
 When on her Lap reflecting Titan shone,
 Produc'd a world of Forms; restor'd the late,
 And other unknown Monsters did create.
 Huge Python, thee against her will she bred;
 A Serpent whom the new-born people dread;
 440 Whose Bulk did like a moving Mountain show.
 Behold, the God that bears the Silver Bow
 (Till then inur'd to strike the flying Deer,
 Or the swift Roe, who every shadow fear)
 That Terror with a thousand Arrows slew,
 And through black Wounds the clouted Poyson drew.
 445 Then left the well-deserv'd memory
 Of such a Praise in future times should die,
 He instituteth celebrated Games
 Of free contention, which he Pythia names.
 Who ran, who wrestled best, or rak'd the ground
 With swiftest Wheels, the Oaken Garland crown'd.
 450 The Laurel was not yet: all sorts of Boughs
Phæbus then bound about his radiant Brows.
Peneian Daphne was his first belov'd.
 Not Chance, but Cupid's Wrath, that fury mov'd.
 Whom Delius (proud of his late Conquest) saw,
 As he his pliant Bow began to draw;
 455 And said, lascivious Boy, how ill agree
 Thou and these Arms, too manly far for thee!
 Such suit our Shoulders, whose strong Arm confounds
 Both Man and Beast with never-missing Wounds;
 460 That Python bristled with thick Arrows quell'd,
 Who o're so many poys'n'd Acres swell'd.
 Be thou content to kindle with thy Flame
 Desires we know not; nor our praises claim.
 Then Venus Son; Self-praised ever be:
 All may thy Bow trans-fix, as mine shall thee.
 465 So far as Gods exceed all earthly Pow'r's,
 So much thy glory is excell'd by ours.
 With that he breaks the Air with nimble Wings,
 And to Parnassus shady Summer Springs:
 Two different Arrows from his Quiver draws,
 One Hate of Love, the other Love doth cause.
 470 What caus'd was sharp, and had a golden Head:
 But what repuls'd was blunt, and tipt with Lead.
 The God this in Peneia fixt: that struck
Apollo's Bones, and in his Marrow stuck.

- Forthwith he loves; a Lover's name she flies :
 And, emulating un-wed Phæbe, joys
 475 In Spoils of savage-Beasts and Sylvan Lares ;
 A fillet binding her neglected Hairs.
 Her many sought : but she, averse to all,
 Unknown to Man, not brooking such a Thrall,
 Frequents the pathless Woods ; and hates to prove,
 480 Nor cares to hear, what Hymen is, or Love.
 Oft said her Father, Daughter, thou dost owe
 A Son-in-law who Nephews may bestow.
 But she, who Marriage as a Crime eschew'd,
 (Her Face with blushing Shamefacedness imbued)
 485 Hung on his Neck with fawning Arms, and said,
 Dear Father, give me leave to live a Maid :
 This Boon Diana's Sire did her afford.
 He, too indulgent, gave thee his Accord :
 But thee thy Excellency countermands ;
 And thy own Beauty thy Desire withstands.
 490 Apollo loves, and fain would Daphne wed.
 What he desires, he hopes ; and is misled
 By his own Oracles. As Stubbles burn,
 As Hedges into sudden blazes turn,
 Fire set too near, or left by chance behind
 495 By Passengers, and scatter'd with the wind :
 So springs he into Flames : a Fire doth move
 Through all his Veins ; Hope feeds his barren Love.
 He on her Shoulders sees her Hair untrest.
 O what, said he, if these were neatly drest !
 He sees her Eyes, two Stars, her Lips which kiss
 Their happy selves, and longs to taste their Bliss :
 500 Admires her Fingers, Hands, her Arms half-bare ;
 And Parts unseen conceives to be more rare.
 Swifter then following Wind is away she runs,
 And him, for all this his Intreaty shuns.
 Stay, Nymph, I pray thee stay : I am no Foe.
 505 So Lambs from Wolves, Harts fly from Lions so ;
 So from the Eagle springs the trembling Dove :
 They from their Deaths ; but my pursuit is Love.
 Wo's me, if thou shouldst fall, or Thorns should race
 Thy tender Legs, whilst I inforce the Chace !
 510 These Roughs are craggy : moderate thy Haste ;
 And, trust me, I will not pursue so fast.
 Yet know who 'tis you please : no Mountaineer,
 No home-bred Clown, nor keep I Cattel here.

- From whom thou fly'st thou know'st not, (lilly Fool!)
- 515 And therefore fly'st thou. I in Delphos rule;
Ionian Claros, Lycian Patara,
 And Sea-girt Tenedos do me obey.
Jove is my Father. What shall be, hath been,
 Or is, by my instructive Rays is seen.
 Immortal Verse from our Invention springs,
 And how to strike the well-concording Strings.
 My Shafts hit sure: yet he one surer found
- 520 Who in my empty Bosom made this Wound.
 Of Herbs I found the Virue; and through all
 The World they me the great Physician call.
 Ay me, that Herbs can Love no Cure afford!
 That Arts, relieving all, should fail their Lord!
- 525 More had he said, when she, nimble with Dread,
 From him and his unfinished Courtship fled.
 How gracefull then! the Wind, that obvious blew,
 Too much betray'd her to his amorous View,
 And play'd the Wanton with her fluent Hair.
- 530 Her Beauty by her Flight appear'd more rare.
 No more the God will his Intreaties lose,
 But, urg'd by Love, with all his force pursues.
 As when a Hare the speedy Grey-hound spies,
 His Feet for Prey, she hers for Safety plies;
- 535 Now bears he up, now, now he hopes to fetch her,
 And with his Snout extended strains to catch her:
 Not knowing whether caught or no, she slips
 Out of his wide-stretch'd Jaws and touching Lips.
 The God and Virgin in such Strife appear;
 He quickned by his Hope, she by her Fear.
- 540 But the Pursuer doth more nimble prove,
 Enabled by th' industrious Wings of Love.
 Nor gives he time to breathe: now at her Heels,
 His Breath upon her dangling Hair she feels.
 Clean spent and fainting, her affrighted Bloud
 Forsakes her Cheeks. She cries unto the Floud,
- 545 Help, Father, if your Streams contain a Power.
 May Earth, for too well pleasing, me devour:
 Or, by transforming, O destroy this Shape,
 That thus betrays me to undoing Rape.
 Forthwith a Numness all her Lims possesseth,
 And slender Films her softer Sides invest,
- 550 Hair into Leaves, her Arms to Branches grow:
 Her late swift Feet, now Roots, are less then slow.

Her gracefull Head a leafy Top sustains.

One Beauty throughout all her Form remains.

Still Phœbus loves. He handles the new Plant,

And feels her Heart within the Bark to pant ;

555 Imbrac'd the Tree, as he would her have done,

And kist the Boughs : the Boughs his Kisses shun.

To whom the God, Although thou canst not be

The Wife I wish'd ; yet shalt thou be my Tree.

Our Quiver, Harp, our Tresses never shorn,

My Laurel, thou shalt evermore adorn ;

560 And Brows triumphant, when they lo sing,

And to the Capitol their Trophies bring.

Thou shalt defend from Thunder's blasting stroke

Augustus Doors, on either side the Oak.

And as our un-cut Hair no Change receives ;

565 So ever flourish with unfading Leaves.

Here Pæan ends. The Laurel all allows :

In sign whereof her gratefull Head she bows.

A pleasant Grove within Æmonia grows,

Call'd Tempe, which high ragged Cliffs inclose.

570 Through this Peneus, pour'd from Pindus, raves,

And from the bottom rowls with foaming Waves,

That by steep Down-falls, tumbling from on high,

Ingen'er Mists, which Smoak-like upward fly ;

That on the dewy tops of Trees distill,

And more then neighbouring Woods with Noises fill.

Here, in a Cave, his Court and residence

575 The great Floud keeps, here Justice doth dispense

To Streams, and gentle Nymphs that Streams frequent.

The Flouds that native were with one consent

First thither came, as yet at self-Debate,

Whether to comfort or congratulate.

580 Cool Sperchius, slow Amphrysus, Apidan,

Swift Æas, Enipeus that troubled ran.

Then forthwith those who (as their Sources bend)

To Seas their Waves (with Wandring weary) send.

All but old Inachus ; who in his Cave's

Obscure Recess with Tears augments his Waves ;

585 For lo mourns as lost ; nor yet knows he

Whether above or under Earth she be :

But she, whom he not any-where could find,

He thinks is no-where : Fear distracts his Mind.

As from her Father's Streams the Nymph return'd,

Saturnius, seeing her, in Passion burn'd.

- O Virgin worthy Jove, whose Bed must bless
 590 What God I know not, though a man no less;
 Here in these Woods, said he, or these repose,
 Whilst thus the World with fainting Fervour glows.
 Nor fear among the Savages to venture :
- 595 A God protecting, thou maist safely enter.
 Nor one of vulgar Rank ; but he that bears
 Heav'n's Scepter, and the Clouds with Thunder tears.
 O! fly not. (For she fled.) The pastures past
 Of Lerna, and Lycæa's gloomy Wast,
 He in the Air a sable Cloud display'd,
- 600 Caught, and devirginates the struggling Mai. l.
 Meanwhile with wonder Juno doth survey
 Those dusky Clouds that made a Night of Day :
 And finding that they neither took their birth
 From vap'rous Streams, nor from the humid Earth,
- 605 For her mist Husband searcherh Heav'n, as one
 To whom his Stealths so often had been known.
 Whom when she could not find, Deceiv'd am I,
 Or wrong'd, she said. Down from th' enamell'd Sky
 She slides to Earth. The foggy Clouds withd-aw
- 610 At her command. Her coming Jove foresaw,
 And changes Inachis into a Cow ;
 Whose Form even Juno pleas'd, demanding how
 She thither came, whose was she, of what Herd ;
 As ignorant of what she more then fear'd.
- 615 Jove feigns (her Importunity to shift)
 Her born of Earth. Saturnia begs the Gift.
 What should he doe? be cruel to his Love?
 Or, by denying her, Suspicion move?
 Shame that persuades, and Love doth this dissuade.
 But stronger Love Shame under foot hath laid.
- 620 Yet doubts, if he should such a thing deny
 His Wife and Sister, 'twould the Fraud descry.
 O'train'd, not forthwith Fear the Godless leste
 Distrusting Jove, and jealous of his Theft,
 Untill delivered to Argus guard.
- 625 An hundred Eyes his Head's large circuit starr'd;
 Whereof, by turns, at once two onely slept ;
 The other watch'd, and still their stations kept.
 Which way so-e're he stands, he so spies ;
 So, behind him, was before his Eyes.
- 630 By day she graz'd abroad : Sol under ground,
 He hous'd her, in unworthy Halter bound.

- On Leaves of Trees and bitter Herbs she fed ;
 (Poor soul !) the Earth, not alwaies green, her Bed ;
 And of the Torrent drinks. With Hands up-heav'd .
- 635 She thought to beg for Pity : how deceiv'd !
 She low'd, when she began to make her Moan ;
 And trembled at the Voice which was her own.
 Unto the Banks of Inachus she stray'd ;
 Her Father's Banks where she so oft had play'd.
- 640 Beholding in his Stréam her horned Head,
 She starts, and from her self, self-frighted, fled.
 Her Sisters nor old Inachus her knew.
 Which way so-e're they went, she would pursue,
 And suffer them to stroke her ; and doth move
 Their wonder with her strange expressed Love.
- 645 He brought her Grass : she gently lick'd his Hands,
 And kist his Palms ; nor longer tears withstands.
 And had she then had Words, she had display'd
 Her Name, her Fortunes, and implor'd his Aid.
 For Words, she Letters with her foot imprest
- 650 Upon the Sand, which her sad Change profest.
 Wo's me, cry'd Inachus, (his Arms and throws
 About her snowy Neck) O wo of woes !
 Art thou my Daughter, throughout all the Round
 Of Earth so sought, that now, not found, art found ?
- 655 Less was thy Loss, less was my Misery :
 Dumb-wretch, (alas !) thou canst not make reply.
 Yet, as thou canst, thou dost : thy Lowings speak,
 And deep-fetch'd Sighs that from thy Bosom break.
 I, ignorant, prepar'd thy Marriage-bed :
 My hopes a Son-in-law and Nephews fed.
- 660 Now from the Herd thy Issue must descend-
 Nor can the length of time my Sorrows end,
 Accurst, in that a God. Death's sweet relief
 Hard Fates deny to my immortal Grief.
- This said, his Daughter (in that shape below'd)
 The Star-ey'd Argus far from thence remov'd ;
- 665 When, mounted on a Hill, the wary Spy
 Surveys the Plains that round about him lie.
 The King of Gods those Sorrows she endur'd
 Could brook no longer, by his fault procur'd ;
 But calls his Son, of fulgent Pleias bred,
- 670 Commanding him to cut off Argus Head.
 He wings his Heels, puts on his Felt, and takes
 His drousie-Rod, the Tow'r of Jove forsakes,

And,

And, winding, stoops to Earth. The changed God
 675 His Hat and Wings lays by, retains his Rod,
 With which he drives his Goats, (like one that feeds
 The bearded Herd) and sings t^o his slender Reeds.

Much taken with that Art, before unknown,
 Come, sit by me, said Argus, on this Stone :
 680 No place affordeth better Pasturage,
 Or Shelter for the Sun's offensive rage.
 Pleas'd Atlantides doth him obey,
 And with discourse protracts the speedy Day :
 Then, singing to his Pipe's soft Melody,
 Endeavours to subdue each wakefull Eye.

685 The Herds-man strives to conquer urgent Sleep :
 Though seiz'd on half, the other half do keep Observant Watch. He asks who did invent
 (With that he yawn'd) that late-found Instrument.

Then thus the God his charmed Ears inclines :
 690 Amongst the HamaDryade Nonacrinæ
 (On cold Arcadian Hills) for Beauty fam'd
 A Naiad dwelt, (the Nymphs her Syrinx nam'd)
 Who oft deceiv'd the Satyrs that pursu'd,
 The rural Gods, and those whom Woods include ;
 In Exercises and in chaste Desire

695 Diana-like, and such in her Attire.
 You either in each other might behold ;
 Save that her Bow was Holm, Diana's Gold :
 Yet oft mistook. Pan crown'd with Pines, returning
 From steep Lycæus, saw her, and, Love-burning,
 700 Thus said, Fair Virgin, grant a God's Request,
 And be his Wife. He ceas't to tell the rest.
 She from his Prayers fled, as from her Shame,
 Till to smooth Ladon's sandy Banks she came :
 There stopt ; implores the liquid Sisters Aid,

705 To change her Shape, and pity a forc'd Maid.
Pan, when he thought he had his Syrinx claspt
 Between his Arms, Reeds for her Body graspt.
 He sighs : they, stirr'd therewith, report again
 A mournfull Sound, like one that did complain.

710 Rapt with the Musick, Yet, O sweet, (said he)
 Together ever thus converse will we.
 Then of unequal wax-joyn'd Reeds he fram'd
 This seven-fold Pipe : of her 'twas Syrinx nam'd.

Thus much about t^have said, Cyllenius spies
 715 How leaden Sleep had seal'd up all his Eyes.

Then,

- Then, silent, with his Magick rod he strokes
 Their languisht Lights, which sounder Sleep provokes ;
 And with his Faulchion lops his nodding Head :
 720 Whose Bloud besmear'd the hoary Rock with red.
 There lies he, of so many Lights the Light
 Put forth ; his hundred Eyes set in one Night.
 Yet that those starry Jewels might remain,
Saturnia fixt them in her Peacock's Train.
 725 Inflam'd with Anger and impatient Hast,
 Before sad Iu's eyes and thoughts the plac'd
Erinnys Snakes ; and through the World doth drive
 The Conscience-stung, affrighted Fugitive.
 Thou, Nile, to her long Toil an end didst yield.
 730 Approaching thee, she on thy Margent kneel'd ;
 Her Looks (such as she had) to Heav'n up throws.
 With Tears, Sighs, Sounds (expressing wordless Woes)
 She seem'd Jove to accuse, as too ingrate,
 And to implore an end of her hard Fate.
 735 He clips his Wife, and her intreats to free
 Th' unjustly plagu'd. Be confident (said he)
 She never more shall cause thy Grief or Fear.
 His Vow he bids the Stygian Waters hear.
 Appeas'd, the Nymph recover'd her first Look,
 740 So fair, so sweet : the Hair her Skin forsook ;
 Her Horns decrease ; large Eyes, wide Jaws contract ;
 Shoulders and Hands become again exact ;
 Her Hoofs to Nails diminish : nothing now,
 But that pure White, retains she of the Cow.
 745 Then on her Feet her body she erects,
 Now born by two. Her self she yet suspects,
 Nor dares to speak aloud, lest she should hear
 Her self to low, but softly tries with Fear.
 Now she, a Goddess, is ador'd by those
 That shine in linen Stoles where Nilus flows.
 Hence sprung Jove's Epaphus, no less divine ;
 750 Whose Temples next unto his Mother's join.
 Equal in Years (nor equal Spirit wants)
 The Sun-got Phaeton ; who proudly vaunts
 Of his high Parenage, nor will give place.
Inachides puts on him this Disgrace :
 Fool, you your Mother trust in things unknown,
 755 And of a Father boast that's not your own.
 Vext Phaeton blusht : his Shame his Rage repells :
 Who straight to Clymene the Slander tells ;

And,

- And, Mother, said he, (to your grief's increase)
 760 I, free, (and he so lofty) held my peace ;
 Alham'd that such a tainture should be lay'd
 Upon my bloud, that could not be gainsaid.
 But if I be descended from above,
 Give proof thereof, and this Reproach remove.
 He hangs about her Neck ; by her own Head,
 By Merops, by his Sister's Nuptial Bed,
 765 Intreats her to produce some certain Gage,
 That might assure his question'd Parentage.
 Mov'd with her Son's Intreaty, more inflam'd
 With indignation to be so defam'd,
 She casts her Arms to Heaven ; and looking on
 Sol's radiant Orb, thus said : I swear, my Son,
 By yon fair Taper that so bright appears
 770 With far-projected Beams, who sees and hears ;
 That Sun whom thou behold'st, who Light and Heat
 Affords th' informed World, did thee beget.
 If not, may he to me deny his Sight ;
 And to my Eyes let this be his last Light.
 775 Nor far removed doth his Palace stand ;
 His first Uprise confines up on our Land :
 If that thy heart do serve thee, thither goe,
 And there thy Father of thy Father know.
 Hereat joy'd Phaeton enlightned grew,
 Whose tow'ring thoughts no less then Heav'n pursue.
 His Æthiopia past, and Inde which fries
 780 With burning Beams, he climbs the Sun's Uprise.

OVID'S METAMORPHOSIS.

THE SECOND BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

*Rash Phaeton fires the World. His Sisters mourn
His Tragedy; who into Poplars turn;
Their Tears to Amber; Cygnus to a Swan.
Jove Phœbe like, Calisto found a man:
Her, Juno made a Bear: She, and her Son,
Advanced Stars, that fill the Ocean shun.
Coronis, now a Crow, flies Neptune's fright.
Nyctimene is made the Bird of Night.
The too-officious Raven, late so fair,
Is plum'd with black. Ocyroë grows a Mare.
Phœbus a Herdsman: Mercury, twice such;
Who turns betraying Battus into Touch.
Envious Aglauros, to a Statue, full
Of her mind's spots. Love Jove converts i' a Bull.*

SOL's lofty Palace on high Pillars rais'd
Shone all with gold, & stones that flame-like blaz'd;
The Roof of Ivory, divinely deckt;
The two-leav'd silver doors bright raies project.
The Workmanship more admiration crav'd:
For curious Mulciber had there engrav'd
The Land-imbracing Sea, the orb'd Ground,
The arch'd Heavens. Blew Gods the billows crown'd;
Shape.

- Shape-changing Proteus, Triton shrill, the tall
 10 Big-brawn'd Ægeon mounted on a Whale,
Gray Doris, and her Daughters, heavenly-fair:
 Some sit on Rocks, and dry their Sea-green Hair;
 Some seem upon the dancing Waves to glide;
 Others on backs of crooked Filthes ride.
 Amongst them all no two appear the same,
 Nor differ more then Sisters well became.
- 15 The Earth had salvage Beasts, Men, Cities, Woods,
 Nymphs, Satyrs, rural Gods, and crystal Flouds.
 Above all these Heav'n's radiant Image shines,
 On both sides deck'd with six refulgent Signs.
 To this bold Phaeton made his Ascent,
 20 And to his doubted Father's presence bent;
 Yet forc'd to stand aloof: for mortal sight
 Could not endure t'approach so pure a Light.
Sol, cloath'd in purple, sits upon a Throne
 Which clearly with tralucent Em ralds shone.
- 25 With equal-reigning Hours on either hand,
 The Daies, the Months, the Years, the Ages stand:
 The fragrant Spring with flowry Chaplets crown'd:
 Wheat-eas the brows of naked Summer bound:
 Rich Autumn smear'd with crusht Lyens Bloud:
 Next hoary headed Winter quivering stood.
- 30 Much daunted at these sacred Novelties,
 The fearfull Youth all-seeing Phæbus spies;
 Who said, What hither drew thee, Phaeton,
 Who art, and worthily, my dearest Son?
 He thus reply'd, O thou refulgent Light,
 Who all the World rejoycest with thy sight,
- 35 O Father, (if allow'd to use that name,
 Nor Clymene by thee disguise her Shame,)
 Produce some Sign that may my Birth approve,
 And from my thoughts these wretched Doubts remove.
 He from his Brows his shining Raies displac'd,
 40 And, bidding him draw near, his Neck imbrac'd.
 By Merit, as by Birth, to thee is due
 That name, said he, and Clymene was true.
 To clear all Doubts, ask what thou wilt, and take Thy granted With. Bear witness, thou dark Lake,
 The Oath of Gods, unto our eyes unknown.
- 45 These words no sooner from his Lips were flown,
 But he demands his Chariot, and the sway
 Of his hot Steeds, to guide the winged Day.

The God repents him of the Oath he made,
And, shaking his illustrious Tresses, said,
Thy Tongue hath made mine erre, thy Birth unblest.
O, would I could break promise. This Request,
I must confesse, I onely would deny.
And yet, dissuade I may. Thy Death doth lie
Within thy with. What's so desir'd by thee
Can neither with thy Strength nor Youth agree.
Too great Intentions set thy thoughts on fire.
Thou, mortal, dost no mortal thing desire;
Through Ignorance affecting more then they
Dare undertake who in Olympus sway.
Though each himself approve; except me, none
Is able to supply my burning Throne.
Not that dread Thunderer who rules above
Can drive these Wheels: and who more great then
Steep is the first Ascent, which in the prime (Jove?)
Of springing Day fresh Horses hardly climbe.
At Noon through highest Skies their course they bear,
Whence Sea and Land even we behold with fear.
Then down the Hill of Heav'n they scour amain
With desperate Speed, and need a steady Rein;
That Tethys, in whose wavy Bowers I lie,
Each Evening dreads my downfall from the Skie.
Besides, the Heav'ns are daily hurried round,
That turn the Stars to other Motions bound.
Against this Violence my way I force,
And counter-run their all-o're-bearing Course.
My Chariot had, can thy frail Strength ascend
The obvious Poles, and with their force contend?
No Groves, no Cities fraught with Gods, expect;
No marble Fanes with wealthy Offerings deckt.
Through salvage Shapes and Dangers lies the way:
Which couldst thou keep, and by no error stray;
Between the Bull's sharp Horns yet must thou go,
By him that draws the strong Aemonian Bow,
The deathfull Scorpion's far out-bending Claws,
The shorter Crab's, the roaring Lion's jaws.
Nor easie is't those fiery Steeds to tame,
Who from their mouths and nostrills vomit Flame.
They, heated, hardly of my Rule admit;
But, head-strong, struggle with the hated Bit.
Then, lest my Bounty, which would save, should kill,
Beware, and, whilst thou maist, reform thy Will.

- 90 A Sign thou crav'st, that might confirm thee mine :
 I by dehorting give a certain Sign ;
 Approv'd a Father by Paternal fear.
 Look on my Looks, and reade my Sorrows there.
 O, would thou couldst descend into my breast,
 And apprehend my vexed Soul's unrest.
- 95 And, lastly, all the wealthy World behold :
 Of all that Heav'ns enrich, rich Seas unfold,
 Or on the pregnant-bosom'd Earth remain,
 Ask what thou wilt, and no Repulse sustain.
 To this alone I give a forc'd Consent ;
 No Honour, but a true-nam'd Punishment.
 Thou for a Blessing begg'st the worst of Harms.
- 100 Why hang'st thou on my Neck with fawning Arms ?
 Distrust nor, we have sworn ; but ask, and take
 What thou canst wish : yet wiser Wishes make.
 In vain dehorted, he his Promise claim'd,
- 105 With Glory of so great a Charge inflam'd.
 The wilfull Youth then lingring Phæbus brought
 To his bright Chariot by Vulcan wrought :
 The Beam and Axletree of massie Gold ;
 On Silver Spokes the golden Fillies rowl'd ;
 Rich Gems and Chrysolites the Harness deckt,
- 110 Which Phæbus Beams with equall light reflect.
 Whilst this admiring Phaeton surveys,
 The wakefull Morning from the East displaies
 Her purple Doors, and odoriferous Bed
- 115 With plenty of dew-dropping Roses spred.
 Clear Lucifer the flying Stars doth chase,
 And, after all the rest, resigns his place.
 When Titan saw the Dawning ruddy grew,
 And how the Moon her silver Horns withdrew,
 He bad the light-foot Hours without delay
 To joyn his Steeds. The Goddesses obey,
- 120 Who from their lofty Mangers forthwith led
 His fiery Horses, with Ambrosia fed.
 With sacred Oil anointed by his Sire,
 Of virtue to repulse the rage of Fire,
 He crowns him with his Rays ; then thus began
 With doubled Sighs which following Woes fore-ran :
- 125 Let not thy Father still advise in vain.
 Son, spare the Whip, and strongly use the Rein,
 They of their own accord will run too fast :
 'Tis hard to moderate their flying Haft.

Nor drive along the five direct Lines.
 30 A broad and beaten path obliquely winds,
 Contented with three Zones, which doth avoid
 The distant Pole; the Track thy Wheels will guide.
 35 Descend thou not too low, nor mount too high,
 That temperate Warmth may cleave wind and Earth supply,
 A lofty course will Heav'n with Fire infect;
 A lowly, Earth: the latter Mean is best.
 Nor to the folded Snake thy Chariot guide,
 Nor to the Asp on the other side.
 40 Between these drive. The rest I leave to Fate;
 Who better proves, than thou, to thy own State;
 But while I speak, behold, the humid Night
 Beyond th' Hesperian Vales hath usher'd light.
Suns I Splendour re-enthrones the Day.
 We are expected, nor can longer stay.
 45 Take up the Reins, or, while thou maist, refuse;
 And not my Chariot, but my Counsel use,
 While on a firm foundation thou dost stand,
 Not yet posses'd of thy ill-wish'd Command.
 Let me the World with usual Influence cheer:
 And view that Light which is unsafe to bear.
 50 The generous and gallant Phaeton,
 All Courage, vaults into the blazing Throne,
 Glad of the Reins, nor doubtfull of his Skill,
 And gives his Father thanks against his will.
 Meanwhile the Sun's swift Horse, hot Pyram,
 Light Aethon, fiery Phlegon, bright Eos,
 55 Neighing aloud, inflame the Air with Heat,
 And with their thundring Hoofs the Barriers beat.
 Which when hospitious Tithys once withdrew,
 (Who nothing of her Nephew's Danger knew)
 And gave them scope, they mount the ample Sky,
 And cut the obvious Clouds with Feet that fly:
 Who, rais'd with plumed Pinions, leave behind
 60 The glowing East and slower Eastern Wind,
 But Phaeton Horses could not feel that freight:
 The Chariot wanted the accus'tom'd Weight.
 And as unballast Ships are rockt and tost
 With tumbling Waves, and in their sterage lost:
 So through the Air the lighter Chariot reels,
 65 And jould, as empty, upon jumping Wheels.
 Which when they found, the beaten path they shun,
 And (straggling) out of all subjection run.

MEGALOMANIA

He knows not how to turn, nor knows the way :
 170 Or had he known, yet would not they obey.
 The Chariot now hot, Throned in vain
 Together their track in the Forbidden Main.
 The Ships now rest upon the Green Pole,
 Downward still barrelless, now begin to roll
 With actual fleet, and long forgotten Ire
 175 Assumes together with etherial Fire.
 'Tis said that Phaon, Bores, ran't away,
 Though slow, though thou thy heavy Wain did stay.
 But when from top of all the arched Sky
 Unhappy Phaon the Earth did eye,
 180 So pale sudden Fear he sees his quaking Thighs,
 And in so great a light he lights his Eyes.
 He wish those Steeds unknown, unknown his Birth,
 His Suit ungranted : now he covets Earth :
 Now scorns not to be held of Merop's Blond,
 185 Rapt as a Ship upon the high-wrought Floud,
 By salvage Tempests chas'd which in despair
 The Pilot leaveth to the Gods, and Pray's
 What should he do : much of the Heav'n behind,
 Much more before : both measur'd in his Mind.
 190 The never-to-be entred West surveys,
 And then the East : lost in his own Amaze
 And Ignorance, he cannot hold the Reins,
 Nor let them go : nor knows his Horses names :
 But stares on Terror-striking Skies (possess'd
 By Beasts and Monsters) with a panning Breast.
 195 There is a place in which the Scorpion bends
 His compass claws, who through two signs extends :
 Whom when the Youth beheld, stew'd in black Sweat
 Of Poison, and with turn'd up Tail to threat
 A mortal wound : pale feels his Senses stook,
 200 And slack'd reins let fall from hands that shook.
 They, when they felt them on their backs to lie,
 With un-controul'd Error scour the Sky,
 Through unknown airy Regions, and tread
 The way which their disordered Fury led,
 Up to the fixed Stars their course they take :
 205 And stranger Spheres with smoking Chariot take :
 Now climb, now step down delight
 And nearer Earth their wandering race extend
 To see her Brother's Steed beneath her own
 The Moon admire : the Clouds like Comets throng.
 210

Invading Fire the upper Earth assails
 All chopt and con'd, her pregnant Juice exhal'd
 Trees feed, that Ruine in Quale gray-headed turn'd
 And Corn by that which did produce it burn'd
 But this was nothing: Clides with these Low
 Realms with their People funeral Fire devours
 The Mountains blaze: high Ashes, but too high:
 Fount-fruifull Ida, never till then dry
 Oete, old Tmolus, and Cilician Taurus
 Muse-haunted Helicon, Oecrian Taurus
 Loud Erato roareth with her doubled Pipes
 Pernassus groans beneath two flaming Spices
 Steep Othrys, Cymbus, Eryx, Mela, Ploos
 And Rhodope, no longer cloath'd with snow
 The Phrygian Dindymus in Cinders mourns:
 Cold Caucasus in frosty Scythia burns
 High Mycale, divine Citharon, wait
 Pindus, and Ossa once on Pelion cast
 More great Olympus, (which before did shine)
 The airy Alps, and cloudy Apennine
 Then Phaeton beheld on every side
 The World on fire, nor could such Heat abide:
 And at his deadly-dry and gasping jaws
 The scalding Air, as from a Furnace, draws:
 His Chariot redder then the Fire it bore
 And, being mortal, could endure no more
 Such clouds of Ashes, and ejected Coals,
 Muffled in Smoak which round about him rolls
 He knows not where he is, nor what succeeds;
 Dragg'd at the pleasure of his frantick Steeds:
 Men say the Ethiopians then grew swart,
 Their blood exhaled to the outward part.
 A sandy Desert Libya then became,
 Her full Veins emptied by the thirsty flame.
 With Hair unbound and torn the Nymphs, distraight,
 Bewail their Springs. Boeotia Dirce sought
 Argos Amimone, Ephyrus the fair
 Pirene mist. Nor Streams lecherer are.
 Great Tanais in boiling Channel fumes
 Tauric Caucasus, and Caucasus
 Yellow Lyons to be twice burnt Xanthus
 Meander, winding in a turning Maze,
 Hellespont, and Euratus blaze.

- Euphrates, late investing Babylon,
 Orontes, Phasis, Iliss, Thermadon,
 255 Ganges, Atphen, Sperchius Flames in fold :
 And Tagus floweth with dissolved Gold.
 The Swans that ravish'd with their melody
 Maonian Banks, now in Cayster fry.
 To farthest Earth affrighted Nilus fled,
 265 And there conceal'd his yet unsound-out Head ;
 Whilst his seven dusty Channels streamless lie.
 Ismarian Hebrus, Strymon now are dry.
 Hesperian streams, Rhene, Rhydanus, the Po,
 270 And Scepter-destinated Tiber glow.
 Earth cracks ; to Hell the hated light descends,
 And frighted Pluto with his Queen offends,
 The Ocean shrinks, and leaves a field of Sand ;
 Where new discover'd Rocks and Mountains stand,
 That multiply the scatter'd Cyclades,
 Late cover'd with the deep and awfull Seas,
 285 The Fishes to the bottom dive : nor dare
 The sportless Dolphins tempt the sultry Air.
 Long boil'd alive, the monstrous Phoeæ die,
 And on the brine with turn'd-up bellies lie.
 With Doris and her Daughters, Nereus raves ;
 Who hide themselves beneath the scalding waves.
 290 Thrice wrathfull Neptune his bold arm upheld
 Above the Floods : whom thrice the Fire repel'd.
 Yet foodfull Tellus with the Ocean bound,
 Amidst the Seas, and Fountains now unsound
 (Self-hid within the womb where they were bred)
 305 Neck-high advanceth her all-bearing Head
 (Her parched fore-head shadow'd with her hand)
 And, shaking, shook whatever on her stand :
 Wherewith a little shrunk into her breast
 Her sacred tongue her sorrows thus exprest :
 ' If such thy will, and I deserve the same,
 310 Thou chief of Gods, why sleeps thy vengefull Fame ?
 Be't by thy fire, if I in fire must fry :
 The Author lessens the Calamity.
 But, whilst I strive to utter this, I choke.
 View my sing'd hair, mine eyes half-out with Smoke !
 The sparkling cinders on my Visage thrown !
 315 Is this my recompence ? the favour shown
 For all my service ? for the fruit I have born ?
 That thus I am with Plough and Harrows torn ;

Wrought-out throughout the year ? that Man and Beast
Sustain with food ? and you with intense feast ?

99 But, say I merit ruine, and thy hate :
What hath thy Brother done (by equal Fate Elected to the way Monarchy,)
That Sea should sink, and from thy presence fly ?
If neither he, nor I thy pity move,
Pity thy Heaven. Behold ! the Poles above
105 At either end do fume : and should they burn,
Thy habitation would to ruine turn.
Distressed Atlas shoulders shrink with pain,
And scarce the glowing Axletree sustain.
If Sea, if Earth, if Heaven should fall by fire,
Then all of us to Chaos must retire.

O ! quench these flames : the miserable state
100 Of things relieve, before it be too late.

This said, her voice her parched tongue forsook,
Nor longer could the smothering vapours brook ;
But, down into her self withdrew her head,
Near to th' infernal Caverns of the dead.
Jove calls the Gods to witness, and who sent 105 The straying Chariot ; should not he prevent,
That All would perish by one destiny ;
Then mounts the highest Turret of the Sky,
From thence inur'd to cloud the space full Earth :
And give the Flame fore-running Thunder birth.
But, there, for wasted clouds he sought in vain,
110 To shade, or cool the scorched Earth with rain.
He thunders, and with hands that cannot erre,
Hurles lightning at th' audacious Charioteer.
Him struck he from his seat ; breath from his breast,
Bath at one blow, and flames with flames suppress.
The frightened Horses, plunging several ways,

115 Break all their tire : to whom the Bit obeys :
The reins, torn beams, crackt spokes, disperse abroad,
Scorch'd Heav'n was with the Chariot's ruines strow'd.
But, soul-less Rhæton with blazing hair,
120 Shot head-long through a long descent of Air ;
As when a falling star glides through the Sky,
Or seems to fall to the deceived eye.

Whom great Eridanus (far from his place
Of birth) receiv'd and quench'd his flagrant face :
125 Whose Nymphs interr'd him in his Mother's womb ;
And fixt this Epitaph upon his Tomb :

- Here Phaeton lies; who though he could not guide
His Father's Steeds, in high attempts he di'd.
Phabus with grief withdrew. One day did run
330 About the World, they say, without the Sun,
Which flaming funerals illuminate
That good, derived from a wretched Fate.
When Clymene had said what could be said
In such a grief, half-soul'd, in black arrai'd,
335 She fills the Earth she wanders through, with groans
First seeking his dead corps, and then his bones.
Interr'd in foreign Lands she found the last:
Her feeble limbs upon the place she cast.
And bath'd his name in tears, and strictly prest
The carved Marble with her bared breast.
340 Nor less th' Heliades lament, who shed
From drowned eyes vain offerings to the dead:
Who with remorseless hands their bosoms tear,
And wailing, call on him that cannot hear.
With joined horns four Moons their Orbs had fill'd,
345 Since they their customary plaints upheld:
When Phaethusa, thinking to have cast
Her self on Earth, cri'd ah! my feet stick fast!
Lampetie, pressing to her Sisters aid,
As suddenly with fixed roots was staid.
350 A third, about t' have torn her scatter'd hair,
Tore off the leaves which on her crown she bare,
This grieveth at her stiff and senseless thighs:
She, that her stretch-out arms in branches rise.
And whilst with wonder they themselves behold,
The creeping bark their tender parts infold;
Then, by degrees their bellies, breasts, and all,
355 Except their mouths, which on their Mother call.
What should she doe? but run to that, to this,
As fury drives, and snatch'd a parting kiss?
But yet, not so suffic'd, she strove to take
Them, from themselves, and down the branches brake
360 From whence, as from a wound, pure blood did gush
O pity, Mother! (still the wounded cri'd)
Nor tear us in our Trees! O! now adieu!
With that, the bark their lips together drew.
From these clear dropping trees, tears yearly flow:
365 They hardned by the Sun, to Amber grow,
Which, on the Moisture-giving River spent,
To Roman Ladies, as his gift is sent.

- Sibelenian Cygnus* at that time was there;
 Akin to Phaeton; in love, more near.
 He, leaving State (who in Liguria reign'd;
 370 Which Cities great and populous contain'd)
 Fill'd with complaints the River-chiding floods,
 The sedgey banks, and late augmented Woods.
 At length; his voice grew small: white plume contends
 In whiteness with his hair: his neck ascends.
 375 Red films unite his toes: arms turn to wings:
 His mouth, a flat blunt bill, that sadly sings,
 Becomes a Swan, remembering how unjust
Jove's Lightning was, nor Heaven, nor him will trust;
 Whom Lakes and Ponds (detesting fire) delight;
 380 And Floods, to Flames in nature opposite.
 The wofull Father to dead Phaeton,
 Himself neglecting (all his lustre gone,
 At when eclips'd) day, light, his own life hates;
 And loved grief, with anger, aggravates;
 385 Refusing to illuminate the Earth.
 Enough, too much my toil! born with the birth
 Of Time; (as restless;) without end, regard,
 Or honour: recompenc'd with this reward:
 Some other now may on my Chariot sit.
 If all of you consents your selves unfit;
 390 Let Jove ascend: that he (when he shall try)
 At length may lay his murther-thundring by.
 Then will he find, that he, who could not guide
 Those fire-hoof'd Steeds, deserv'd not to have di'd.
 The Gods stand round about him, and request
 395 That endless night might not the World invest.
 Even Jove excus'd his lightning, and intreats:
 Which like a King, he intermixt with threats.
 Displeased Phæbus, hardly reconcil'd,
 Takes up his Steeds: as yet with horror wild.
 On whom he vents his spleen: and, though they run,
 400 He lashes, and upbraids them with his Son.
 The thunderer then walks the ample Round
 Of Heavens high walls, to search if all were sound.
 When finding nothing there by fire decal'd;
 He Earth, and humane industries survey'd.
Arcadia chiefly exercis'd his cares;
 405 There Springs and Streams, that durst not run, repairs;
 The Fields with Grass, the Trees with Leaves indues,
 And withered Woods with vanish shades renews.

On passing to and fro, a Nonsuavine

- 410 The God inflam'd, her beauty, more divine !
 'Twas not her Art to spin, nor with much care
 And fine variety to trick her hair ;
 But, with a zone, her looser garments bound,
 And her rude tresses in a fillet wound :
 Now armed with a Dart, now with a Bow :
- 415 A Squire of Phæbe's. Menalus did know
 None more in grace, of all her Virgin throng :
 But, Favorites in favour last not long.
 The parted Day in equal ballance held,
 A Wood she enter'd, as yet never sell'd.
 There from her shoulder she her Quiver takes,
 420 Unbends her bow ; and, tir'd with hunting, makes
 The flow'ry mantled Earth her happy bed ;
 And on her painted Quiver laies her head.
 When Jove the Nymph without a guard did see
 In such a posture ; This stealth said he,
 My Wife shall never know : or, say she did ;
 425 Who, ah, who would not for her sake be chid ?
Diana's shape and habit then indu'd,
 He said ; My Huntress, where hast thou pursu'd
 This Mornings Chase ? She rising, made reply ;
 Hail Pow'r more great then Jove (though Jove stood by
 In my esteem —. He smil'd : and gladly heard
- 430 Himself, by her, before himself prefer'd,
 And kist. His kisses too intemperate grow ;
 Not such as Maids on Maidens do bestow.
 His strict imbracements her narration staid ;
 And, by his crime, his own deceit betrai'd.
 She did what Woman could to force her Fate :
 435 (Would Juno saw : it would her spleen abate)
 Although as much as Woman could she strove :
 What Woman, or, who can contend with Jove ?
 The Victor hies him to the æthereal States.
 The Woods as guilt'y of her wrongs, she hates ;
 Almost forgetting as from thence she flung,
 440 Her Quiver, and the Bow by which it hung.
 High Menalus, Dictynna with her train
 Now entering, pleased with the quarry slain,
 Beheld, and call'd her : call'd upon the fled ;
 And in her semblance Jupiter doth dread.
- 445 But, when she saw th' attending Nymphs appear ;
 She troups amongst them, and diverts her fear.

Ah, how our faults are in our faces read!
 With eyes scarce ever rais'd she hangs the Head:
 Nor perks she now as she was wont to do,
 By Cynthia's side, nor leads the starry crew.

440 Though mute she be, her violated shame
 Self-guilty blushes silently proclaim.
 But that a Maid, Diana the ill hid
 Had soon esp'd they say, her lie Nymphs did.

Nine Crescents now had made their Orbs compleat;
 445 When, faint with labour, and her brother's heat,
 She takes the shades; close by the murmuring
 And silver current of a fruitfull Spring:
 The place much prais'd, the stream as cool as clear
 Her fair feet glads. No Spies, said she, be here:
 Here will we our dis-robed bodies dip.

460 Galisto blush'd: the rest their fair limbs strip.
 And her perforce uncloath'd that fought delays;
 Who, with her body, her offence displaies.
 They all abasht, yet loth to have it spi'd,
 Striving her belly with their hands to hide;

465 Avant, said Cynthia; get thee from our train;
 Nor, with thy limbs, this sacred Fountain stain:

This knew the Matron of the Thunderer;
 Whose thoughts, to sifter times, revenge defer:
 Not long delays; for, Arca (which more scorn
 And grief provok'd) was of the Lady born.

470 Beheld with ire, which turn'd her eyes to flames;
 Must thou be fruitfull too, to blaze my shame,
 And propagate the wrong? And must he be
 A living infamy to Jove and me?

I'll not indure't: That so self-pleasing shape,
 475 Which drew my Husband to thy willing Rape,
 I sure shall spoil. This said, her hair she wound
 About her hand, and dragg'd her on the ground.
 Her hands, for pity heav'd (so smooth, so fair!)
 Grow forthwith rough, and horrid with black hairs.
 Her dainty hands (which swift deformity

480 Converts to paws) the place of feet supply.
 The mouth, so prais'd by Jove (that late to sin
 Entic'd a God) now horribly doth grin:
 And, lest she might too powerfully beseech,
 She instantly bereft her of her speech:
 In stead whereof, a noise ascends her hoarse
 And rumbling throat, which terror doth inforce;

- Although a Bear, her mind she still possess'd,
 And with continual groans her grief express'd;
 With paws stretcht up to heaven, accus'd her fate:
 And whom she could not call, she thought ingrate.
 How oft afraid to keep the Woods alone,
 490 Sought she the house and fields that were her own!
 How often, chased by the following cry,
 Th' affrighted Huntress from her Hounds did fly!
 Oft she (the Wood's wild foragers espi'd)
 Forgetting what she was, her self would hide:
 A bear; yet trembles at the sight of Bears;
 495 And Wolves (her Father then amongst them) fears.
 When (lo!) Lycaon's Grand-child thither drew,
 Thrice-five years old, nor of his Mother knew;
 While he pursues the chase and salvage spoils,
 (The Erymanthian Woods begirt with toils)
 500 Her he encounters. Arcas seen, she staid,
 And would have ra'n acquaintance. He, afraid,
 Stared upon her with a constant eye;
 And backward stept, as she approached nigh.
 About to wound her undefended breast:
 505 The King of Gods, who did the fact detest,
 With them, the crime withdrew, and both convey'd
 To heaven: now neighbouring Constellations made.
Saturnia swell'd to see her Rival shine
 Amongst the Stars. She stoops to Neptune's brine;
 510 Gray Teibys and the old Oceanus.
 (Grac'd by the Deities). accosting thus:
 Ask you why I, the Queen of Gods, am come
 From blest aboads? another holds my room.
 When Night's black Mantle shall the World infold;
 515 My wounds (those honour'd Stars) you may behold,
 There where the shortest Circle at the end
 Of all the turning Axletree, doth bend.
 Who would not injury the Wife of Jove,
 When our worst punishments preferments prove?
 520 How great our Act! how is our power displaid!
 Uniform'd a Woman, and a Goddess made.
 Thus we the glory scourge! Thus, thus we our
 Revenge advance! such, and so great our power!
 Let him unbest the Beast (as heretofore
Phoronis) and her wanton shape restore.
 525 Why doth he not Lycaon's Daughter wed,
 Rejecting me, and place her in his bed?

But, you who once my carefull Nurſes were,
If my indignities do touch you near,
Command you that the ſeven Triones keep
Their lazie Wain out of your ſacred Deep.
From thence, thoſe ſtars, the price of whoredom, drive;

530 Nor let th' impure in your pure Surges dive.
They both aſſent. Her Peacocks to the Skies
Their Goddeſſes draw; late ſtuck with Argus eyes.

Thou too, thou prating Raven, turn'd as late
535 From white to black, by well-deſerved Fate.
(The ſpotleſſ ſilver Dove was not more white,
Nor Swans which in the running brooks delight;
Nor yet that vigilant Fowl, whoſe gagling ſhall
Hereafter free th' attempted Capitol)

540 Thy tongue, thy tell-tale tongue did thee undo:
And what was white, is now of ſable hue.

The Palm, Coronis of Lariſſa bare
From all th' Aemonian Dames for matchleſſ fair.
Who dearly, Delphian, was belov'd by thee;
As long as chaſt, as from detection free.

545 But, Phæbus Bird her ſcapes did ſoon deſcry:
Nor could they charm th' inexorable Spy:
Whom, flying to his Lord, the Crow purſues
(As talkative as he) to know the news:

And, knowing, ſaid: Thy ſelf thou doſt ingage

550 By thankleſſ ſervice ſlight: nor my preſage.
Know what I was and am: through all my time
My actions liſt: thou'lt find my faith my crime.
For Pallas, on a day, in cheſt compos'd
Of Attick Officers, privately incloſ'd
Her Erichthonius (whom no Woman bare)
Committed to the cuſtody and care

555 Of three fair Virgin-Nymphs, that daughters were
To prudent Cecrops, who two ſhapes did bear:
Nor told what it contain'd, but charg'd that they
Her ſecrets ſhould not to themſelves betray.
Theſe from an Elm I (un-espied) eſpy.

560 Fair Herſe and Pandros, faithfully
Perform their charge: Aglauros then did call
Her fearfull ſiſters, and uſties withall
The wicker-Cabiner; whoſe twigs contain
An infant, rais'd on a Dragon's train.
This, I my Goddeſſes told; and for reward,
Am now caſhiered from Minerva's Guard,

- 565 The Bird of Night prefer'd. Beware by me :
 Not too officiously tell all you see.
 Truth is, I never to that place aspir'd ;
 She gave it me, unsought to, undesir'd ;
 Were Pallas askt, though angry, yet know I :
 570 That angry Pallas would not this deny.
 Me had King Coronens, great in fame ;
 Through happy Phoebe, by a royal Dame.
 Rich suiters I (despise me not) had store
 My beauty wreckt me. Walking on the Shore,
 As leisurely as now I use to go,
 575 Cold Neptune saw me, and with lust did glow.
 The time, his pray'rs and praises spent in vain ;
 What would not yield, he offers to constrain,
 And follows me that fled. The harder strand
 Behind me left, and tir'd with yielding sand.
 To Gods and men I cry. No humane aid
 580 Was then at hand : a Maid relieves a Maid,
 For, as to heaven my trembling arms I threw ;
 My arms cole-black with hovering feathers grew.
 My robe I from my shoulders thought to throw :
 But, that was plume, and to my skin did grow.
 585 With hands to beat my naked breast I try :
 But, neither breast to beat, nor hands had I.
 Running, in sand I sunk not as before ;
 But, me the scarce-touch'd Earth, unburthen'd bore.
 Forthwith, I lightly through the Air ascend ;
 590 And on Minerva without blame attend.
 But, what was this ; when she, whose wicked deeds
 Unwoman'd her, in our lost grace succeeds ?
 For, know (no more then through all Lesbos spread)
Nyctimene desir'd her Father's bed,
 595 Though now a Bird ; yet, full of guilt, the sight,
 The Day, she shuns : and masks her shame in Night.
 About her all our winged troops repair ;
 And, with invectives, chase her through the Air.
 To her the Raven : Mischiefe thee surprize
 For staying me : Vain omens I despise ;
 600 Then forward flew ; and told the hurtfull truth
 Of lost Coronis, and th' Aetolian youth.
 The harp drops from his hand, and from his head
 The Laurel fell, his cheerfull colour fled.
 Transported with his rage, his Bow he took,
 And with inevitable arrow strook

- 605 That breast, which he so oft to his had join'd :
 She shrieks ; and from the deadly wound both wind
 The biting steel, pursu'd with streams of blood,
 That bath'd her pure white in a crimson flood :
 And said ; Though this be due, yet, Phæbus, I,
 610 Might first have room'd : now, two in one must die.
 She faints : forc'd life in her blood's torrent swims :
 And stifling cold benums her senseless limbs.
 His cruelty to her he lov'd, too late,
 He now repenteth, and himself doth hate,
 Who sent an ear, whom rage could so misple ;
 615 He hates his bird, by whom he knew th' offence ;
 He hates his Art, his Quiver, and his Bow ;
 Then, takes her up, and all his skill doth show.
 But (ah !) too late to vanquish Fate he tries.
 And Surgery, without success, applies.
 620 Which when he saw, and saw the funeral pile
 Prepared to devour so dear a spoil ;
 He deeply groans (for no celestial eye
 May shed a tear) as when a Cow stands by
 And lows aloud to see th' advanced mail
 625 Upon the forehead of her suckling fall.
 And now un-car'd for odours pour'd upon her ;
 And undue death with all due rites doth honour.
 But, Phæbus, not induring that his seed,
 (And that by her) the greedy Fire should feed,
 630 Snatcht it both from her womb, and from the flame :
 And to the two-shap'd Chiron brought the same.
 The white-plum'd Raven, who reward expects,
 He turns to black ; and for his truth rejects.
 It pleas'd the Half horse to be so employ'd ;
 635 Who in his honourable trouble joy'd.
 Behold ! the Centaur's daughter with red hair,
 Whom formerly the Nymph Caricle bare
 By the swift River, and Ocyroe nam'd ;
 Who had her Father's healthfull Art disclaim'd,
 640 To sing the depth of Fates : Now, when her breast
 Was by the prophesying rage possess'd,
 And that th' included God inflam'd her mind ;
 Beholding of the Babe, she thus divin'd :
 Health-giver to the world, grow Infant, grow ;
 645 To whom mortality so much shall ow.
 Fled Sou's thou shalt restore to their abodes :
 And once against the pleasure of the Gods.

ME TAMORPHOSIS,

- To do the like, thy Grandfires flames deny :
 And thou, begotten by a God, must die.
 Thou, of a bloudless corps, a God shalt be
 And Nature twice shall be renew'd in thee.
- 650 And you, dear Father, not a Mortal now ;
 To whom the Fates eternity allow ;
 Shall wish to die, then when your wound shall smart
 With Serpents bloud, and slight your helpless Art.
 Relenting Fates will pity you with death,
- 655 Against their Law, and stop your groaning breath.
 Not all yet said, her sighs in storms arise ;
 And ill-aboading tears burst from her eyes.
 Then, thus : My Fates prevent me : lo, they tie
 My salt'ring tongue, and farther speech deny.
- 660 Alas ! these arts not of that value be,
 That they should draw the wrath of heaven on me :
 O, rather would I nothing had fore-known !
 My looks seem now not humane, nor my own.
 I long to feed on Grasse, I long to run
 About the spacious fields, Wo^d me, undone !
 Into a Mare (my kindreds shape) I grow :
- 665 Yet why throughout ? my Father but half so :
 The end of her complaint you scarce could hear
 To understand : her words confused were.
 Forthwith, nor words, nor neighings, she exprest :
 Her voice yet more inclining to the beast :
 Then neigh'd out-right, within a little space,
- 670 Her down-thrust arms upon the Meadow pace.
 Her fingers join : one hoof five nails unite :
 Her head and neck enlarge ; not now upright :
 Her trailing garment to a train extends :
 Her dangling hair upon her crest descends :
- 675 Her voice and shape at once transform'd became ;
 And to it self the Monster gives a name.
 Old Chiron weeps ; and Phæbus vainly cries
 On thee to change the changeless Destinies.
 Admit thou could'st : thee, from thy self expell'd,
- 680 Then Elis, and Mesenean pastures held.
 It was the time when, cloath'd in Neat-herds weeds,
 Thou plaid'st upon unequal seven-fold Reeds ;
 Whilst thee thy Pipe delights, whilst cares of Love
- 685 Thy Soul possels, and others cares remove ;
 Thy oxen in the fields of Pylus stray :
 Observed by the crafty son of May,

- Forthwith he secretly conveys them thence,
In untrackt Woods concealing his offence.
None saw but Battus, in that Country bred ;
690 Who wealthy Neleus famous horses fed,
Him onely he misdoubts : then, (ta'ne apart)
Stranger, said Mercury, whate're thou art ;
If any for his Herd by chance enquire,
Conceal thy knowledge : and receive, for hire,
695 This white-hair'd Cow. He took her and repli'd,
Be safe ; thy theft shall sooner be descri'd
By yonder stone, then me, and shew'd a stone.
Jove's son departs, and straight returns unknown
(A seeming Clown in form and voice) who said :
700 Saw'st thou no Cattel through these fields convey'd ?
Detect the theft ; in their recovery join ;
And, lo, this Heifer, with her Bull is thine.
He (the reward redoubl'd) answer'd, there
Beneath those Hills, beneath those Hills they were.
705 Then, Hermes, laughing loud ; What knave, I say,
Me to my self ; me to my self betray ?
Then, to a touch-stone turn'd his perjur'd breast ;
Whose nature now is in that name exprest.
Hence he, who bears the Caduceus, springs
Through boundless air ; and views, from stretch-out
710 Munychian fields, Minerva's loved soil, (wings
Lyceum, exercis'd with learned toil.
By chance, upon that day it did befall,
When to her Fane, prepar'd for festival,
In crowned Baskets on their shining hair,
The Virgin-train her sacrifices bare:
715 Returning ; these the winged God doth view ;
Who not forth-right, but in a circuit flew.
As when a greedy Kite fresh intrails spies,
Fearing to stoop for those that sacrifice,
Strikes Circles through the air, nor far removes ;
720 But, with fixt eyes reverts to what he loves :
So swift Cyllenius o're the Attick tow'rs,
In airy windings, circularly scours.
As Lucifer out-shines each other Star ;
As silver Phæbe, Lucifer : so far
725 Did Herse all the other Virgins stain ;
The glory of that pomp, and of her train.
Love-struck, he burns as in the Air he hung.
A bullet by Bellarian Slinger flung,

METAMORPHOSIS,

Increases so in fervour as it flies;

- 730 And finds the fire it had not, in the skies.
 From Heaven, he stoops to more affected Earth:
 Not now disguis'd like one of humane birth;
 Such confidence his beauteous parts impart;
 Which though divine, he strives to grace by art.
 735 He curls his hair; his mantle wrought with gold.
 He in the most becoming garb doth fold;
 And his fine feet adorns: then, in his hand
 Takes his sleep-causing and expelling wand.

- Three rooms there were within the fair context
 Of Cecrop's house, with Ivory arches deckt.
 740 Pandora and Aglauros on each side
 Of Herse lay; Aglauros first espied
 The fly-approaching Mercury: his name
 She boldly asks, and why he thither came.
 To whom, Pheones nephew; He am I
 745 Who on Jove's errands (Jove, my Father) fly.
 And to be plain; to Herse faithfull prove:
 And be an Aunt unto our fruitfull love.
 Thy sister's beauties this repair inforce:
 I pray thee of a lover take remorse.

- So star'd she on him, and as much amaz'd:
 750 As when she on Minerva's secrets gaz'd:
 Who asks a mass of treasure for her hire;
 And till 'twere paid, constrain'd him to retire.
 Wars angry Goddess cast on her a look
 That darted fire; and fetcht a sigh which shook
 755 Her bosom, with the Aegis which she wore:
 Who calls to mind, how she, not long afore
 Prophanely did, against her faith, discover
 The Lemnian issue born without a Mother:
 Now to her Sister to the God ingrate;

- 760 And by so base a meanst' enrich her state.
 Forthwith to Envy's cave her course she bent,
 Furr'd with black filth, within a deep descent
 Between two hills; where Phæbus never shows
 His chearfull face; where no wind ever blows;
 Repleat with sadness, and un-active cold;

- 765 Devoid of fire, yet still in smoke inroll'd.
 Whither when as the fear'd in battel came,
 She staid before the house (that hatefull frame
 She might not enter) and the dark door stroke
 With her bright lance; which straight in sunder broke;

There

There saw she Envy lapping Vipers blood ;
 And feeding on their flesh, but vices food ;
 And, having seen her, turn'd away her eyes.
 The Caitiff slowly from the ground doth rise
 (Her half-devoured Serpent's laid aside)
 And forward creepeth with a lazy stride.
 Viewing her form so fair, her arms so bright ;
 She groan'd and sigh'd at such a chearfull sight.
 Her body more then meager ; pale her hue ;
 Her teeth all rusty : still she looks askue :
 Her breast with gall, her tongue with poison swell'd ;
 She onely laught when she sad sights beheld.
 Her ever-waking cares exil'd soft sleep :
 Who looks on good success with eyes that weep ;
 Repining, pines : who, wounding others bleeds :
 And on her self revengeth her misdeeds.
 Although Tritonia did the Hag detest ;
 Yet briefly thus her pleasure she exprest :
 Aglauros one of the Cecropides,
 Do thou infest with thy accurst disease.
 This said ; the hasty Goddess doth advance
 Her body, with her earth-repelling lance.
 Envy cast after her a wicked eye,
 Murmurs, and could for very sorrow die,
 That such her power : a snaggie staff then took
 Wreathed with thorns ; and her dark Cave forsook :
 Wrapt in black clouds, which way so-ere she turns,
 The Corn she lodges, flow'ry pastures burns,
 Crops what grows high ; Towns, Nations, with her
 Pollutes ; and Vertue persecutes to death. (breath
 When she the fair Athenian tow'rs beheld,
 Which so in wealth, in learned Arts excell'd,
 And feastfull Peace ; to cry she scarce forbears,
 In that she saw no argument for tears.
 When she Aglauros lodging entred had,
 She gladly executes what Pallas bade :
 Her canker'd hand upon her breast she laid,
 And crooked thorns into her heart convel'd,
 And breath'd in banefull poison ; which she sheds
 Into her bones, and through her spirits spreads.
 And that her envy might not want a cause ;
 The God in his divinest form she draws,
 And with it, sets before her wounded eyes
 Her happy Sister and their nuptial joys,

Augmenting all. These secret woes excite;
 And gnaw her soul. She sighs all day, and night;
 And with a slow infection melts away,
 Like Ice before the Sun's uncertain ray.

810 Fair Herse's happy state such heart-burn breeds
 In her black bosom, as when spiny weeds
 Are set on fire: which without flame consume,
 And seem (so small their heat) to burn with fume.
 Oft she resolves to die, such sights to shun:
 Oft, by disclosing, to have both undone.

815 Now sits she on the threshold to prevent
 The God's access; who with lost blandishment,
 And his best Art, persuades. Quoth she, forbear,
 I cannot be remov'd if you stay here.
 I to this bargain he repli'd will stand:

820 The figured door then forces with his wand.
 Striving to rise, to second her debate,
 Her hips could not remove, prest with dull weight:
 Again she struggl'd to have stood on end:
 But, those unsupple sinews would not bend.
 Incroaching cold now enters at her nails:

825 And lack of blood her veins blue branches pales.
 And as a Canker, slighting helpless Arts,
 Creeps from th' infected to the sounder parts:
 So by degrees the winter of Man's death
 Congeals the path of life, and spots her breath:

830 Nor strove she: had she strove to make her moan,
 Voice had no way; her neck and face now stone.
 There she a bloodless Statue sat, all freck't:
 Her spotted mind the Marble did infect.

When Atlantiades, on her prophane
 Of tongue and heart, this sharp revenge had ta'en;
 835 He from the City, nam'd by Pallas flew
 On mounting wings, and unto heaven withdrew.
 With whom, Jove-thus (his love concealing) joins:
 Thou, faithfull minister to my designs,
 Shoot swiftly through the Air unto that Land,

840 Whose borders North-ward of thy Mother stand,
 Which those Inhabitants Sidonia name:
 Behold yon roval Herd; conduct the same,
 From not far distant Mountains, to the shore.

This he dispatcht, with speed that went before
 845 A humane thought. There, oft the Princely Maid,
 Accompani'd with Tyrian Virgins, plaid.

- Love and high Majesty agree not well ;
 Nor will together in one bosom dwell.
 That Pow'r, from whom, whate'r hath being, springs ;
 That King of Gods, who three-fork'd lightning flings ;
 850 Whose nod the World's unfixt foundation shakes,
 The figure of a sensual Bull now takes ;
 And, lowing walks upon the tender grass
 Amongst the Herd ; though he their form surpass.
 His colour whiter then untrodden Snow,
 Before still moist and thawing Auster blow.
 855 The flesh, in swelling rolls adorns his neck :
 His broad-spread breast, long dangling dew-laps deck.
 His horns though small, yet such as Art invite
 To imitate, then shining gems more bright :
 His eyes no wrath, his brows no terrour threat ;
 His whole aspect with shining peace repleat.
 The beast, Agenor's daughter doth admire,
 860 So wondrous beautifull, so void of ire.
 Though such, at first she his approach did dread,
 Yet forthwith toucht ; and then with flowers him fed.
 The Lover joys : till he his hopes might feast.
 He kist her hands ; ah, scarce defers the rest !
 865 Now, on the springing grass, he frisks and plaies :
 His sides now on the golden sands he lays.
 Her fear subdu'd, she strokes his profer'd breast :
 Her Virgin-hands his horns with garlands drest,
 The royal Maid, who now no courage lackt,
 870 Ascends the Bul, not knowing whom she backt.
 He, to the Sea approaching, by degrees
 First dips therein his hooft, anon his knees :
 Then, rushing forward, bears away the prize.
 She shrieks, and to the shoar reverts her eyes :
 875 One hand his horn, the other held behind :
 Her lighter garments swelling with the wind.

OVID'S

OVID'S METAMORPHOSIS.

THE THIRD BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

*Arm'd troops from Dragons late-sown teeth arise.
 By his own Hounds the Hart Actæon dies.
 Juno a Beldame. Semele doth frie
 In mist imbraces. Bacchus from Jove's thigh
 Takes second birth. The wise Tiresias twice
 Doth change his Sex. Scorn'd Echo pines i' a voice
 Self-lov'd Narcissus to a Daffodil;
 Bacchus, a Boy. The Tyrrhene's ship stands still,
 With Ivy moor'd. Strange shapes the Sailers fright:
 Who Dolphins turn, and still in ships delight.*

AND now the God, arriving with his Rape,
 At sacred Creet, resumes his heavenly Shape.
 The King, his Son to seek his Daughter sent,
 Fore-doom'd to perpetual banishment,
 Except his fortune to his wish succeed:
 How pious, and how impious in one deed! (quire)
 Earth wandred through (Jove's thefts who can
 He shuns his countrey, and his Father's ire:
 With Phæbus Oracle consults to know
 What Land the Fates intended to bestow.
 Who, thus: In desert fields observe a Cow;
 Yet never yolk'd, nor servile to the Plow;
 Follow her slow conduct, and where she shall Repose, there build: the place Bœotia call.

- Scarce Cadmus from Castalian Cave descended,
 5 When he an Elder saw, by no man tended,
 Her neck ungirded with groaning servitude,
 The God ador'd, he foot by foot pursu'd.
 Cephisus flood, and Penope now past,
 10 She made a stand; to heaven her forehead cast,
 With lofty horns most exquisitely fair;
 Then, with repeated lowings fill'd the air:
 Looks back upon the company she led;
 And, kneeling makes the tender grass her bed.
 Thanksgiving Cadmus kiss the unknown ground;
 15 The stranger fields and hills saluting round,
 About to sacrifice to heav'n's high King,
 He sends for water from the living Spring.
 A Wood there was, which never Ax did hew;
 In it a Cave, where Reeds and Osiers grew,
 20 Roof'd with a rugged Arch by Nature wrought;
 With pregnant waters plentifully fraught.
 The lurking Snake of Mars this hold possess'd;
 Bright scal'd, and shining with a golden crest;
 His bulk with poison swell'd; fire-red his eyes:
 Three darling tongues, three ranks of teeth comprise.
 25 This fatal Well th' unlucky Tyrians found;
 Who with their down-let pitcher, rais'd a sound.
 With that, the Serpent his blue head extends;
 And suffering air with horrid hisses rends.
 The water from them fell; their colour fled:
 30 Who all astonish'd, shook with sudden dread.
 He wreaths his scaly folds into an heap;
 And fetcht a compass with a mighty leap:
 Then bolt-upright his monstrous length displays
 More than half way, and all the Woods surveys.
 Whose body, when all seen, no less appears,
 35 Then that which parts the two celestial Bears.
 Whether the Tyrians sought to fight, or fly,
 Or whether they through fear could neither try,
 Some caught he 'twixt his jaws, some clasp'd to death,
 Some kill'd with poison, others with his breath.
 40 And now the Sun the shortest shadows made.
 Then Gaius, wondring why his servants staid,
 Their foot-steps trac'd. An hide-the-Hero wore,
 Which he from a slaughtered Lion tore:
 His Arm a dart, a bright steel-pointed Spear,
 And such a mind as could not stoop to fear.

- 35 When he the Wood had entred, and there view'd
 The bodies of the slain with bloud imbru'd;
 Th' insulting Victor quenching his dire thirst
 And their luckt wounds; he sigh'd, as heart would burst:
 Then said, I will revenge, O faithfull Mates,
 Your murders, or accompany your Fates.
 With that he lifted up a mighty stone,
- 60 Which with a more then manly force was thrown.
 What would have batter'd down the strongest wall,
 And shiv' red tow'rs, doth give no wound at all.
 The hardness of his skin, and scales that grow
 Upon his armed back, repulse the blow.
- 65 And yet that strong defence could not so well
 The vigour of his thrilling Dart repell;
 Which through his winding back a passage rends,
 There sticks: the steel into his guts descends:
 Rabid with anguish, he retorts his look
 Upon the wound; and then the Javelin took
- 70 Between his teeth; it every way doth wind:
 At length, tugg'd out, yet leaves the head behind,
 His rage increast with his augmenting pains:
 And his thick-panting throat swells with full veins.
 A cold white froth surrounds his pois'nous jaws:
- 75 On thundring Earth his trailing Scales he draws:
 Who from his black and Stygian maw ejects
 A blasting breath, which all the Air infects.
 His body now, he circularly bends:
 Forthwith into a monstrous length extends:
 Then rusheth on like show'r-incens'd Flouds;
- 80 And with his breast o're-bears the obvious Woods.
 The Prince gave way; who with the Lion's spoil
 Sustain'd th' assault; and forc'd a quick recoil,
 His Lance fixt in his jaws. What could not feel,
 He madly wounds; and bites the biting steel.
- 85 Th' invenom'd gore, which from his palate bled,
 Converts the grass into a dusky red:
 Yet, slights the hurt, in that the Snake withdrew;
 And so, by yielding did the force subdue.
 Till Agenorides the steel imbru'd
 In his wide throat, and still his thrust pursu'd:
 Untill an Oak his back-retrait withstood:
- 90 There, he his neck transfixt: with it, the Wood.
 The tree bends with a burthen so unknown;
 And, lashed by the Serpents tail, doth groan.

While

While he survey'd the greatness of his foe,
This voice he heard (from whence he did not know)
Why is that Serpent so admir'd by thee?

Agenor's Son a Serpent thou shalt be.
He speechless grew; pale fear repell'd his blood;
And now uncurled hair like bristles stood.

Behold! Man's Favourite, Pallas (from the sky Descending to his needfull aid) stood by:

Who bad him in the turn'd up furrows throw
The Serpents teeth; that future men might grow.

He, as commanded, plow'd the patient Earth:

And therein sow'd the seed of humane birth.

Lo (past belief!) the Clods began to move:

And tops of Lances first appear'd above:

The Helmets nodding with their plumed Crest;

Forthwith, refulgent Pouldrons, plated breasts;

Hands with offensive weapons charg'd, insue:

And Target-bearing troupes of Men up-grew.

So in our Theater's solemnities,

When they the Arras raise, the Figures rise:

Afore the rest, their faces first appear;

By little and by little then they rear

Their bodies, with a measure-keeping hand,

Untill their feet upon the Border stand.

Bold Cadmus, though much daunted at the sight

Of such an Host; addrest him to the fight.

Forbear, (a new-born Souldier cri'd) t' ingage

Thy better fortune in our civil rage!

With that, he on his Earth-bred Brother flew:

At whom a deadly dart another threw.

Nor he that kill'd him, long survives his death;

But through wide wounds expires his infant breath.

Slaughter, with equal fury, runs through all:

And by uncivil civil blows they fall.

The new-sprung Youth, who hardly life possesse,

Now panting, kick their Mothers bloody breast.

But five surviv'd: of whom Echion one;

His arms to Earth by Pallas counsel thrown.

He craves the love he offers. All accord

As Brothers should: and what they take afford.

Sidonian Cadmus these assist to build

His lofty walls; the Oracle fulfill'd.

Now flourish Thebes: now did thy exile prove

In shew a Blessing; those that rule in love

And

- And war, thy Nuptials with their Daughters grace :
 By such a Wife to have so fair a race ;
 So many Sons and Daughters, Nephews too
 (The pledges of their peacefull beds) insure ;
 135 And they now grown to excellence and power,
 But, Man must censur'd be by his last hour :
 Whom truly we can never happy call,
 Afore his death, and closing Funeral.
 In this thy every way so prosperous state,
 Thy first mis-hap sprung from thy Nephew's fate :
 Whose brows unnatural branches ill adorn ;
 140 By his ungratefull Dogs in pieces torn.
 Yet fortune did offend in him ; not he :
 For, what offence may in an error be ?
 With purple blood, slain Deer the hills imbrue :
 And now high noon the shades of things withdrew ;
 145 While East and West the equal Sun partake :
 Thus, then Hyamim to his Partners spake,
 That trod the Mazes of the pathless Wood :
 By Friends, our nets and javeline reek with blood :
 Enough hath been the fortune of this day ;
 150 To morrow, when Aurora shall display
 Her rosie cheeks, we may our sports renew.
 Now, Phœbus, with inflaming eye doth view
 The crannied Earth : here let our labour end :
 Take up your toils. They gladly condescend.
 155 A Vale there was with Pines and Cypress crown'd,
Gargathy call'd ; for Diana's love renown'd.
 A shady Cave possess the inward part,
 Not wrought by hands : there Nature witty Art
 Did counterfeit : a native Arch she drew,
 160 With Pumice and light Tofusses, that grew.
 A bubbling Spring, with streams as clear as Glass,
 Ran chiding by, inclos'd with matted Grass.
 The weary Huntress usually here laves
 Her Virgin limbs, more pure then those pure waves.
 165 And now her Bow, her Javelin, and her Quiver ;
 Doth to a Nymph, one of her Squires, deliver :
 Her light impoverish'd Robes another held :
 Her buskins to uncle. The better skill'd
Ismerian Crocale, her long hair wound
 170 In pleated wreaths : yet was her own unbound ;
 Neat Hyle, Niphe, Rbanis, Psœon, (still Imploy'd) and Phiale the Lovers fill.

While here Titania bath'd, (as was her guise)
 Lo Cadmus Nephew, tir'd with exercise, (Grove
 5 And wandring through the Woods, approach'd this
 With fatal steps : so destiny him drove.
 Ent'ring the Cave with skipping Springs bedew'd ;
 The Nymphs all naked, when a Man they view'd,
 Clapt their re-sounding breasts, and fill'd the Wood
 10 With sudden shrieks : like Ivory pales they stood
 About their Goddess. But she, far more tall,
 By head and shoulders over-tops them all.
 Such as that colour which the Clouds adorns
 Shot by the Sun-beams, or the rosie Morn's ;
 15 Such flush'd in Dian's cheeks, being naked ta'ne.
 And though environ'd by her Virgin-train,
 She side-long turns, looks back, and wisht her Bow :
 Yet what she had she in his face did throw.
 20 With vengefull Waters sprinkled, to her rage
 These words she adds, which future fate preface :
 Now tell how thou hast seen me disarray'd ;
 Tell, if thou canst, I give thee leave. This said,
 She to his Neck and Ears new length imparts ;
 25 T' his Brow the Antlers of long-living Harts :
 With Legs and Feet his arms and hands supply'd ;
 And cloath'd his body in a spotted Hide.
 To this, Fear added. Autoneius flies,
 And wonders at the swiftness of his Thighs:
 30 But when his Looks he in the River view'd,
 He would have cry'd, Woe's me ! no words insu'd :
 His words were groans. He frets with galling tears :
 Cheeks not his own, yet his own Mind he bears.
 What should he doe ? go home, or in the Wood
 35 For ever lurk ? Fear this, Shame that withstood.
 While thus he doubts, his Dogs their Master view.
Black-foot and Tracer, opening first, pursue:
 Sure Tracer Gnossus, Black-foot Sparta bare.
 Then all fell in, more swift then forced Air.
 40 Spie, Ravener, Clime-cliff ; these Arcadia bred :
 Strong Fawn-bane, Whirl-wind, eager Follow-dread.
 Hunter, for sent ; for speed, Flight went before.
 Fierce Salvage, lately gaunched by a Boar ;
 45 Greedy, with her two whelps ; grim Wolf-got Ranger ;
 Stout Shepherd, late preserving flocks from danger ;
 Gaunt Catch, whose race from Sicyonia came ;
 Patch, Courser, Blab, rash Tiger never tame ;

- Blanch, Mourner, Royster, Wolf* surpassing strong ;
 And Tempest, able to continue long ;
 220 Swift, with his Brother Clurl, a Cyprian hound ;
Bold Snatch, whose sable Brows a white star crown'd
Cole, shag hair'd Rug, and Light-foot wondrous fier
 Bred of a Spartan Bitch, his Sire of Creet ;
White-tooth and Ringwood, (others not t' express.)
 225 O're Rocks, o're Craggs, o're Cliffs that want access,
 Through streightned ways, and where there was no way
 The well-mouth'd Hounds pursue the Princely Prey.
 Where oft he wont to follow, now he flies ;
 Flies from his Family : in thought he cries ,
 230 I am Aëdon, servants, know your Lord.
 Thoughts wanted words. High skies the noise reco
 First Collier pinch'd him by the haunch : in flung
Pierce Kill-deer ; Hill-bred on his Shoulder hung.
 These came forth last , but crost a nearer way
 235 A-thwart the hills. While thus their Lord they st
 In rush the rest ; who gripe him with their fangs.
 Now is no room for Wounds. Groans speak his pain
 Though not with humane voice, unlike a Hart :
 In whose laments the known Rocks bear a part.
 240 Pitch on his knees, like one who pity craves,
 His silent looks in stead of Arms he waves.
 With usual shouts their Dogs the Hunters cheer ;
 And seek, and call Aëdon. He (too near)
 245 Made answer by mute motions, blam'd of all
 For being absent at his present fall.
 Present he was, that absent would have been ;
 Nor would his cruel Hounds have felt, but seen.
 Their snouts they in his body bathe , and tear
 250 Their Master in the figure of a Deer.
 Nor, till a thousand wounds had life disseis'd,
 Could quiver-bearing Dian be appeas'd.
 'Twas censur'd variously : for many thought
 The punishment far greater then the fault.
 Others so sour a Chastity commend,
 255 As worthy her. And both their parts defend.
Jove's Wife not so much blam'd or prais'd the deed
 As she rejoyceth at the wounds that bleed
 In Cadmus family ; who keeps in mind
Europa's rape, and hateth all the kind.
 Now new occasions fresh displeasure move :
 260 For Semele was great with child by Jove.

- Then thus she scolds: O, what amends succeeds
Our lost Complaints? I now will fall to deeds.
If we be more then titular great,
If we a Scepter sway, if Heaven our seat,
65 If Jove's fear'd Wife and Sister, (certainly,
His Sister,) torment shall the Whore destroy.
Yet with that theft perhaps she was content,
And quickly might the injury repent:
But, she conceives, to aggravate the blame,
And by her belly doth her crime proclaim,
70 Who would by Jupiter a Mother prove;
Which hardly once hath happened to our love.
So confident is Beauty. Yet shall she
Fail in that hope: nor let me Juno be,
Unless, by her own Jove destroy'd, she make
A swift descent unto the Stygian Lake.
She quits her Throne, and in a yellow Cloud
Approach'd the Palace; nor dismiss that Shroud,
75 Till she had wrinkled her smooth skin, and made
Her head all gray; while creeping feet convey'd
Her crooked limbs; her voice small, weak and hoarse,
Like Berce of Epidaure, her Nurse.
80 Long talking, at the mention of Jov's Name,
She sigh'd, and said; Pray Heaven, he prove the same.
Yet much I fear; for many oft beguile
With that pretext, and chastest beds defile.
Though Jove, that's not enough. Give me a sign
Of his Affection, if he be divine.
Such, and so mighty, as when pleasure warms
85 His melting Bosom in high Juno's Arms;
With thee such, and so mighty, let him lie,
Deckt with the Ensigns of his Deity.
Thus she advis'd the unsuspecting Dame;
Who begs of Jove a Boon without a name.
To whom the God; Chuse, and thy choice possess:
90 Yet that thy diffidency may be less,
Witness that Power, who through obscure abodes
Spreads his dull streams; the fear, and God of Gods.
Pleas'd with her harm, of too much power to move,
That now must perish by obsequious love,
Such be to me, she said, as when th' Invites
Of Juno summon you to Venus Rites.
95 Her mouth he thought to stop: but now that breath
Was mixt with air which sentenced her death.

- Then fetcht he sighs as if his breast would tear,
 (For she might not un-with, nor he un-swear)
 And sadly mounts the Sky ; thence with him took
 The Clouds, that imitate his mournfull look ;
 300 Thick showrs and tempests adding to the same,
 Loud thunder, and inevitable flame.
 Whose rigour yet he striveth to subdue ;
 Not armed with that fire which overthrew
 The hundred-handed Giant ; 'twas too wild.
- 305 There is another lightning far more mild,
 By Cyclops forged with less flame and ire,
 Which deathless Gods do call the Second fire.
 This to her Father's house he with him took.
 But (ah !) a mortal body could not brook
 Ætherial tumults. Her success she mourns,
 And in those so desir'd imbracements burns.
- 310 Th' unperfect Babe, which in her womb doth lie,
 Was ta'en by Jove, and sew'd into his Thigh,
 His Mother's time accomplishing : whom first
 By stealth his careful Aunt, kind Ino, nurst ;
 Then giv'n to the Nyseides, and bred
- 315 In secret Caves, with Milk and Honey fed.
 While this on Earth befell by Fates decree,
 (The twice-born Bacchus now from danger free)
Jove weighty cares expelling from his breast
 With flowing Nectar, and dispos'd to jest
- 320 With well-pleas'd Juno, said, In Venus deeds
 The Female's Pleasure far the Male's exceeds.
 This she denies. Tiresias must decide
 The difference, who both delights had try'd.
 For two ingendring Serpents once he found,
- 325 And with a stroke their slimy twists unbound ;
 And straight a Woman of a Man became.
 Seven Autumns past, he in the eighth the same
 Re-finding, said, If such your pow'r so strange,
 That they who strike you must their nature change,
- 330 Once more I'll try. Then struck, away they ran ;
 And of a Woman he became a Man.
 He, chosen Umpire of this sportfull strife,
Jove's words confirm'd. This vext his froward Wife
 More then the matter crav'd. To wreak her spight,
- 335 His eyes she muffled in eternal night.
 Th' Omnipotent (since no God may undoe Another's deeds) with Fates which should insue

- Inform'd his intellect ; and did supply
His body's eye-sight with his mind's clear eye.
- 40 He giving sure replies to such as came,
Through all th' Aonian Cities stretch'd his fame.
First blew Liriope sad trial made,
How that was but too true which he had said :
Whom in times past Cephisus flood imbrac't
Within his winding Streams, and forc'd the chaste,
The lovely Nymph ; who not unfruitfull prov'd,
- 45 Brought forth a Boy, even then to be belov'd,
Narcissus nam'd. Enquiring if old age
Should crown his youth ; he, in obscure presage,
Made this reply, Except himself he know.
Long they no credit on his words bestow :
Yet did th' event the prophetic approve,
- 50 In his strange ruine, and new kind of love.
Now he to fifteen added had a year :
Now in his looks both Boy and Man appear :
Many a love-sick Youth did him desire ;
And many a Maid his beauty set on fire.
Yet in his tender age his pride was such,
- 55 That neither Youth nor Maiden might him touch.
The Vocal Nymph this lovely Boy did spy,
(She could not profer speech, nor yet reply)
When, busie in pursuit of savage spoils,
He drave the Deer into his corded toils.
Echo was then a Body, not a Voice :
- 60 Yet then, as now, of words she wanted choice ;
But onely could re-iterate the close
Of every speech. This Juno did impose.
For, often when she might have taken Jove
Compressing there the Nymphs, who weakly strove,
Her long discourses made the Goddess stay,
- 65 Untill the Nymphs had time to run away.
Which when perceiv'd, she said, For this abuse,
Thy tongue henceforth shall be of little use.
Those threats are deeds : She yet ingeminates
The last of sounds, and what she hears relates.
- 70 Narcissus seen, intending thus the chace,
She forthwith glows, and with a noiseless pace
His steps pursues. The more she did pursue,
More hot (as nearer to her fire) she grew :
And might be likened to a sulph'rous match,
Which instantly th' approached flame doth catch.

- 375 How oft would she have woo'd him with sweet words!
 But Nature no such liberty affords.
 Begin she could not, yet full readily
 To his expected speech she would reply.
 The Boy, from his companions parted, said;
 380 Is any nigh? I, Echo answer made.
 He round about him gaz'd, (much appall'd)
 And cry'd out, Come. She him, who called, call'd.
 Then looking back, and seeing none appear'd,
 Why thun'st thou me? The self-same voice he heard
 385 Deceived by the Image of his words.
 Then let us joyn, said he. No sound accords
 More to her wish, her faculties combine
 In dear consent; who answer'd, Let us joyn.
 Flattering her self, out of the Woods she sprung;
 And would about his struggling Neck have hung.
 390 Thrust back, he said, Life shall this breast forsake,
 E're thou, light Nymph, on me thy pleasure take.
On me thy pleasure take, the Nymph replies
 To that disdainful Boy, who from her flies.
 Despis'd, the Wood her sad retreat receives:
 Who covers her ashamed face with leaves,
 And sculks in desert Caves. Love still possessest
 395 Her soul, through grief of her repulse increast.
 Her wretched body pines with sleepless care:
 Her skin contracts: her blood converts to air.
 Nothing was left her now but voice and bones:
 The voice remains; the other turn to stones.
 400 Conceal'd in Woods, in Mountains never found,
 Yet heard in all: and all is but a sound.
 Thusher, thus other Nymphs, in Mountains born
 And sedgey brooks, the Boy hath kill'd with scorn.
 Thus many a youth he had afore deceiv'd.
 When one thus pray'd, with hands to Heav'n upheav'd,
 405 So may he love himself, and so despair.
Rhamusia cendescends to his just pray'r.
 A Spring there was, whose silver waters were
 As smooth as any mirrour, nor less clear;
 Which neither Herdsmen, tame nor savage Beast,
 410 Nor wandring Fowl, nor scattered leaves molest;
 Girt round with Grass, by neighbouring moisture fed,
 And Woods, against the Sun's invasion spread.
 He, tir'd with heat and hunting, with the Place
 And Spring delighted, lies upon his face.

- 5 Quenching his thirst, another thirst doth rise,
 Rais'd by the form which in that glass he spies.
 The hope of nothing doth his pow'rs invade :
 And for a body he mistakes a shade.
 Himself, himself distracts : who pores thereon
 So fixedly, as if of Parian stone.
 20 Beholds his eyes, two stars ; his dangling hair,
 Which with unhorn Apollo's might compare ;
 His fingers worthy Bacchus, his smooth chin,
 His Ivory Neck, his heavenly face, wherein
 The linked Dairies their Graces fix,
 Where Rosies with unsullied Lillies mix.
 Admirer all ; for which to be admir'd :
 25 And unconsiderately himself desir'd.
 The praises which he gives, his beauty claim'd.
 Who seeks, is sought : th' inflamer is inflam'd.
 How often would he kiss the flattering Spring !
 How oft with down-thrust arms, sought he to cling
 About that loved neck ! Those couz'ning lips
 Delude his hopes ; and from himself he slips.
 30 Not knowing what, with what he sees he fies :
 And th' error that deceives, incites his eyes.
 O fool, that striv'it to catch a flying shade !
 Thou seek'st what's no-where : turn aside, 'twill fade.
 Thy form's reflexion doth thy sight delude ;
 35 Which is with nothing of its own indu'd.
 With thee it comes, with thee it staies, and so
 'Twould go away, hadst thou the power to go.
 Nor sleep nor hunger could the Lover raise :
 Who, laid along on that false form to gaze
 With looks, which looking never could suffice,
 40 Quite ruins himself with his own eyes.
 At length, a little lifting up his Head,
 You Woods, that round about your branches spread,
 Was ever so unfortunate a Lover ?
 You know, to many you have been a cover.
 From your first growth to this long distant day,
 445 Have you known any thus to pine away ?
 I like and see : but yet I cannot find
 The lik'd and seen. O Love, with error blind !
 What grieves me more ; no Sea, no mountain steep,
 No waies, no walls, our joys asunder keep,
 Whom but a little water doth divide :
 450 And he himself desires to be enjoy'd.

- As oft as I to kiss the Floud decline,
 So oft his lips ascend, to close with mine.
 You'd think we toucht: so small a thing doth part
 Our equal loves. Come forth what-e're thou art,
- 455 Sweet Boy, a simple Boy beguile not so:
 From him that seeks thee, whither would'st thou go?
 My Age nor Beauty merit thy disdain:
 And me the Nymphs have often lov'd in vain.
 Yet in thy friendly shews my poor hopes live,
 Still striving to receive the Hand I give.
 Thou smil'st my smiles: when I a tear let fall,
- 460 Th' u shed'st another; and consent'st in all.
 And lo, thy sweetly-moving lips appear
 To utter words that come not to our ear.
 Ah! He is I, now, now I plainly see:
 It is my shadow that bewitcheth me.
 Love of my self me burns; (O too too sure!)
 I suffer in those flames which I procure.
- 465 Shall I be woo'd, or woo? What shall I crave,
 Since what I cover, I already have?
 Too much hath made me poor. O you divine
 And favouring Powers, me from my self dis-joyn.
 Of what I love, I would be dispossest.
 This in a Lover is a strange request.
 Now strength through grief decays: short is the time
- 470 I have to live, extinguish't in my prime.
 Nor grieves it me to part with well-mist breath;
 For grief will find a perfect cure in death:
 Would he I love might longer life enjoy.
 Now two ill-fated Lovers in one die.
 This said, again he on his Image gaz'd:
 Tears on the troubled water circles rais'd;
- 475 The motion much obscur'd the fleeting shade.
 With that he cry'd, (perceiving it to vade)
 O, whither wilt thou? stay; nor cruel prove,
 In leaving me, who infinitely love.
 Yet let me see what cannot be possest,
 And with that empty food my fury feast.
- 480 Complaining thus, himself he disarrays,
 And to remorseless hands his breast displaies;
 To blows that solid Snow with Crimson stripe;
 485 Like Apples partly red, or Grapes scarce ripe.
 But in the water when the same appear,
 He could no longer such a sorrow bear.

- As Virgin-wax dissolves with fervent heat,
 Or morning Frost whereon the Sun-beams beat :
 So thaws he with the ardour of desire ,
 490 And by degrees consumes in unseen fire.
 His meagre cheeks now lost their red and white ;
 That life, that favour lost which did delight.
 Nor those divine proportions now remain,
 So much by Echo lately lov'd in vain.
 Which when she saw , although she angry were ,
 And still in mind her late repulse did bear ;
 495 As often as the miserable cry'd
 Alas ! Alas ! the wofull Nymph reply'd :
 And ever when he struck his sounding breast,
 Like sounds of mutual sufferance exprest.
 His last words were, still hanging o're his shade,
 500 Ah ! Boy below'd in vain ! So Echo said.
 Farewell. Farewell, sigh'd she. Then down he lies :
 Death's cold hand shuts his self-admiring eyes ;
 Which now eternally their gazes fix
 505 Upon the waters of infernal Styx.
 The wofull Naiades lament the dead ,
 And their clipt hair upon their brother spread.
 The wofull Dryades partake their woes.
 With both sad Echo joyns at every close.
 The funeral Pile prepar'd, a Herse they brought
 To fetch his body, which they vainly fought.
 In stead whereof a yellow Flower was found,
 510 With tufts of white about the button crown'd.
 This through Achaia spread the Prophet's fame ,
 Who worthily had purchas'd a great name.
 But proud Echion's son, who did despise
 The righteous Gods, derides his Prophecies ,
 515 And twits Tiresias with his ravish'd sight.
 He shook his head, which age had cloath'd in white ,
 And said, 'Twere well for thee, hadst thou no eyes
 To see the Bacchanal solemnities.
 The time shall come (which I presage is near)
 520 When Semeleian Liber will be herē :
 Whom if thou honour not with Temples due,
 Thy Mother and her Sisters shall imbue
 Their furious hands in thy effused blood ,
 And throw thy sever'd limbs about the Wood.
 'Twill be ; thy malice cannot but rebell :
 525 And then thoult say , the blind did see too well.

His mouth proud Pentheus stopt. Belief succeeds
Fore-running threats, and words are seal'd by deeds.

Liber is come, the fields with clamour sound :

They in his Orgies tread a frantick round.

Women with Men, the base and nobler sort

530 Together to those unknown Rites resort.

You sons of Mars, you of the Dragon's race,

(Said he) what fury doth your minds imbaze ?

Is brass of such a power, which Drunkards beat,

Or sound of Horns, or Magical Deceit ;

That you, whom Trumpets clangor, horrid fight,

535 Nor Death with all his terrours could affright,

Loud women, wine-bred rage, a lustfull Crew

Of Beasts and Kettle-drums, should thus subdue ?

At you, grave Fathers, can I but admire,

Who brought with you your flying Gods from Tyre,

And fixt them here ; now from that care so far

540 Estranged, as to lose them without War.

Or you, who of my able age appear ;

Whose heads should Helmets, and not Garlands, wear ;

Nor leafy Javelins, but good Swords adorn

The hands of Youth. O you, so nobly born,

The Dragon's fiery fortitude indue,

Whose single valour such a number slew.

545 He in defending of his Fountain fell :

Do you th' Invaders of your fame repell.

He slew the strong : do you the weak destroy,

And free your Country from foul infamy.

If Destinies decree that Thebes must fall,

May men, may warlike engines raise her Wall :

550 Let Sword and Fire our famish'd lives assault.

Then should we not be wretched through our fault,

Nor strive to hide our guilt, but Fortune blame,

And vent our pitied Sorrows without shame.

Now, by a naked Boy we 're put to flight ;

Whom bounding Steeds, nor glorious Arms delight,

555 But hair perfum'd with Myrrh, soft Anadems,

And purple Robes inchas'd with Gold and Gems.

Who shall confess (if you your aid deny)

His forged Father, and false Deity.

What ? has Acrisius virtue to withstand -

560 Th' Impostour, chased from the Argive Strand ?

And shall this Vagabond, this Foreiner,

Me Pentheus and the Theban State deter ?

- Go, (said he to his servants) go your way,
And drag him hither bound : prevent delay.
Him Cadmus, Athamas, and all dissuade,
65 By opposition more intemperate made.
Fury increaseth when it is withstood :
And then good counsel doth more harm then good.
So have I seen an unstopt Torrent glide
With quiet waters, scarcely heard to chide :
670 But when fain Trees, or Rocks, impeach'd his course,
To fume and roar with uncontrolled force.
All bloody they return. Where is, said he,
This Bacchus ? Bacchus none of us did see,
Reply'd they : This his minister we found,
575 (Presenting one with hands behind him bound)
A Thuscan zealous in those mysteries.
On whom fierce Penthem looks with wrathfull eyes,
Who hardly could his punishment defer.
Then thus ; Thou wretch, that others shalt deter ,
580 Declare thy name, thy nation, parentage,
And why thou followest this new-fangled Rage.
He, in whom innocency fear o're-came,
Made this reply : Acætes is my name :
My life I owe to the Meonian earth ;
To none my fortune, born of humble Birth.
No Land my Father left me to manure,
585 Nor Herds, nor bleating Flocks : himself was poor.
The tempted Fish with Hook and Line he caught :
His Skill was all his Wealth. His Skill he taught,
And said, My Heir, successour to my Art,
Receive the Riches which I can impart.
590 He, dying, left me nothing ; and yet all :
The Sea may I my Patrimony call.
Yet, lest I still should on those Rocks abide,
To Navigation I my time apply'd :
Observ'd th' Olenian Goat portending Rain ;
Wet Hyades, when stooping to the Main ;
595 Tavgeta, and cold Arctos ; the resorts
Of several winds ; and harbour-giving Ports :
For Delos bound, we made the Chian Shoars,
And there arrived with industrious Oars.
Leaping a-shore, I made the Beach my bed.
600 When aged Night Aurora's blushes fled,
I rose, and bade my men fresh water bring,
Shewing the way that guided to the Spring.

- Then from an Hill observ'd the winds accord.
 My Mates I call'd, and forthwith went aboard.
- 605 All here, the Master's Mate Opheles cries :
 And, thinking he had light upon a prize,
 Along the shoar a lovely Boy convey'd,
 Adorned with the beauty of a Maid.
 Heavy with wine and sleep, he reeled so,
 That, though supported, he could hardly go.
 When I beheld his habit, gate and feature,
- 610 I could not think it was an humane Creature.
 Fellows, I doubt what God, but sure, said I,
 This excellence includes a Deity.
 O be propitious, who'soere thou art;
 Unto our industry success impart,
 And pardon these who have offended thus.
- 615 Then Ditlys said, Forbear to pray for us.
 (Then he, none could the top-sail-yard bestride
 With lighter speed, nor thence more nimbly slide.)
 This Libys, swart Melanthus (who the Prow Commanded) and Alcimedon allow,
Epeus the Boat-swain; so all say,
- 620 Bewitched with the blind desire of prey.
 Thi Ship, said I, you shall not violate,
 With sacrilege of so divine a weight,
 Wherein I have most interest and command :
 And on the hatches their ascent withstand.
 Whereat the desperate Lycabus grew wild,
- 625 Who for a bloody murder was-exil'd
 From Tuscany. Whilst I alone resist,
 He took me such a buffet with his fist,
 That down I fell; and had fain over-board,
 If I (though senseless) had not caught a cord.
 The wicked company the fact approve.
 Then Bacchus (for 'twas he) began to move,
- 630 As if awaken'd with the noise they made,
 (His wine-bound senses now discharg'd) and said,
 What clamour's this? What doe you? Sailers, whether Mean you to bear me? Ah! how came I hither?
 Fear not, said Froreus : name where thou would'st be;
- 635 And to that Harbour we will carry thee.
 Then, Friends, Lyæus said, for Naxos stand :
Naxos my home, -an hospitable Land.
 By Seas, by all the Gods, by what avails,
 They swear they will, and bade me hoise-up sails.

Which

The Third Book.

- Which trimm'd for Naxos on the Star-board side;
 What do'st thou Mad-man, Fool? Opheltes cry'd.
 Each fears his loss; some whisper in mine ear:
 Most say by signs, Unto the Lar-board steer.
 Amaz'd, Some other hold the Helm, said I;
 55 I'll not be tainted with your perjury.
 All chafe and storm. What? said Ethalion,
 Is all our safety plac'd in thee alone?
 With that, my office he upon him took,
 And Naxos (altering her course) forsook.
 60 The God (as if their fraud but now out-found)
 From th' upper deck the Sea surveyed round;
 Then seem'd to cry. Sirs, this is not, said he,
 That promis'd Shoar, the Land so wish'd by me.
 What is my fault? what glory is my spoil,
 65 If Men a Boy, if many one beguile?
 I wept afore: but they my tears deride,
 And with laborious Oars the Waves divide.
 By him I swear (then whom none more in view)
 That what I now shall utter is as true,
 As past belief. The Ship, in those profound
 660 And spacefull Seas, so stuck as on dry ground.
 They, wondring, ply'd their Oars, the sails displaid,
 And strive to run her with that added aid.
 When Ivy gave their Oars a forc'd restraint,
 665 Whose creeping bands the sails with Berries paint.
 He, head-bound with a wreath of clustered Vines,
 A Javelin shook claspt with their leafy twines.
 Stern Tigers, Lynxes (such unto the eye)
 And spotted Panthers round about him lie.
 All over-board now rumble; whether 'twere
 670 Out of infused madness, or for fear.
 Then Medon first with spiny fins grew black,
 His form depell'd, with a compass back.
 To whom said Lycabas; O more then strange!
 Into what uncouth Monster wilt thou change?
 As thus he spake, his mouth became more wide,
 675 His nose more hook'd: scales arm his hardned hide.
 Whilst Libys tugg'd an Oar, hat fixed stands,
 His hands shrunk up, now fins, no longer hands.
 Another by a Cable thought to hold,
 680 But mist his arms. He fell; the Seas infold
 His maimed body, which a taleft-foon
 Receives, reversed like the horned Moon.

They

- They leap aloft, and sprinkle-up the Floud ;
 Now chase above, now under water scud :
 685 And like lascivious Dancers frisk about ;
 And gulped Seas, from their proud nostrills, spout.
 Of twenty Sailers, onely I remain'd :
 So many men our complement contain'd.
 The God my mind could hardly animate ,
 Trembling with horror of so dire a Fate.
 Suppress, said he, these tumults of thy fear ;
 690 And now thy course for sacred Dia bear.
 Arrived I, by his implor'd consent,
 Became his Priest ; and thus his Feasts frequent.
 Our ears are tir'd with thy long ambages ,
 Which wrath, said he, would by delay appease.
 Go, servants, rake him hence : let his forc'd breath
 695 Expire in groans , and torture him to death.
 In solid Prison pent ; while they provide
 Whips, Racks and Fire, the doors fly open wide :
 And of themselves, as if dissolv'd by charms,
 The fetters fall from his unpinion'd arms.
 700 But now, not bidding others, Pentheus flings
 To high Cytheron's sacred top, which rings
 With frantick songs, and thrill-voic'd Bacchanals,
 In Liber's celebrated Festivals.
 And as the warlike Courser neighs and bounds,
 705 Inflam'd with fury, when the Trumpet sounds :
 Even so their far-heard clamours set on fire
 Stern Pentheus , and exasperate his ire.
 In midst of all the spacious Mountain stood
 A perspicable Champain, fring'd with Wood.
 Here first of all his Mother him espies,
 710 Viewing those holy Rites with prophane eyes.
 She, first, upon him frantically did run :
 And first her eager Javelin pierc'd her son.
 Come, Sisters, cry'd she, this is that huge Boar
 Which roots our fields ; whom we with wounds mult
 715 With that, in rush the sense-distracted Crew , (gore
 And all together the amaz'd pursue.
 Now trembled he, now late-breath'd threats suppress
 Himself he blames, and his offence confess.
 Who cry'd, Help, Aunt Autonoe ; I bleed :
 720 O let Adæon's Ghost soft pity breed.
 Not knowing who Adæon was, she lops
 His right hand off : the other Ino crops.

The wretch now to his mother would have thrown
His suppliant hands : but now his hands were gone.
Yet lifting up their bloody stumps, he said,
Ah, Mother ! see. Agave, well appay'd,
Shouts at the sight, casts up her neck, and shakes
Her staring hair. In cruel hands she takes
His head, yet gasping ; lo sing, said she,
To my Mates : this spoil belongs to me.
Not leaves now wither'd, nipt by Autumn's frost,
So soon are raviht from high Trees, and tost
By scattering winds, as they in pieces tear
His minced limbs. Th' Ismenians, struck with fear,
His Orgies celebrate, his praises sing,
And Incense to his holy Altars bring.

OVID'S

OVID'S
METAMORPHOSIS

THE FOURTH BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

Derceta a Fish. Semiramis a Dove.
Transforming Nais equal fate doth prove.
White Berries Lovers bloud with black defiles:
Apollo, like Eurynome, beguiles
Leucothoe, buried quick for that offence;
Who, Nectar sprinkled, sprouts to Frankincense.
Griev'd Clytie, turn'd to a Flower, turns with the Sun
Daphnis, to Stone. Sex changeth Scythion.
Celmus a Loadstone. Curets got by showers.
Crocus and Smilax turn'd to little flowers.
In one Hermaphrodite two bodies joyn.
Mineides, Bats. Sad Ino made divine,
With Melicert. Who Juno's fault upbraid,
Or Statues, or Cadmean Fowls are made.
Hermione and Cadmus, worn with woe,
Prove hurtless Dragons. Drops to Serpents grow.
Atlas a Mountain. Gorgon-touch'd Sea-weeds
To Coral change. From Gorgon's bloud proceeds
Swift Pegasus: Chrysaor also takes
From thence his birth. Fair hair converts to Snake.

BUt yet Alciboe Mineides
The honour'd Orgies of the God displease.
Her Sisters share in that impiety ;
Who Bacchus for the Son of Jove deny.

And now his Priest proclaims a solemn Feast ;
That Dames and Maids from usual labour rest ;
That wrapt in skins, their hair-laces unbound,
And dangling Tresses with wild Ivy crown'd,
They leafy Spears assume. Who prophesies
Sad haps to such as his command despise.
The Marrons and new-married Wives obey :
Their Webs, their un-spun Wool aside they lay,
Sweet odours burn, and sing ; Lyæus, Bacchus,
Nysæus, Bromius, Euan, great Iacchus,
Fire-got, Son of two Mothers, the Twice-born,
Father Eleleus, Thyon never shorn,
Lenaus, planter of life-chearing Vines,
Nysileus, with all names that Greece assigns
To thee, O Liber. Still dost thou enjoy
Unwasted youth, eternally a Boy.
Thou'rt seen in Heav'n, whom all perfections grace ;
And when unhorn'd, thou hast a Virgin's face.
Thy conquests through the Orient are renown'd,
Where fawny India is by Ganges bound.
Proud Pentheus and Lycurgus, like prophane,
By thee (O greatly to be fear'd) were slain :
The Thuscans drench'd in Seas. Thou holdst in awe
The spotted Lynxes, which thy Chariot draw.
Light Bacchides and skipping Satyrs follow,
Whil'st old Silenus reeling still doth hollow ;
Who weakly hangs upon his tardy Ass.
What place so-e'er thou entrest, sounding Brass,
Loud Sack-buts, Timbrels, the confused cries
Of Youths and Women, pierce the marble skies.
Thy presence we Ismenides implore :
Come, O come pleas'd. Thus they his Rites restore.
Yet the Mineides at home remain,
And with untimely Art his feast prophane :
Who either weave, or at their Distaffs spin ;
And urge their Maids to exercise their sin.
One said, as she the twisted thread out-drew,
While others sport, and forged Gods pursue,
Let us, whom better Pallas doth invite,
Our usefull labour season with delight,
And stories tell by turns ; - that what past years
Deny our eyes, may enter at our ears.
They all agree, and bade the eldest tell
Her story first. She pau'd, not knowing well

Of many which to chuse t^e insist upon :

- 45 The sad Derce is of fam'd Babylon,
 (Who, as the Palestines believe, did take
 A scaly form, inhabiting a lake;)
 Or of her Daughter, who with wing'd ascent
 High-pearch'd on Towers, there her old age spent;
 Or of that Nair who with charms most strange,
 50 And weeds too-pow'rfull, humane shapes did chang
 Into mute Fisher, till a Fish she grew;
 Or of the Tree whose berries chang'd their hue,
 The white to black by blond's aspersion grown:
 This pleaseth best, as being most unknown.
 55 She thus began, and draws the following wood.
 Young Pyramus (no youth so beautifull
 Through all the East) and Thisbe (who for fair
 Might with th' immortal Goddesses compare)
 Joyn'd houses, where Semiramis inclos'd
 Her stately Town, with wall of Brick compos'd.
 This neighbourhoood their first acquaintance bred;
 60 That grew to love; Love sought a nuptial Bed,
 By Parents cross'd: yet equal flames th'ir blood
 Alike incens'd, which could not be withstood.
 Signs onely utter their unwitnest loves:
 But hidden fire the violenter proves.
 65 A cranny in the parting wall was left,
 By shrinking of the new-laid mortar cleft:
 This for so many Ages undescry'd
 (What cannot Love find out?) the Lovers spy'd;
 70 By which their whispering voices softly trade,
 And Pallion's amorous embassie convey'd.
 On this side, and on that, like Snails they cleave,
 And greedily each others breath receive.
 O envious walls (said they) who thus divide
 Whom Love hath joyn'd! O, give us way to slide
 Into each others arms. If such a bliss
 75 Transcend our Fates, yet suffer us to kiss.
 Nor are w'ingrate: much we confess we ow
 To you, who this dear liberty bestow.
 At night they bid farewell. Their kisses greet
 80 The senseless Stones, with lips that could not meet
 When from th' approaching Morn the Stars withdraw
 And that the Sun had drnk the scorched dew,
 They at the usual Station meet again,
 And with soft murmurs mutually complain.

At last, resolve in silence of the night
 To steal away, and free themselves by flight;
 And, with their houses, to forsake the Town.
 Yet lest they so might wander up and down;
 To meet at Ninus Tomb they both agree,
 Under the shelter of a shady Tree.
 There a high Mulberry, full of white fruit,
 Hard by a living Fountain fixt his Root.
 The Sun, that seem'd too slow, his steeds bestows
 In restfull Seas: from Seas wisht Night arose.
 Then Thibe in the dark the doors unbarr'd;
 And slipping forth, unmiss'd by her Guard,
 Comes maskt to Ninus Tomb; there in the cold
 Sits underneath that Tree: Love made her bold.
 When (lo) a Lionness, smear'd with the blood
 Of late-slain Beeves, approach'd the neighbour Flood,
 To quench her thirst. Far from Moon-light 'spy'd,
 Swift to her flight into a Cave she guide.

Her mantle from her shoulders fell.
 As from the Well,
 Up to the rocky Mountain she withdraws,
 Found it, and tore it with her bloody jaws.
 When Pyramus, who came not forth so soon,
 Perceived by the glimpses of the Moon
 The footing of wild Beasts, his look grew pale.
 But when he spy'd her torn and bloody Veil;
 One night (said he) two Lovers shall destroy:
 She longer life deserved to enjoy.
 The guilt is mine: 'twas I (poor soul!) that slew thee,
 Who to a place so full of danger drew thee,
 Nor came before. You Lions, O descend
 From your aboads; a wretch in pieces rend,
 Condemned by his self-pronounced doom,
 And make your entralls my opprobrious Tomb.
 But Cowards wish to die. Her mantle he Carries along unto th' appointed Tree.
 There having kist, and washt it with his eyes;
 Take from our blood, said he, the double dyes.
 With that, his Body on his Sword he threw;
 Which from the reaking wound he dying drew.
 Now, on his back, up spun the blood in smok:
 As when a Spring-conducting pipe is broke,
 The waters at a little breach break out,
 And, hissing, through the airy Region spout.

125 The Mulberries their former white forsake,
And from his sprinkling bloud their crimson take.

Now she, who could not yet her fear remove,
Returns, for fear to disappoint her Love.
Her eager spirit seeks him through her eyes,

130 Who longs to tell of her escap'd surprise.
The place and figure of the Tree she knew;
Yet doubts, the berries having chang'd their hue.
Uncertain, the his panting lims deserv'd,
That struck the stained earth; and starts aside.

135 Box was not paler then her changed look:
And like the lightly-breath'd-on Sea she shook.
But when she knew 'twas he, (now dispossess'd
Of her amaze) she shrieks, beats her swollen breast,
Pulls off her hair, imbraces, softly rears

140 His hanging head, and fills his wound with tears.
Then, kissing his cold lips, Wo's me! (she said)
What cursed fate hath this division made?
O speak, my Pyramus. O look on me:
Thy dear, thy desperate Thiobe calls to thee.

145 At Thiobe's name he opens his dim eyes;
And having seen her, shuts them up, and dies.
But when his empty Scabbard she had spy'd,
And her known Robe, Unhappy man! she cry'd;
These wounds from love, from thine own hand pro
Nor is my hand too weak for such a deed, (ceed

150 My love as strong. This, this shall courage give,
To force that life which much disdains to live.
In death I'll follow thee; instyl'd by all,
The wretched Cause and Partner of thy Fall.
Whom Death, that had (alas!) alone the might
To pull thee from me, shall not disunite.

155 O you, our wretched Parents, (thus severe
To your own bloud,) my last Petition hear:
Whom constant love, whom death hath joy'd, interr,
Without your envy, in one Sepulcher.
And thou, O Tree, whose branches shade the slain,
Of both our slaughters bear the lasting stain.

160 In funeral habit ever cloath your brood,
A living Monument of our mixt bloud.
This said, his sword, yet reeking, she reverts,
And with a mortall wound her bosom pierc't.
The easie Gods unto her wish accord;
Their Parents also her desire afford.

The late-white Mulberries in black now mourn;
And what the fire had left, lay in one Urn.

Here ended she. Some intermission made,
Leucothoe (her sisters silent) said:

This Sun, who all directeth with his light,
Weak Love hath tam'd; his loves we now recite.
He first discover'd the Adultery
Of Mars and Venus, (nothing scapes his eye)
And in displeasure told to Juno's son
Their secret stealths, and where the deed was done.
His spirits faint, his hands could not sustain
The work in hand. Forthwith he forg'd a chain,
With nets of brass, that might the eye deceive,
(Less curious far the webs which Spiders weave)
Made pliant to each touch, and apt to close:
This he about the guilty bed bestows.

No sooner these Adulterers were met,
Then caught in his so strangely-forged net;
Who, struggling, in compell'd imbracements lay:
The Ivory doors then Vulcan doth display,
And calls the Gods. They shamefully lay bound.
Yet one, a wanton, wisht to be so found.
The heavenly dwellers laugh. This tale was told
Through all the Round, and mirth did long uphold.
Venus, incens'd, on him who this disclos'd
A memorable punishment impos'd.

And he, of late so tyrannous to love,
Love's tyranny in just exchange doth prove.
Hyperion's son, what boots thy piercing sight,
Thy feature, colour, or thy radiant light?
For thou, who earth inflamest with thy fires,
Art now thy self inflam'd with new desires.
Thy melting eyes alone Leucothoe view,
And give to her what to the World is due.
Now, in the East thou hastnest thy up-rise;
Now, slowly sett'st, even loth to leave the Skies.
And while that object thus exacts thy stay,
Thou addest hours unto the Winter's day.
Oft in thy face thy mind's disease appears,
Affrighting all the darkned World with fears.
Not Cynthia's interposed Orb doth move
These pale aspects; this colour springs from Love.
She all thy thoughts ingroft: nor didst thou care
For Clymene, for her who Circe bare,

For Rhodos, Clytie who in love abounds,
 Although despis'd, though tortur'd with two wounds,
 All, all were buried in Leucothoe,
 Born in sweet Saba, of Eurynome.

210 As she in beauty far surpast all other :
 So much the Daughter far surpast the Mother.
 Great Orchamus was father to the Maid,
 Who, seventh from Belus Priscus, Persia sway'd.
 In low Hesperian Vales those pastures are,

215 Where Phaeton horses on Ambrosia fare.
 There, tired with the travels of the day,
 They renovate what labour doth decay.
 Now, while celestial food their hunger feeds,
 And night in her alternate reign succeeds,
 In figure of Eurynome, the God
 Approach'd the chamber where his life abode.

220 He spinning by a Lamp Leucothoe found,
 With twice six hand-maids, who inclos'd her round.
 Then kissing her, (her Mother now by Art)
 I have (said he) a secret to impart :
 Maids, presently withdraw. They all obey'd.

225 He, after he had clear'd the chamber, said ;
 The tardie Year I measure : I am he
 Who see all Objects, and by whom all see ;
 The World's clear eye : by thy fair self I swear,
 I love thee above thought. She shook for fear ;
 Her Spindle and her Distaff from her fell :

230 And yet that fear became her wond'rous well.
 Then his own form and radiancy he took.
 Though with that unexpected presence strook,
 Yet vanquish'd, by his beauty, her complaint
 She laid aside, and suffered his constraint.
 This Clytie vext, (not less affectionate

235 Before to her) who with a rival's hate
 Divulg'd the quickly-spreading infamy,
 And to her Father doth the fact descry.
 Who stern and savage, shuts up all remorse
 From her that stood subdu'd, she said, by force ;
 And Sol to witness calls. He his dishonour

240 Interrs alive, and casts a Mount upon her.
Hyperion's son this batters with his rays,
 And for her re-ascent a breach displays :
 Yet could not she advance her heavy head,
 But life, too hasty, from her body fled,

5 Never did Thabys with such sorrow mourn
 Since wretched Phaeton the world did burn:
 Yet strives he with his influence to beget
 In her cold lims a life-revoking heat.
 But since the Fates such great attempts withstood,
 10 He steeps the place and body in a flood
 Of fragrant Nectar, much bewails her end,
 And sighing, said; Yet shalt thou heaven ascend,
 Forthwith, her body thaws into a dew:
 Which from the moistned earth an odour threw.
 15 Then through the Hill a Shrub of Frankincense
 Thrust up his crown, and took his root from thence.

Though Love might Clytie's sorrow have excus'd,
 Sorrow her tongue; Day's King her bed refus'd,
 She, with distracted passion, pines away,
 20 Dearesteth company; all night, all day,
 Disrobed, with her ruffled hair unbound,
 And wet with humour, sits upon the ground;
 For nine long days all sustenance forbears,
 Her hunger cloy'd with dew, her thirst with tears.
 Nor rose; but rivets on the God her eyes,
 25 And ever turns her face to him that flies.
 At length, to earth her stupid body cleaves;
 Her wan complexion turns to bloudless leaves,
 Yet streak'd with red: her perisht lims beget
 A flower, resembling the pale Violet;
 Which with the Sun, though rooted fast, doth move;
 30 And, being changed, changeth not her love.

Thus she. This wond'rous story caught their ears:
 To some the same impossible appears.
 Others, that all is possible, conclude,
 To true-styl'd Gods; but Bacchus they extrude
 All: whilst Alcithoe, call'd upon, doth run
 35 Her shuttle through the Web; and thus begun.
 T' omit the pastoral loves, to few unknown,
 Of young Idean Daphnis, turn'd to stone
 By that vext Nymph, who could not else assuage
 Her jealousy: such is a Lover's rage:
 40 And Scythin, who his nature innovates,
 Now male, now female, by alternate Fates:
 With Celmus turn'd into an Adamant,
 Who of his faith when little Jove might vaunt:
 The shorn Curetes, got by falling showers;
Crocus and Smilax, chang'd to pretty flowers,

I over.

I overpass ; and will your ears surprize
With sweet delight of unknown novelties.

- Then know how Salmacis infamous grew ;
 285 Whose too strong waves all manly strength undo,
 And mollifie, with their soul-softning touch :
 The cause unknown, their nature known too much.
 Th' Idean Nymphs nurs't in secure delight
 The son of Hermes and fair Aphrodite.
 290 His Father and his Mother in his look
 You might behold ; from whom his name he took.
 When Summers five he thrice had multiply'd,
 Leaving the fount-full Hills of foster Ide,
 He wandred through strange Lands, pleas'd with 295 Of forein streams ; toil less'n'ing with delight.
 The Lycian Cities past, he treads the grounds
 Of wealthy Caria, which on Lycia bounds.
 There lighted on a Pool, so passing clear,
 That all the glittering bottom did appear ;
 Invirion'd with no marish-loving Reeds,
 Nor piked Bull-rushes, nor barren weeds ;
 300 But living Turf upon the Border grew :
 Whose ever-Spring no blasting Winter knew.
 A Nymph this haunts, unpractis'd in the chace,
 To bend a Bow, or run a strite-full race.
 Of all the Water-Nymphs, this Nymph alone
 To nimble-footed Dian was unknown.
 305 Her Sisters oft would say, Fie, Salmacis,
 Fie, lazie sister, what a sloth is this ?
 Upon a Quiver or a Javelin seize,
 And with laborious hunting mix thine ease.
 On Quiver nor on Javelin would she seize,
 Nor with laborious hunting mix her ease.
 310 But now in her own Fountain baths her fair
 And shapfull lims, now kems her golden hair :
 Her self oft by that liquid mirrour drest ;
 There taking counsel what became her best :
 Her body, in transparent Robes array'd,
 Now on soft leaves or softer moss display'd :
 315 Oft gathers flowers ; so when she saw the Boy.
 Whom seen, forthwith she covers to enjoy ;
 And yet would not approach, though big with hast,
 Till neatly trickt, till all in order plac'd,
 Her love-inveigling looks set to insnare,
 Who merited to be reputed fair.

Sweet Boy, said she, well worthy the abode
 Of blest Celestials! if thou be a God,
 Then art thou Cupid; if of humane race,
 Happy the Parents whom thy person grace:
 Thy Sister, if thou hast a Sister, blest:
 Thy Nurse much more, who fed thee with her breast.
 But (O) no less then deify'd is she
 Whom Marriage shall incorporate to thee.
 If any such, let me this treasure steal:
 If not, be't I; and our dear Nuptials seal.
 This said, she held her peace. He blusht for shame,
 Not knowing love; whom shamefac'dness became.
 So Apples shew upon the Sunny side;
 So Ivory with rich Vermillion dy'd:
 So pure a red the silver Moon doth stain,
 When auxil'ary Brads resounds in vain.
 She earnestly intreats a sister's kiss:
 And now advancing to imbrace her bliss,
 He, struggling, said, Lascivious Nymph, forbear;
 Or I will quit the place, and leave you here.
 Fair Stranger, tim'rous Salmacis reply'd,
 'Tis freely yours: and therewith stept aside.
 Yet looking back, amongst the shrubby Trees
 She closely sculks, and crouches on her knees.
 The vacant Boy, now being left alone,
 Imagining he was observ'd by none,
 Now here now there about the margin trips,
 And in th' alluring waves his ancles dips.
 Caught with the water's flatt'ring temperature,
 He straight disrobes his body, (O, how pure!)
 His naked beauty Salmacis amaz'd,
 Who with unsatisfied longing gaz'd. (rour,
 Her sparkling eyes shoot flame through this sweet er-
 Much like the Sun reflected by a mirrour.
 Now she impatiently her hope delays;
 Now burns t' imbrace; now, half mad, hardly stays.
 He swiftly from the bank on which he stood,
 Clapping his body, leaps into the flood,
 And with his rowing arms supports his limbs:
 Which through the pure waves glister as he swims;
 Like Ivory statues which the life surpass,
 Or like a Lilly in a crystal glass.
 He's mine, the Nymph exclaim'd: who all unstript,
 And, as she spake, into the water skipt,

- Hanging about the neck that did resist,
 360 And with a maff'ring force th' unwilling kist;
 Now puts her hand beneath his scornful breast,
 Now every way invadeth the distressed,
 And wraps about the subject of her lust;
 Much like a Serpent by an Eagle trust'r,
 Which to his head and feet infettered clings,
 And wreaths her tail about his stretcht-out wings.
 365 So clasping Ivy to the Oak doth grow;
 And so the Polypus detains his foe.
 But Atlantiades, relentless coy,
 Still struggles, and resists her hop'd-for joy.
 370 Invested with her body; Fool, said she,
 Struggle thou mayst, but never shalt be free.
 O you who in immortal thrones reside,
 Grant that no day may ever us divide.
 Her wishes had their Gods. Ev'n in that space
 Their cleaving bodies mix; both have one face.
 375 As when we two divided Clens join,
 And see them grow together in one rine:
 So they, by such a strict imbracement glu'd,
 Are now but one, with double form indu'd.
 No longer he a Boy, nor she a Maid;
 But neither, and yet either, might be said.
 380 Hermaphroditus at himself admires;
 Who half a female from the Spring retires,
 His manly lims now softned, and thus prays,
 With such a voice as neither sex betrays:
 Swift Hermes, Apbrodite, him O hear,
 Who was your son, who both your names doth bear.
 385 May every maid that in this water swims
 Return half-woman, with infeebled lims.
 His gentle parents sign to his request,
 And with unknown receipts the Spring infest.
 Here they conclude; yet give their hands no rest,
 390 But Bacchus slight, and still prophane his Feast.
 Then suddenly harsh instruments surprize
 Their charged ears, not extant to their eyes.
 Sweet Myrrh and Saffron all the house perfume.
 Their Webs (past credit) flourish in the loom.
 395 The hanging wool to green-leav'd Ivy spreads,
 Part into Vines; the equal-twisted threads
 To branches run; buds from the distaff shoot,
 And with that purple paint their blushing fruit.

Now to the day succeeds that doubtful light
 50 Which neither can be call'd day nor night.
 The building trembles; torches of fat Pines
 Appear to burn; the room with flames shines,
 Fill'd with fantastical resemblances
 Of howling Beasts, whom blood and slaughter please
 55 The Sisters to the smoaky roof retire;
 And, there dispers'd, avoid both light and fire.
 Thus while they corners seek, thin films extend
 From lightened lims, with small beams inter-penn'd,
 But how their former shapes they did for-go,
 60 Concealing darkness would not let them know.
 Nor are these little Light-detecting things
 Born up with feathers, but transparent wings.
 Their voice befits their bodies, small and faint,
 Wherewith they harshly utter their complaint.
 These houses haunt, in night conceal their shame,
 65 And of the loved Evening take their name.

All Thebes now feared Bacchus celebrates,
 Whose wondrous pow'r his boasting Aunt relates.
 She only, of so many sisters, knew
 No grief as yet, but what from them she drew.
 70 An happy Mother, Wife to Atamas,
 Nurse to a God. These caus'd her to surpass
 The bounds of her felicities, and made
 Vext Juno storm; who to her self thus said:
 What? could that Strumpet's Brat the form dislouse
 Of poor Meonian Sailer's drencht in Seas?
 A Mother urge to murder her own Son?
 75 And wing the three Mineides that spun?
 Can I but un-revenged wrongs deplore?
 Must that suffice? and is our pow'r no more?
 He teacheth what to doe; learn of thy Foe:
 What Fury can, the wounds of Penthes show
 80 More then too much. Why should not Ino tread
 The path which late her frantick sisters led?
 A steep dark Cave, with deadly Yew repleat,
 Through silence leads to Hell's infernal seat.
 By this den, Sisy ejects a blasting fume:
 Here ghosts descend, whose bodies graves inhume.
 Amongst those thorns still Cold and Paleness dwell;
 The new-come ghosts nor know the way to Hell,
 Nor where the roomy Sygyan City stands,
 Or that dire Palace where black Dis commands.

- A thousand entries to this City guide;
 The gates still open stand on every side.
 440 And as all Rivers run into the Deep:
 So all unhoused souls do thither creep.
 Nor are they pestered for want of room;
 Nor can it be perceiv'd that any come.
 Here Shadows wander from their Bodies sent.
 Some plead, and some the Tyrant's Court frequent:
 445 Some in life-practis'd Arts imploy their times;
 Others are tortur'd for their former Crimes.
Saturnia stooping from her Throne of Air,
 (Her hate immortal) thither makes repair.
 As soon as she had entered the gate,
 The threshold trembled with her sacred weight.
 450 Still-waking Cerberus the Goddess's dreads,
 And barketh thrice at once with his three heads.
 She calls the Furies, Daughters to old Night,
 Implacable, and hating all delight.
 Before the doors of Adamant they sit,
 And there with combs their snaky curls unknit.
 455 When they through gloomy darkness did disclose
 That form of Heaven, the Goddesses arose.
 The Dungeon of the Damned this is nam'd.
 Here Tityus, for attempted Rape defam'd,
 Had his vast body on nine Acres spread,
 And on his heart a greedy Vulture fed.
 From Tantalus deceitfull water slips:
 And catcht-at fruit avoids his touched lips.
 460 Thou ever seekest, or roll'st up in vain
 A stone, O Sisyphus, to fall again.
Ixion, turn'd upon a restless wheel,
 With giddy head pursues his flying heel.
 The Belides, whom Kinsmens blood accuse,
 For ever draw the water which they lose.
 On all Saturnia frowns, but most of all
 465 At thee, Ixion; then a look lets fall
 On Sisyphus. And why (saïd she) remains
 This brother onely in perpetual pains;
 When haughty Athamas, whose thoughts despise
 Both Jove and me, abides in constant joys?
 Then tells the cause of her approach, her hate,
 470 And what she would, the fall of Cadmus state;
 That Athamas the Furies would distract,
 And urge him to some execrable fact.

Importunately he solicited,
 Commands, intreats, promises, with one breath.
 Incens'd Tisiphone her Tresses shakes,
 And tossing from her face the hissing Snakes,
 Thus said: You need not use long ambages;
 Suppose all done already that may please.
 Forlake this loathsome Kingdom, and repair
 To th' upper world's more comfortable air.
 Well-pleas'd Saturnia then to Heav'n withdrew:
 Whom first Thaumantian Iris purg'd with dew.
 Forthwith Tisiphone her garment takes,
 Dropping with bloud, and girt with knotted Snakes.
 About her head her bloody Torch she shook,
 And swiftly those accurs'd Abodes forsook.
 Still-fighting Sorrow, Horror, Trembling, Fear,
 And ghastly Madness, her associates were.
 The entred Palace groan'd; pale poison soils
 The polish'd doors; the frighted Sun recoils.
 Then Athamas and Ino, struck with dread
 And monstrous Apparitions, sought t' have fled.
 But stern Erynnis their escape withstands;
 And stretching out her Viper-grasping hands,
 Shook her dark brows. The troubled Serpents hiss:
 Some, falling on her shoulders, there untwist;
 Others upon her ugly breast descend,
 Spit poison, and their forked tongues extend.
 Two Adders from her crawling hair she drew;
 And those at Athamas and Ino threw.
 These up and down about their bosoms rowl;
 And with infus'd infection sad the soul.
 No wound upon their Bodies could be found:
 It was the Mind that felt the desperate wound.
 She brought besides from her abhorred home
 The surfeit of Echidna, with the foam
 Of hell-bred Cerberus, still-wandering Errour,
 Oblivion, Mischief, Tears, infernal Terroure,
 Distracted Fury, an Affection fixt
 On murder; all together ground, and mixt
 With bloud yet reeking, boil'd in hollow brass,
 And stirr'd with Hemlock. While sad Athamas
 And Ino quake, she pours into their breasts
 The ragefull poison; which their peace infests.
 Her flaming Torch then whisking in a round,
 (Whose circulary fire her conquest crown'd)

- To Pluto's empty regiment she makes
 A swift descent, and there ungirts her Snakes,
 Forthwith Aolides with Poison boils;
 To my Mates, he cries, here pitch your toils:
 Here late a Lionness by me was seen
 515 With her two whelps. With that pursues the Queen,
 And from her breast Learchus snatcht. The child
 Stretcht forth his little arms, and on him smil'd:
 Whom like a Sling about his head he swings,
 And cruelly against the pavement flings.
 The Mother, whether with her grief distraught,
 520 Or that the Poison on her senses wrought,
 Runs howling with her hair about her ears,
 And in bare arms her Melicerta bears;
 Cries, Eux Baoccha. Juno laugh't, and said,
 Thus art thou by thy Foster-child repaid.
 525 There is a Rock that over-looks the Main,
 Hollow'd by fretting Surges, sconc'd from rain;
 Whose craggy Brow to vaster Seas extends.
 This Ino (fury adding strength) ascends,
 Descending headlong, with the load she bears,
 530 And strikes the sparkling waves, that fall in tears.
 Then Venus, grieving at her Niece's Fate,
 Her Uncle thus intreats: O thou whose State
 Is next to Jove's, great Ruler of the Flood,
 My suit is bold, yet pity thou my blood,
 535 Now rossed in the deep Ionian Sea,
 And joyn them to thy watry Deities.
 Some favour of the Sea I should obtain,
 That am ingender'd of the foamy Main;
 Of which the acceptable name I bear.
 Neptune affords a favourable ear;
 540 Who what was mortal from their beings took:
 Then gave to either a Majestick look,
 In all their faculties divinely fram'd;
 And her Leucothea, him Palæmon nam'd.
 The Theban Ladies, who her steps pursu'd,
 Her last on the first Promontory view'd.
 545 Then, held for dead, with hair and garments rent,
 They beat their breasts, and Cadmus House lament.
 Of little Justice, and much Cruelty,
 All Juno tax. Endure (she said) shall I
 Such blasphemies? I'll make you monuments.
 550 Of my revenge. Threats usht their events,

When one, of all the most affectionate,
 Cry'd, O my Queen, I will partake thy Fate:
 And thought to leap into the roaring Floud;
 But could not move; her Feet fast fixed stood.
 Another, who her bosom meant to beat,
 Perceiv'd her stiffen'd Arms to lose their heat.
 By chance her Hand This stretcheth to the Main:
 Nor could her Hand, now stone, unstretch again,
 As She her violated Tresses tare,
 Her Fingers forthwith hardned in her hair.
 Their statnes now those several gestures bear,
 Wherein they formerly surprized were.
 Some, Fowls became, now call'd Cadmeides;
 Who with their light wings sweep those gulfy Seas.
 Little knew Cadmus that his Children reign'd
 In sacred Seas, and deathless states retain'd.
 Subdu'd with woes, with tragical events
 That had no end, and many dire ostents,
 He leaves his City, as not through his own,
 But by the fortune of the place or'ethrown;
 And with his Wife Hermione, long tost,
 At length arriveth at th' Illyrian Coast.
 Now spent with grief and age, whilst they relate
 Their former toils, and Familie's first fate;
 And was that Serpent sacred which I slew,
 (Said he) whose teeth into the Earth I threw
 (An uncouth Seed) when I from Sidon came?
 If this the vengefull Gods so much inflame,
 May I my Belly Serpent-like extend.
 His Belly lengthned e're his wish could end.
 Rough Scales upon his hardned outside grew;
 The blacks distinguished with drops of blue.
 Then, falling on his breast, his Thighs unite;
 And in a spiny progress stretcht out-right.
 His Arms (for Arms as yet they were) he spreads;
 And tears on Cheeks, that yet were humane, shed.
 Come, O sad Soul, said he, thy husband touch,
 Whilst I am I, or part of me be such:
 Shake hands, while yet I have an Hand to shake;
 Before I totally indue a Snake.
 His Tongue was yet in motion, when it cleft
 In two: forthwith of humane speech bereft,
 He hest, when he his sorrows sought to vent,
 The onely language now which Nature lent.

- 590 His Wife her naked bosom beats, and cries,
 Stay, Cadmus, and put off these prodigies.
 O strange! where are thy feet, hands, shoulders, breast?
 Thy colour, face, and (while I speak) the rest?
 You Gods, why also am not I a Snake?
- 595 He lickt her willing lips even as the spake;
 Into her well-known bosom glides; her waste
 And yielding neck with loving twines imbrac't.
 Amazement all the standers by possest;
 While glittering combs their slippery heads invest.
- 600 Now are they two; who crept, together chain'd,
 Till they the covert of the Wood obtain'd.
 These gentle Dragons, knowing what they were,
 Doe hurt to no man, nor man's presence fear.
 Yet were those sorrows by their Daughter's son
- 605 Much comforted, who vanquisht India won;
 To whom th' Achaians Temples consecrate;
 Divinely magnify'd through either State.
 Alone Acrisius Abantiades,
 Though of one Progeny, dissents from these:
 Who from th' Argolian City made him fly,
 And manag'd arms against a Deity.
- 610 Nor him, nor Perseus he for Jove's doth hold;
 (Begot on Danae in a show'r of gold)
 Yet straight repents (so prevalent is truth)
 Both to have forc'd the God, and doom'd the Youth.
 Now is the one inthroned in the skies:
 The other through Air's empty Region flies;
- 615 And bears along the memorable spoil
 Of that new Monster, conquer'd by his toil.
 And as he o're the Lybian Desarts flew,
 The blood that dropt from Gorgon's head straight grew
 To various Serpents, quickned by the ground.
- 620 With these those much infested Climes abound.
 Hither and thither, like a cloud of rain,
 Born by cross winds, he cuts the airy Main,
 Far-distant earth beholding from on high,
 And over all the ample World doth fly:
- 625 Thrice saw cold Arctos, thrice to Cancer prest;
 Oft hurried to the East, oft to the West.
 And now, not trusting to approached night,
 Upon th' Hesperian Continent doth light;
 And craves some rest, till Lucifer displays
- 630 Aurora's blush, and the Apollo's rays.

Huge-statur'd Atlas Japetomides

Here sway'd the utmost bounds of Earth and Seas ;
Where Titan's panting Steeds his Chariot steep,
And bathe their fiery feet-locks in the Deep.

635 A thousand Herds, as many Flocks, he fed
In those large Pastures, where no neighbours tread.
Here to their Tree the shining branches sute,
To them their Leaves, to those the Golden Fruit.
Great King, said Perseus, if high birth may move

640 Respect in thee, behold the son of Jove :
If admiration, then my Acts admire,
Who rest and hospitable Rites desire.
He, mindfull of this prophecy, of old
By sacred Themis of Parnassus told ;
In time thy Golden fruit a prey shall prove,

645 O Japet's son, unto the son of Jove ;
This fearing, he his Orchard had inclos'd
With solid Cliffs, that all access oppos'd :
The Guard whereof a monstrous Dragon held,
And from his Land all Foreiners expell'd.
Be gone, said he, for fear thy glories prove

650 But counterfeit, and thou no son to Jove.
Then adds uncivil violence to threats.
With strength the other seconds his intreats,
In strength inferiour : Who so strong as he ?
Since courtesie nor any worth in me,
Vext Perseus said, can purchase my regard ;
Yet from a guest receive thy due reward.

655 With that, Medusa's ugly head he drew,
His own reversed. Forthwith Atlas grew
Into a Mountain equal to the Man :
His hair and beard to Woods and Bushes ran ;
His arms and shoulders into ridges spread ;
And what was his, is now the Mountain's head :
660 Bones turn to stones ; and all his parts extrude
Into an huge prodigious altitude,
(Such was the pleasure of the ever-blest)
Whereon the Heav'ns with all their tapers rest.

Hippetades in hollow Rocks did close
665 The strife-full Winds : bright Lucifer arose,
And rou'd up Labour. Perseus, having ty'd
His wings t' his feet, his faulchion to his side,
Sprung into air : below, on either hand,
Innumerable Nations left : the Land

- Of Aethiop and the Cephean fields survey'd ;
 670 There where the innocently-wretched Maid
 Was for her Mother's proud impiety
 By unjust Ammon sentenced to die.
 Whom when the Hero saw to hard Rocks chain'd,
 But that warm tears from charged eye-springs drain'd,
 And light winds gently fann'd her fluent hair,
 675 He would have thought her Marble. E're aware
 He fire attracteth ; and, astonisht by
 Her beauty, had almost forgot to fly.
 He lighting said ; O fairest of thy kind,
 (More worthy of those bands which Lovers bind,
 Then these rude gyves,) the Land by thee renown'd ;
 680 Thy name, thy birth declare, and why thus bound.
 At first the silent Virgin was afraid
 To speak t'a Man, and modestly had made
 A Vizard of her hands, but they were ty'd :
 Yet, what she could, her tears their fountains hide.
 685 Still urg'd, lest she should wrong her innocence,
 As if asham'd to utter her offence,
 Her Countrey she discovers, her own name,
 Her beauteous Mother's confidence, and blame.
 All yet untold, the Waves began to roar :
 Th'apparent Monster (hast'ning to the shoar)
 690 Before his breast the broad-spread Sea up-bears :
 The Virgin shrieks : her parents see their fears.
 Both mourn, both wretched : (but she justly so :)
 Who bring no aid, but ecstasies of wo,
 With tears that suit the time ; who take the leave
 They'r loth to take, and to her body cleave.
 695 You for your grief may have, the stranger said,
 A time too long : short is the hour of aid.
 If sought by me, Jove's son, in fruitfull gold,
 Begot on Danae, through a brazen Hold,
 Who conquer'd Gorgon with the snaky hair,
 700 And boldly glide through uninclosed air ;
 Me for your son you surely would prefer.
 Adde to th's worth, that to deliver her
 I'll try : (so favour me the Powr's divine)
 That she, sav'd by my valour, may be mine.
 They give consent, intreat what he doth offer :
 705 And farther, for a Dowre their Kingdom profer.
 Lo, as a Gally with fore-fixed prow
 (Row'd by the sweat of Slaves) the Sea doth plow :

- Even so the Monster furroweth with his breast
The foaming flood, and to the near Rock prest;
Not farther distant then a Man might sling
- 10 A way-inforcing Bullet from a sling.
Forthwith the youthfull issue of rich Show'rs,
Earth pushing from him, to the blue sky towrs.
The furious Monster eagerly doth chase
His shadow, gliding on the Sea's smooth face:
And as Jove's Bird, when she from high surveys
- 15 A Dragon basking in Apollo's rays,
Descends unseen, and through his necks blue scales
(To shun his deadly teeth) her talons nails :
So swiftly stoops high-pitcht Inachides
Through singing air : then on his back doth seize ;
- 20 And near his right fin sheaths his crooked sword
Up to the hilts ; who, deeply wounded, roar'd,
Now capers in the air, now dives below
The troubled waves, now turns upon his foe ;
Much like a chased Boar, whom eager Hounds-
Have at a Bay, and terrifie with sounds.
He with swift wings his greedy jaws avoids :
- 25 Now with his Faulchion wounds his scaly sides ;
Now, his shell-rough-cast back ; now, where the tail
Ends in a Fish, or parts expos'd t' assail.
A stream mixt with his bloud the Monster flings-
From his wide throat, which wets his heavy wings :
- 30 Nor longer dares the wary Youth rely
On their support. He sees a Rock hard by,
Whose top above the quiet waters stood,
But underneath the wind-incensed flood.
There lights ; and, holding by the Rock's extent,
His oft-thrust sword into his bowels sent.
- 35 The shoar rings with th' applause that fills the sky.
Then Cepheus and Cassiope, with joy,
Salute him for their son ; whom now they call
The Saviour of their House, and of them all.
Up came Andromeda, freed from her chains ;
The cause and recompence of all his pains.
- 40 Mean-while he waltheth his victorious hands
In cleansing waves : and, lest the beachy Sands
Should hurt the Snaky head, the ground doth strew
With leaves, and twigs that under water grew ;
Whereon Medusa's ugly face he lays.
The green, yet juicy and attractive, forays

- 745 From the toucht Monster stiffning hardnes took,
And their own native pliancy forsook.
The Sea-Nymphs this admired wonder try
On other sprigs, and in the issue joy:
They sow again their Seeds upon the Deep.
- 750 The Coral now that property doth keep,
Receiving hardnes from felt air alone;
Beneath the Sea a twig, above, a stone.
Forthwith three Altars he of Turf erects,
To Hermes, Jove, and her who War affects.
Minerva's on the right, on the left hand
- 755 Stood Mercurie's: Jove's in the midst did stand.
To Mercury a Calf they sacrifice;
To Jove, a Bull; a Cow to Pallas dies.
Then takes Andromeda, the full reward
Of so great worth, with Dow'r of less regard.
Now Love and Hymen urge the Nuptial bed:
The sacred Fires with rich perfumes are fed;
- 760 The house hung round with Garlands; every-where
Melodious Harps and Songs salute the ear,
Of jocund mirth the free and happy signs.
With Doors display'd the golden Palace shines.
The Cephean Nobles and each stranger Guest
Together enter to this sumptuous Feast.
- 765 The Banquet done, with generous Wines they chear
Their heightned spirits. Perseus longs to hear
Their fashions, manners, and original:
Who by Lyncides is inform'd of all.
This told, he said, Now tell, O valiant Knight,
- 770 By what felicity of force, or sleight,
You got this purchase of the snaky hairs.
Then Akantiades forthwith declares,
How under frosty Ailas clifflie side
There lay a Plain, with Mountains fortify'd;
- 775 In whose access the Phorides did lie,
Two sisters: both of them had but one eye.
How cunningly thereon his hands he laid,
As they from one another it convey'd.
Then through blind waists and rocky forests came
To Gorgon's house: the way unto the same
- 780 Beset with forms of men and beasts, alone
By seeing of Medusa turn'd to stone:
Whose horrid shape securely he did eye,
In his bright target's clear refulgency.

- 785 And how her head he from her shoulders took,
 E're heavy sleep her Snakes and her forsook.
 Then told of Pegasus, and of his brother, (there)
 Sprung from the bloud of their new-slaught'ed mo.
 Adding the perils past in his long way;
 What seats, what soits his eyes below survey;
 And to what stars his lofty pitch ascends.
 Yet long afore their expectation ends.
 790 One Lord among the rest would gladly know,
 Why Serpents onely on her head did grow.
 Stranger, said he, since this that you require
 Deserves the knowledge, take what you desire.
 Her passing beauty was the onely scope
 795 Of mens affections, and their envy'd hope.
 Yet was not any part of her more rare
 (So say they who have seen her) then her hair.
 Her Neptune in Minerva's Fane comprest.
Jove's daughter with the Aegis on her breast
 800 Hid her chaste blushes: and due vengeance takes,
 In turning of the Gorgon's hair to Snakes.
 Who now, to make her enemies afraid,
 Bears in her shield the Serpents which she made.

OVID'S METAMORPHOSIS.

THE FIFTH BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

*The Gorgon seen, Cephene Statues grow :
So Phineus, Proetus, Polydect, the foe
To Perseus praise. The fountain Hippocrene
By horse-hoof rais'd. The Muses chang'd to Nine
Rape-flying Birds ; Pierides to Pies.
The Gods, by Typhon chas'd, themselves disguise.
Sad Cyane into a Fountain flows.
Th' ill-natur'd Boy a spotted Stellion grows.
Lov'd Arethusa thaws into a Spring.
Acalaphus an Owl. Light feathers wing
The sweet-tongu'd Sirens, who on waters mourn.
Stern Lyncus Ceres to a Lynx doth turn.*

WHilst the Danaïan Hero this relates,
Amidst th' Assembly of the Cephene States,
Exalted voices through the Palace ring :
Not like to theirs who at a marriage sing ;
But such as menace war. The Nuptial Feast,
Thus turn'd to tumult, to the life exprest
A peacefull Sea, whose brow no frown deforms,
Straight ruffled into billows by rude storms.
First Phineus, the rash Authour of this war,
Shaking a Launce, began the deadly jar.
Lo, I the Man that will upon thy life
Revenge, said he, the rapture of my Wife.

Nor shall thy wings, nor Jove in forged gold,
 Work thy escape. About to throw; O hold,
 Perplexed Cepheus cries: what wilt thou do?
 What fury, frantick brother, tempts thee to
 So foul a fact? Is this the recompence
 For such high merit? for her life's defence?
 Not Perses, but th' incens'd Nereides,
 But horned Ammon, and the wrath of Seas,
 (That Ork that sought my bowels to devour)
 Have snatcht her from thee, ravisht in the hour
 Of her exposure. But thy cruelty
 Perhaps was well content that she should die,
 To ease thy loss with ours. May't not suffice,
 That she was bound in chains before thine eyes;
 That thou, her Uncle and her Husband, brought
 Her peril no prevention, nor none sought;
 But that another's aid thou must envy,
 And claim the Trophies of his Victory?
 Which if of such esteem, thou shouldst have strain'd
 T' have forc'd them from those Rocks, where lately
 Let him, who did enjoy them; nor exact (chain'd.
 What is his due by merit and compact.
 Nor think we Perses before thee prefer;
 But him 'fore so abhorr'd a sepulcher.
 He, without answer, rowling to and fro
 His eies on either, doubts at which to throw;
 And pausing, his ill-armed Launce at length
 At Perses hurls, with rage-redoubled strength.
 Fixt in the bed-stock; up fierce Perses starts,
 And his retorted Spear at Phineus darts;
 Who suddenly behind an Altar steps:
 An Altar vengeance from the wicked kept.
 And yet in Rhætus brow the weapon stuck,
 He fell: the steel out of his skull they pluck:
 He spurns the Earth, and stains the board with blood.
 With that, the multitude, with fury wood,
 Their Launces fling; and some there be who cry,
 That Cepheus and his son-in-law should die.
 But Cepheus wisely quits the clamorous Hall;
 And faith and justice both to record call.
 With all the Hospitable Gods, that he
 Was from this execrable uproar free.
 The warlike Pallas, present, with her shield
 Protects her brother, and his courage steel'd.

METAMORPHOSIS,

- Young Indian Atys by ill hap was there,
 Whom, Ganges got, Limniace did bear
 In her clear Waves; his beauty excellent,
 Which care and costly ornaments augment;
 50 Who scarce had fully sixteen Summers told;
 Clad in a Tyrian mantle, fring'd with gold.
 About his neck he wore a carkenet:
 His hair with Ribbond bound, and Odours wet.
 Although he cunningly a Dart could throw;
 55 Yet with more cunning could he use his Bow.
 Which now a-drawing with a tardy hand;
 Quick Perseus from the Altar snatcht a Brand,
 And dasht it on his face. Out start his eyes;
 And through his flesh the shiv'ed bones arise.
 60 When Syrian Lycabas his Atys view'd
 Shaking his formless looks, with bloud imbrew'd,
 To him in strictest bonds of friendship ty'd,
 And one who could not his affection hide;
 After he had his tragedy bewail'd,
 Who through the bitter wound his soul exhal'd,
 65 He took the Bow which erst the Youth did bend,
 And said, With me, thou Murderer, contend;
 Nor longer glory in a Boy's sad fate,
 Which stains thy actions with deserved hate.
 Yet speaking, from the string the arrow flew:
 Which took his pledged Robe as he withdrew.
Acrisio iates upon him p'est,
 70 And sheath'd his Harpy in his groaning breast.
 Now dying, he for Atys looks, with eyes
 That swim in night, and on his bosom lies:
 Then chearfully expires his parting breath,
 Rejoycing to be join'd to him in death.
Phorbas the Syennite, Methion's son,
 75 With him the Libyan Amphimedon,
 Eager of combate, slipping in the bloud
 That drencht the pavement, fell: his sword withstood
 Their re-ascent, which through the short-ribs smote
Amphimedon, and cut the other's throat.
 80 Yet Perseus could not venture to invade
 The Halberrier Phorbas with his blade;
 But in both hands, a Goblet high, in both
 And massie, took, which at his head he tost.
 He vomits clotted bloud; and, rumbling down,
 Knocks the hard pavement with his dying crown.

35 Then Polydemon, (sprung from Goddess-born
Semiramis,) Phlegyas, the unshorn
Helice, Clitus, Scythian Abaris,
 And brave Lycetus (old Spercheus blis)
 Fell by his hand : whose feet in triumph tread
 Upon the slaughtered bodies of the dead.
 But Phineus, fearing to confront his Foe
 In close assault, far off a dart doth throw ;
 90 Which, led by error, did on Idas light,
 A Neuter, who in vain forbore to fight.
 He, sternly frowning, thus to Phineus spake :
 Since you me an unwilling party make,
 Receive the enemy whom you have made ;
 That by a wound a wound may be repay'd.
 95 About to hurl the Dart drawn from his side,
 With loss of blood he faints, and falling dy'd.
 Then great Odytes fell by Clymen's sword ;
 Next to the King, the greatest Cephen Lord.
Hypseus slew Protenor ; Lyncides
Hypseus. Old Emathion fell with these,
 100 Who fear'd the Gods, and favoured the right.
 He, whom old age exempted from the fight,
 Fights with his tongue ; himself doth interpose,
 And deeply execrates their wicked blows.
Cromis, as he imbrac'd the Altar, lopt
 His shaking head, which on the Altar dropt :
 105 Whose half-dead tongue yet curses ; who expires
 His righteous soul amidst the sacred Fires.
 Then Broteas and Ammon Phineus slew,
 Who from one womb at once their being drew :
 Invincible with hurl-bats, could they quell
 The dint of swords. Near these Alphitus fell,
 110 The Priest of Ceres, with a Miter crown'd,
 Which to his Temples a white fillet bound.
 And next Lampetides, whose pleasant wit
 Detested discord, in soft peace more fit
 To sing unto his tunefull Lyre, now prest
 With Songs to celebrate the nuptial Feast.
 When Pettalus at him, who stood far off,
 115 With his defenceless Harp, strikes with this scoff ;
 Go, sing the rest unto the Ghosts below :
 And pierc'd his Temples with a deadly blow.
 His dying fingers warble in his fall :
 And then, by chance, the Song was tragical.

This

- This unreveng'd Lycermas could not brook,
 120 But from the door's right side a Leaver took,
 And him between the head and shoulders knocks,
 Down falls he, like a sacrificed Ox.
Ciniphean Palates then sought to seize
 Upon the left : when fierce Marmorides
 125 His hand nail'd to the door-post with a Spear ;
 Whose side stern Abax pierc'd as he stuck there.
 Nor could he fall, but giving up the ghost,
 Hung by the hand against the smeared post.
Melanem then, of Perseus party, fell ;
 And Dorilas, whose riches did excell :
 130 In Nasamon none then he more great
 For large possessions, and huge hoards of Wheat.
 The steel stuck in his groin, which death pursu'd :
 Whom Halcyonem of Bactria view'd
 (The Authour of the wound) as he did rowl
 His turn'd-up eyes, and sigh'd out his soul :
 135 For all thy land, said he, by this divorce
 Receive thy length : and left his bloudless coarſe.
 The Spear revengefull Abanti'des drew
 From his warm wound, and at the Thrower threw :
 Which doth his noſtrils in the miſt divide,
 And, paſſing through, appear'd on either ſide.
 140 Whiſt Fortune crown'd him, Clytus he confounds
 And Danw, of one womb, with different wounds.
 Through Clytus thighs a ready dart he caſt ;
 Another 'twixt the jaws of Danw paſt.
Mindeſian Celadon and Aſter ſlew,
 145 His father doubtfull, gotten on a few :
Echion, late well-ſeen in things to come,
 Now overtaken by an unknown doom :
Thoactes, Phinem Squire, his ſaulchion try'd ;
 And ſell Agyrtes, that ſoul parricide.
 Yet more remain'd then were already ſpent :
 For all of them to murder one conſent.
 150 The bold Conſpiratours on all ſides fight ;
 Impugning promiſe, merit, and his right.
 The vainly-pious Father ſides with th' other ;
 With him the frighted Bride, and penſive Mother :
 Who fill the Court with out-cries, by the ſound
 Of clashing Arms and dying ſcreeches drown'd.
 155 Bellona the polluted floor imbrews
 With ſtreams of bloud, and horrid war renews.

Falſe Phineus with a thouſand in a ring
 Begirt the Hero; who their Launces ſling
 As thick as Winter's hail, that blind his ſight,
 Sing in his ears, and round about him light.

60 His guarded back he to a pillar ſets,
 And with undaunted force confronts their threats.

The right Nabathean Ethem ply'd.

As when a Tiger, pincht with famine, hears

65 Two bellowing Herds within one vale, forbears,
 Nor knows on which to ruſh, as being loth
 To leave the other, and would fall on both:
 So Persens which to ſtrike uncertain proves;
 Then daunted Molpens with a wound removes;
 Contented with his ſight, in that the rage
 Of fierce Ethem did his force ingage:

70 Who at his neck uncircumſpectly ſtruck,
 And his keen ſword againſt the pillar broke.
 The blade from unrelenting ſtone rebounds,
 And in his throat th' unhappy owner wounds.
 Yet was not that enough to work his end,
 Who fearfully doth now his arms extend

75 For pity unto Persens, all in vain,
 Who thruſt him through with his Cyllenian Skain.

But when he ſaw his valour over-ſway'd

By multitude, I muſt, ſaid he ſeek aid

(Since you your ſelves compell me) from my foe :

80 Friends, turn your backs. Then Gorgon's head doth ſhow.
 Some others ſeek, ſaid Theſſalus, to fright
 With this thy Monster; and with all his might
 A deadly dart endeavour'd to have thrown:
 But in that poſture became a ſtone.

Next, Amphix, full of ſpirit, forward preſt,

85 And thruſt his ſword at bold Lyncides breſt:

When in the paſs his fingers ſtupid grow,

Nor had the pow'r of moving to or fro.

But Nileus (he who with a forged ſtyle

Vaunted to be the ſon of ſeven-fold Nile,

And bare ſeven ſilver Rivers in his ſhield,

Diſtinctly waving through a golden field)

90 To Persens ſaid; Behold from whence we ſprung.

To ever ſilent ſhadows bear along

This comfort of thy death, that thou didſt die

By ſuch a brave and high-born enemy.

- His speech quite faultred in the latter clause :
 The yet-unfinisht sound stuck in his jaws ;
 Who gaping stood as he would something say :
 195 And so had done, if words had found a way.
 These Eryx blames ; 'Tis your faint souls that dead
 Your powers, saith he, and not the Gorgon's head.
 Rush on with me, and prostrate with deep wounds
 This Youth, who thus with Magick arms confounds.
 Then rushing on, the ground his footsteps stay'd,
 Now mutely fixt, an armed Statue made.
 200 These suffer'd worthily. One who did fight
 For Perseus, bold Aconteus, at the sight
 Of Gorgon's Snakes, abortive Marble grew.
 On whom Astyages in fury flew
 As if alive, with his two-handed blade ;
 Which shrilly twang'd, but no incision made.
 205 Who, whilst he wonders, the same nature took ;
 And now his Statue hath a wondring look.
 It were too tedious for me to report
 Their names who perisht of the vulgar sort.
 Two hundred scap'd the fury of the fight :
 210 Two hundred turn to stone at Gorgon's sight.
 Now Phineus his unjust commotion rues :
 What should he doe ? the senseless shapes he views
 Of his known friends, which differing figures bore,
 And doth by name their several aids implore.
 And yet not trusting to his eyes alone,
 The next he toucht, and found it to be stone.
 Then turns aside, and now a penitent,
 215 With suppliant hands, and arms obliquely bent,
 O Perseus, thine, said he, thine is the day :
 Remove this Monster ; hence, O hence convey
Medusa's ugly looks, or what more strange,
 Which humane bodies into marble change.
 Not hate, not thirst of rule begot this strife :
 I onely fought to re-obtain my Wife.
 220 Thine is the plea of Merit ; mine, of Time :
 Yet in contending I confess my crime.
 For life (O chief of men) I onely sue :
 Afford me that ; the rest I yield to you.
 Thus he, not daring to revert his eyes
 On him whom he intreats : who thus replies ;
 225 Faint-hearted Phineus, what I can afford,
 (A gift of worth to such a fearfull Lord)

Take courage, and persuade thy self I will.
 No wounding sword thy blood shall ever spill.
 Moreover, that I may thy wish prevent,
 Here will I fix thy lasting monument :

That thou by her thou lov'st mayst still be seen,
 And with her Spouse's image chear our Queen.
 Then on that side the Gorgon's head doth place,
 To which the Prince had turn'd his trembling face.
 And as from thence his eyes he would have thrown,
 His neck grew stiff, his tears congeal to stone.
 With fearfull suppliant look, submissive hands,
 And gully countenance, the Statue stands.

Victorious Abantiades now hies
 To his native City, with the rescu'd prize.
 There vengeance takes on Prætus, and restor'd
 His Grand-father ; whose wrongs redress implor'd.
 For Prætus had by force of Arms expell'd
 His brother, and usurped Argos held.

But him nor Arms nor Bulwarks could protect Against the snaky Monster's grim aspect.

Yet not the vertue of the Youth, which thone
 Through so great toil, nor sorrows undergone,
 With thee, O Polydectes, King of small
 Sea-girt Seriphus, could prevail at all.
 Endless thy wrath, thy hate inexorable,
 Detracting, and condemning for a fable
Medusa's death. The moved Youth replies,
 The truth your self shall see : Friends, shut your eyes.
 Then represents Medusa to his view :
 Who presently a bloudless Statue grew.

Thus long Tritonia to her Brother cleaves :
 Then in a hollow cloud Seriphus leaves,
 (Cyprus and Gyaros on the right-hand side)
 And o're the toiling Seas her course apply'd
 To Thebes, and Virgin Helicon ; there stay'd,
 And thus unto the learned Sisters said :

The fame of your new Fountain, rais'd by force
 Of that swift-winged Medusean horse,
 Me hither drew, to see the wondrous Floud,
 Who saw Him issue from his Mother's bloud.

Goddess, Urania answered, what cause
 So-ever you to this our Mansion draws,
 You are most welcome. What you heard is true :
 And from that Pegasus this Fountain grew,

Then

Then Pallas to the sacred Spring convey'd.

Sh' admires the waters by the horse-hoof made ;

265 Surveys their high-grown groves, cool caves,

And meadows painted with all sorts of flow'rs :

Then happy styles she the Mæonides,

Both for their Arts, and such abodes as these.

O heav'nly Virgin, one of them reply'd,

270 Most worthy our Society to guide,

It so your active vertue did not move

To greater deeds ; deserv'dly you approve

Our studies, pleasant seat, and happy state,

Were we secure from what we chiefly hate.

But nothing is unlawfull to the lewd :

And Maids by nature are with fear indu'd.

The dire Pyreneus still invades my sight ;

275 Nor have I yet recover'd that affright.

He Daulis with all Phocis had obtain'd

By Thracian Arms, and there unjustly reign'd.

Bound for Parnassus Temple us he spies ;

And with false zeal adores our Deities.

280 Mæonides, saith he, (he knew us well)

While sad stars govern, and show'rs fall, (then fell

By chance a mighty show'r) vouchsafe, I pray,

Beneath the shelter of my roof to stay :

The Gods have entred humble Cottages.

Urg'd by the weather and such words as these,

We to his importunity assent ;

And yet no farther then the Lobby went.

285 It now held up ; the vanquish'd South-winds fly

Before the North, which purge the dusky sky.

Prest to depart, he shuts the door, prepares

To offer force : with wings we scape his snares.

He presently the highest tow'r ascends,

And, as he would have flown, his body bends.

290 The way you go, said he, will I pursue ;

And from the battlements himself he threw.

Who, falling, strikes the earth with dash-out brains,

Which with his wicked blood he dying stains.

The Muse yet spake, when wings were heard to clatter

295 And from high trees saluting voices chatter.

Jove's daughter wonders, and inquires from whence

Those voices came including humane sense.

Not Men, but nine all-imitating Pies,

Bewailing their deserved destinies,

The Goddess to th' admiring Goddess said :
 They, foil'd by us, by us were thus repaid.
Pierus, who rich Pella held by lot,
 These on Pæonian Eupippe got.
 Nine times she on Lucina call'd aloud.
 The foolish Sisters, of their number proud,
 Through all Æmenia and Achaia came ;
 And thus uncivilly they strife proclaim.
Thespiades, th' unlearned multitude
 No more with your vain harmony delude ;
 But cope with us, (if hope excite you will)
 As many, yet unmatched for voice or skill.
 Surrender you to us, if we excell,
Hyantian Aganip and Gorgon's Well :
 Th' Emathian Woods to snowy Pæone
 Shall pay our loss. The Nymphs our judges be.
 A shame it was to strive : more shame it were
 To yield. The Nymphs by their own rivers swear,
 And sit on benches made of living stone.
 Then, un-elected, rudely steps forth one,
 Who sung the Giants war : their feigned acts
 She magnifies, and from the Gods detracts.
 How Typhon, from earth's gloomy intrails rais'd,
 Struck all their pow'rs with fear : who fled amaz'd,
 Till Ægypt's scorched soil them weary hides,
 And wealthy Nile, who in seven chanel glides.
 That thither Earth-born Typhon them pursu'd :
 Whenas the Gods concealing shapes indu'd.
Jove turn'd himself, she said, into a Ram :
 From whence the horns of Libyan Ammon came.
Bacchus a Goat, Apollo was a Crow,
Phæbe a Cat, Jove's wife a Cow of snow :
Venus a Fish, a Stork did Hermes hide.
 And still her voice unto her Harp apply'd.
 Then call they us. But ours perhaps to hear,
 Nor leisure serves you, nor is't worth your ear.
 Doubt not, said Pallas, orderly repeat
 Your long'd-for Verse ; and takes a shady seat.
 Then she ; On one we did the task impose :
Calliope, with Ivy crown'd, up-rose ;
 Who with her thumb first tun'd the quav'ring strings,
 And then this Ditty to the musick sings.
 The glebe with crooked plough first Ceres rent ;
 First gave us corn, a better nourishment ;

- First Laws prescrib'd: all from her bounty sprung,
 By me the Goddess Ceres shall be sung.
 Would we could Verses worthy her rehearse:
- 345 For she is more then worthy of our Verse.
Trinacria was on wicked Typhon thrown,
 Who underneath the Island's weight doth groan;
 That durst affect the Empire of the skies.
 Oft he attempteth, but in vain, to rise.
- 350 Ausonian Pelorus his right hand
 Down weighs; Pachyne on the left doth stand:
 His legs are under Lilybeum spread;
 And Aetna's bases press his horrid head.
 Where, lying on his back, his jaws expire
 Thick clouds of dust, and vomit flakes of fire.
 Ofttimes he struggles with his load below,
- 355 And Towns and Mountains labours to ore-throw.
 Earth quakes therewith: the King of shadows dread
 For fear the ground should split above their heads,
 And let in Day, t' affright the trembling Ghosts.
 For this, he from his silent Empire posts,
- 360 Drawn by black horses, tracing all the Round
 Of rich Sicilia; but no breaches found.
 Him Erycina from her Mount survey'd,
 (Now fearless) and, her Son imbracing, said;
- 365 My arms, my strength, my glory, for my sake,
 O Cupid, thy all-conquering weapons take,
 And fix thy winged arrows in his heart,
 Who rules the triple world's inferiour part.
 The Gods, even Jove himself, the God of Waves,
- 370 And who illustrates Earth, have been thy slaves.
 Shall Hell be free? Thine and thy mother's Sway
 Inlarge, and make th' infernal Powers obey.
 Yet we (such is our patience) are despis'd
 In our own heaven, and all our force unpriz'd.
- 375 Seest thou not Pallas, and the Queen of Night,
 Far-darting Dian, how my worth they slight?
 And Ceres daughter will a Maid abide,
 If we permit; for she affects their pride.
 But if thou favour our joynt Monarchy,
 Thy Uncle to the Virgin-Goddess tie.
- Thus Venus. He his Quiver doth unclose,
 380 And one out of a thousand arrows chose
 At her arbitrement: a sharper head
 None had, more ready, or that surer sped.

Then bends his bow. The string t'his ear arrives,
 And through the heart of Dis the arrow drives.
 35 Not far remov'd from Enna's high-built wall,
 A Lake there is which men Pergusa call.
Cayster's slowly-gliding waters bear
 Far fewer singing Swans then are heard there.
 Woods crown the Lake, and cloath it round about 90 With leafy veils, which Phæbus beams keep out.
 The Trees create fresh air, th' Earth various flowers :
 Where heat and cold th' eternal Spring devours.
 Whilst in this grove Proserpina disports,
 Or Violets pull, or Lillies of all sorts ;
 And whilst she strove with childish care and speed
 To fill her lap, and others to exceed ;
 95 Dis saw, affected, carried her away,
 Almost at once. Love could not brook delay.
 The sad-fac'd Goddess cries (with fear appall'd)
 To her Companions ; oft her Mother call'd.
 And as she tore th' adornment of her Hair,
 Down fell the flow'rs which in her lap she bare.
 100 And such was her sweet Youth's simplicity,
 That their loss also made the Virgin cry.
 The Ravisher flies on swift wheels ; his horses
 Excites by name, and their full speed inforces ;
 Shaking for haste the rust-obscur'd reins
 Upon their coal-black necks and shaggy manes.
 105 Through Lakes, through the Palici, which expire
 A sulph'rous breath, through earth ingendring fire,
 They pass to where Corinthian Bacchides
 Their City built between unequal Seas.
 The Land 'twixt Arethuse and Cyane
 110 With stretcht-out horns begirts th' included Sea.
 Here Cyane, who gave the Lake a name,
 Amongst Sicilian Nymphs of special fame,
 Her head advanc'd, who did the Goddess know,
 And boldly said, You shall not farther go ;
 115 Nor can you be unwilling Ceres son.
 What you compell, persuasion should have won :
 If humble things I may compare with great ;
Anapis lov'd me, yet did he intreat,
 And me, not frighted thus, espous'd. This said,
 With out-stretcht arms she's farther passage staid.
 120 His wrath no longer Pluto could restrain,
 But gives his terrour-striking Steeds the rein ;

98 METAMORPHOSIS,

And with his Regal Mace through the profound
And yielding water cleaves the solid ground.
The breach t' infernal Tartarus extends :
At whose dark jaws the Chariot descends.

- 425 But Cyane the Goddess Rape laments,
And her own injur'd Spring ; whose discontent
Admit no comfort : in her heart she bears
Her silent sorrow : now resolves to tears,
And with that Fountain doth incorporate,
Whereof th' immortal Deity but of late.
Her softned members thaw into a dew ;
- 430 Her nails less hard, her bones now limber grew.
The slender'st parts first melt away, her hair,
Fine fingers, legs, and feet, that soon impair,
And drop to streams : then arms, back, shoulders, G
435 And bosom, into little Currents glide.
Water, in stead of blood, fills her pale veins :
And nothing now that may be graspt remains.
Meanwhile through all the Earth and all the Main
The fearfull Mother sought her child in vain.
- 440 Not dewy-hair'd Aurora, when she rose,
Nor Hesperus could witness her repose.
Two pitchy Pines she at flaming Aetna lights ;
And, restless, carries them through freezing Nights.
Again, when Day the vanquisht Stars suppress,
- 445 Her vanisht comfort seeks from East to West.
Thirsty with travel, and no Fountain nigh,
A Cottage thatcht with straw invites her eye.
At th' humble gate she knocks. An old Wife shews
Her self thereat, and, seeing her, bestows
- 450 The water so desir'd ; which she before
Had boil'd with Barley. Drinking at the door,
A rude hard-favour'd Boy beside her stood,
Who laught, and call'd her Greedy-gut. Her blood
Inflam'd with anger, what remain'd she threw
- 455 Full in his face ; which forthwith speckled grew.
His arms convert to legs ; a tail withall
Spins from his changed shape : his body small,
Left he might prove too great a foe to life :
Though less, yet like a Lizard. Th' aged Wife
(That wonders, weeps, and fears to touch) he shuns,
- 460 And presently into a crevice runs.
Fit to his colour they a name elect ;
With sundry little stars all over speckt.

What Lands, what Seas the Goddess wandred through,
 Were long to tell : Earth had not room enough.
 To Sicily she returns ; where-ere she goes,
 Inquires, and comes where Cyane now flows.
 She, had she not been changed, all had told ;
 Now wants a tongue her knowledge to unfold :
 Yet to the Mother of her Daughter gave
 A certain sign, bearing upon a wave
Persephone's rich Zone, that from her fell
 When through the sacred Spring she sunk to Hell.
 This seen, and known, as but then lost, she tare,
 Without self-pity, her dis-shevell'd hair ;
 And with redoubled blows her breast invades :
 Nor knowes what Land t' accuse, yet all upbraids,
 Ingrate, unworthy with her gifts t' abound ;
Trinacria chiefly, where the steps she found
 Of her misfortunes. Therefore there she brake
 The furrowing plough ; the Ox and owner strake
 Both with one death ; then, bad the fields beguile
 The trust impos'd ; shrunk seed corrupts. That soil,
 So celebrated for fertility,
 Now barren grew : Corn in the blade doth die.
 Now too much drought annoys, now lodging shows ;
 Stars smitch, winds blast. The greedy Fowl devours
 The new-sown grain : else Tares and Darnel tire
 The fetter'd Wheat, and Weeds that through it spire.
 In Elean waves Alpheias then appear'd,
 And from her dropping hair her forehead clear'd :
 O Mother of that far-sought Maid, thou friend
 To life, said she, here let thy labour end :
 Nor be offended with thy faithfu'l Land,
 That blameless is, nor could her Rape withstand.
 I, here a Guest, not for my Countrey plead.
 My Countrey Pisa is : in Elis bred,
 I as an A'ien in Sicily dwell :
 But yet no Countrey pleaseth me so well.
 I, Arethusa, now these Springs possess ;
 This is my seat : which, courteous Goddess, bless.
 Why I affect this place, t' Ortygia came Through such vast Seas, I shall impart the same
 To your desire, when you, more fit to hear,
 Shall quit your care, and be of better cheer.
 Earth gives me way, through whose dark caverns roll'd
 I here ascend, and long-mist stars behold.

While under ground by Styx my waters glide,
 505 Your sweet Proserpina I there espy'd :
 Full sad she was ; even then you might have seen
 Fear in her face : and yet she is a Queen ;
 And yet she in that gloomy Empire sways ;
 And yet her will th' Infernal King obeys.

Stone-like stood Ceres at this heavy news,
 510 And, staring, long continued in a mule.
 When grief had quickened her stupidity,
 She took her Chariot, and ascends the skie :
 There, veiled all in clouds, with scattered hair,
 She kneels to Jupiter, and makes this pray'r.

515 Both for my bloud and thine, O Jove, I sue :
 If I be nothing gracious, yet do you
 A Father to your Daughter prove ; nor be
 Your care the less, because she sprung from me.
 Lo, she at length is found, long sought through all
 The spacious World ; if you a Finding call
 What more the Loss assures : but if to know
 520 Her being, be to Find, I've found her so.
 And yet I would the injury remit,
 So he the stoln rest're. 'Twere most unfit
 That holy Hymen should thy Daughter joyn
 Unto a Thief ; although she were not mine.

Then Jove : The pledge is mutual, and these can
 To either equal. Yet this deed declares
 525 Much Love, mis-called Wrong : nor should we shame
 Of such a Son, could you but think the same.
 All Wants suppose ; can he be less then great,
 And be Jove's Brother ? What when all compleat
 I but prefer'd by lot ? Or if you burn
 530 In endless spleen, let Proserpine return ;
 On this condition, That she yet have ta'ne
 No sustenance : so Destinies ordain.

To fetch her Daughter, Ceres posts in haste :
 But Fates withstood ; the Maid had broke her fast.
 535 For, wandring in the Orchard, simply she
 Pluckt a Pomegranat from the stooping Tree ;
 Thence took seven grains, and eat them one by one
 Observed by Ascalaphus alone,
 Whom Acheron on Orpheus erst begot
 In pitchy Caves ; a Dame of special note
 540 Amongst th' Avernal Nymphs. This utter'd, staid
 The sighing Queen of Erebus, who made

- The Blab a Bird : with waves of Phlegeton
 His Face besprinkled, Plumes appear thereon,
 Crookt Beak, and broader Eyes ; the shape he had 45 He lost, forthwith in yellow feathers clad.
 His Head o're-siz'd, his long Nails talons prove ;
 His winged Arms for laziness scarce move.
 He proves a filthy, ill-presaging Fowl,
 To Mortals ominous, a screeching Owl.
 50 Yet was the punishment no more then due
 To his offence. But-how offended you,
Acheloides, that wings and claws disgrace
 Your goodly forms, yet keep your Virgin-face ?
 Was it, you Sirens, that your deathless Powers
 55 Were with the Goddesses when she gather'd flowers ?
 Whom when through all the earth you sought in vain,
 You wisht for wings to fly upon the Main,
 That pathless Seas might testify your care.
 The easie Gods consented to your pray'r.
 60 Straight golden feathers on your Backs appear :
 But lest that musick, fram'd t' inchant the ear,
 And so great gifts of speech should be profan'd,
 Your Virgin-looks and humane voice remain'd.
 But Jove, his Sister's discontent to chear,
 65 Between her and his Brother parts the year.
 The Goddesses now in either Empire sways ;
 Six months with Ceres, six with Pluto stays.
Proserpina then chang'd her mind and look,
 (Late such as sullen Dis could hardly brook)
 70 And clear'd her brows : as Sol, obscur'd in shrouds
 Of exhalations, breaks through vanquish'd clouds.
 Pleas'd Ceres now bade Arethusa tell
 Her cause of flight : and why a sacred Well ?
 Th' obsequious waters lest their murmuring.
 The Goddesses then above the Crystal Spring
 75 Her head advanc'd ; and, wringing her green hairs,
 She thus Alpheus ancient love declares.
 I of Achaia once a Nymph ; none more
 The Chace affected, or t' intoil the Boar.
 80 By Beauty though I never sought for fame ;
 Though masculine ; of Fair I bare the name.
 Nor took I pleasure in my praised face,
 Which others value as the'r onely grace :
 But, simple, was ashamed to excell ;
 And thought it infamy to please too well.

- 585 As from Stymphalian woods I made retreat,
 ('Twas hot, and labour had increast the heat)
 When well-nigh tir'd, a silent Stream I found,
 All eddilefs, perspicuous to the ground,
 Through which you every pebble might have seen :
 It ran as if it had no River been.
- 590 The Poplar and the hoary Willow, fed
 By bord'ring streams, their gratefull shadow spread.
 In this cool Rivulet my foot I dipt,
 Then knee-deep wade ; nor so content, unstript
 My self forthwith : upon a Sallow stud
 My Robe I hung, and leapt into the Floud.
- 595 Where while I swim, and labour to and fro
 A thousand ways, with arms that swiftly row,
 I from the bottom heard an unknown tongue ;
 And, frighted, to the higher margent sprung.
 Whither so fast, O Arethusa ? twice
- 600 Out-cry'd Alpheus, with a hollow voice.
 Uncloathed as I was, I fled for fear,
 (For on the other side my garments were.)
 The faster followed he, the more did burn :
 I naked, seem'd the readier for his turn.
- 605 As trembling Doves the eager Hawks eschew ;
 As eager Hawks the trembling Doves pursue ;
 I fled, he followed. To Orchomenus,
Psophis, Cyllene, high-brow'd Manalus,
 Cold Erymanthus, and to Elys, I
 My flight maintained ; nor could he come nigh.
- 610 But I unable to hold out so long :
 He, patient of much labour, and more strong.
 And yet o're Plains, o're woody Hills I fled,
 And craggy Rocks, where foot did never tread.
 The Sun was at our backs : before my feet
- 615 I saw his Shadow, or my fear did see'r.
 How-e're, his sounding steps, and thick-drawn breath
 That fann'd my hair, affrighted me to death.
 Stark tir'd, I cry'd ; Ah caught ! help, (O forlorn !)
Diana, help thy Squire, who oft have born
- 620 Thy Bow and Quiver. Mov'd at my request,
 With muffling clouds she cover'd the distressed.
 The River seeks me in that pitchy throwd,
 And searches round about the hollow cloud.
 Twice came he where Diana me did hide ;
- 625 And twice he, Io Arethusa, cry'd.

Then what a heart had I! the Lamb so fears
 When howling Wolves about the Fold she hears.
 So heartless Hare, when trailing Hounds draw nigh
 30 Her sented Form; nor dares she move an eye.
 Nor went he on, in that he could not trace
 My farther steps; but guards the cloud and place.
 Cold sweats my then-besieged limbs possess:
 35 In thin thick-falling drops my strength decreast.
 Where-e're I slept, streams ran; my hair now fell
 In trickling dew; and, sooner than I tell
 My destiny, into a Flood I grew.
Alpheus his beloved Waters knew,
 And, putting off th' assumed shape of Man,
 Resumes his own, and in my Current ran.
 Chast Delia cleft the ground. Then through blind Caves
 40 To lov'd Orygia she conducts my waves;
 Affected for her name; where first I take
 Review of day. This Arethusa spake.

The fertile Goddess to her Chariot chains
 Her yoked Dragons, checkt with stubborn reins:
 Her course, 'twixt heaven and earth, to Athens bends;
 45 And to Triptolemus her Chariot sends.
 Part of the seed she gave, she bade him throw
 On untill'd Earth; part on the till'd to sow.
 O're Europe and the Asian soyl convey'd,
 The Youth to Scythia turns, where Lyncus sway'd.
 His Court he enters. Ask'd what way he came,
 50 His cause of coming, Countrey, and his name;
Triptolemus men call me, he reply'd,
 And in renowned Athens I reside.
 No ship through toiling Seas me hither bare;
 Nor over land came I, but through the air.
 55 I bring you Ceres gift; which, sown in fields,
 Corn-bearing Crops (a better feeding) yields.
 The barbarous King envies it; and, that he
 The Authour of so great a good might be,
 Gives entertainment: but, when sleep oppress
 His heavy eyes, with steel attempts his breast.
 60 Whom Ceres turns to a Lynx; and homewards makes
 The young Mopsopian drive her sacred Snakes.
 Our Chief concluded here her learned Lays.
 The Nymphs, with one consent, give us the Bays.
 65 The vanquish'd rail. To whom the Muse: Since you
 Esteem it nothing to deserve the due

To your contention, but must adde foul words
To your ill deeds, nor this your pride affords
Our patience room ; we'll wreak it on your heads,
And tread the path which Indignation leads.

Pæonians laugh, and our sharp threats despise.

- 670 About to scold, and with disgracefull noise
To clap their hands, they saw the feathers sprout
Beneath their nails, and cloath their arms throughout
Hard nebs in one another's faces spie ;
And now new Birds into the Forrest flie:

- 675 These Sylvan Scolds, as they their arms prepare
To beat their bosomes, mount, and hang in air.
Who yet retain their ancient eloquence,
Full of harsh chat, and prating without sense.

OVID'S

OVID'S METAMORPHOSIS.

THE SIXTH BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

Pallas an old Wife. Haughty thoughts o're-throw
Hæmus and Rhodope; who Mountains grow.
The Pygmy a Crane. Antigone becomes
A Stork. A statue Cynaras entombs.
His impious Daughters, Stones. In various shapes
The Gods commit adulteries and rapes.
Arachne, a Spider. Niobe yet drowns
Her Marble checks in tears. Uncivil Clowns
Are curst to Frogs. From Tears clear Marſyas flows.
His Ivory ſhoulder, new-made, Pelops ſhows.
Progne, a Swallow, ſign'd with murder's ſtains.
Sad Philomel to ſecret night complains.
Rage to a Lapwing turns th' Odryſian King.
Calais and Zetes native feathers wing.

Tritonia to the Muſe attention lends, (mends.
Who both her Verſe, and juſt revenge com-
Then ſaid t'her ſelf; To praiſe is of no worth:
Let our revengefull Power our praiſe ſet forth.
Intends Arachne's ruine. She, ſhe heard,
Before her curious webs, her own preferr'd.
Nor dwelling nor her nation fame impart
Unto the Damsel, but excelling Art.
Deriv'd from Colophonian Idmon's ſide,
Who thirſty Wool in Phœcean purple dy'de.

- 10 Her Mother (who had paid her debt to fate)
 Was also mean, and equal to her mate.
 Yet through the Lydian towns her praise was spread,
 Though poor her birth, in poor Hypæpa bred.
 The Nymphs of Tmolus oft their Vines forsook,
 15 The sleek Pactolian Nymphs their streams, to look
 On her rare works: nor more delight in viewing
 Them done, (done with such grace) then when a-doing,
 Whether she Orb-like rou'd the ruder wool;
 20 Or, finely finger'd, the selected cull;
 Or draw it into cloud-resembling flakes;
 Or equal twine with swift-turn'd spindle makes;
 Or with her lively-painting Needle wrought:
 You might perceive she was by Pallas taught.
 Yet such a Mistress her proud thoughts disclaim.
 25 Let her with me contend: if foil'd, no shame
 (Said she) nor punishment will I refuse.
Pallas forthwith an old-wive's shape indues;
 Her hair all white; her limbs, appearing weak,
 A staff supports; and thus began to speak:
 Old Age hath something which we need not thun:
 Experience by long tract of time is won.
 30 Scorn not advice: with Dames of humane race
 Contend for fame, but give a Goddess place.
 Crave pardon, and she will thy crime remit.
 With eyes confessing rage, and eye-brows knit,
 35 (Her labour-leaving hands scarce held from strokes)
 She masked Pallas with these words provokes:
 Old Fool, that dot'st with age, to whom long life
 Is now a curse, thy Daughter, or son's Wife,
 (If thou hast either) taught be they by this;
 40 My wisdom for my self sufficient is.
 And lest thy counsel should an int'rest claim
 In my diversion, I am still the same.
 Why comes she not? why triest thus delays?
 She comes, said Pallas, and her self displays.
 Nymphs and Mygdonian Dames the Power adore:
 45 Onely the Maid her self undaunted bore.
 And yet she blusht: against her will the red
 Flusht in her cheeks, and thence as swiftly fled.
 Even so the purple Morning paints the skies;
 And so they whiten at the Sun's up-rise.
 50 She now, as desperately obstinate,
 Praise ill affecting, runs on her own fate.

- No more Jove's daughter labours to dissuade ;
 No more refuseth, nor the strife delay'd.
 Both settle to their tasks apart ; both spread
 At once their warps, consisting of fine thread,
 Ty'd to their beams. A reed the thread divides,
 55 Through which the quick-returning shuttle glides,
 Shot by swift hands. The comb's inserted tooth
 Between the warp supprest the rising woof.
 Strife less'ning toil, with skirts tuckt to their waist,
 60 Both move their cunning arms with nimble hast.
 Here crimson dy'd in Tyrian brass they weave :
 The scarce-distinguish'd shadows sight deceive.
 So watry clouds, guilt by Apollo, show
 The vast sky painted with a mighty Bow :
 65 Where though a thousand several colours shine,
 No eye their close transition can define :
 The next the former clearly represents ;
 Yet by degrees scarce sensible dissents.
 Their work's imbellished with ductil gold :
 And both reviv'd antiquities unfold.
 70 Pallas in Athens Mars his Rock doth frame,
 And that old strife about the Citie's name.
 Twice six Celestials sit inthron'd on high,
 Repleat with awe-infusing gravity :
 75 Jove in the midst. The suted figures took
 Their lively forms. Jove had a royal look.
 The Sea-god stood, and with his Trident strake
 The cleaving Rock, from whence a Fountain brake :
 Whereon he grounds his claim. With spear and shield
 Her self she arms : her head a mourian steel'd,
 80 Her breast her Aegis guards. Her Launce the ground
 Appears to strike ; and from that pregnant wound
 The hoary Olive charg'd with fruit ascends.
 The Gods admire : with victory she ends.
 Yet she, to shew the Rival of her praise
 What hopes to cherish for such bold assays,
 85 Adds four contentions in the utmost bounds
 Of every angle, wrought in little rounds.
 One Thracian Rhodope and Hemus shows,
 Now Mountains topt with never-melting snow,
 Once humane bodies ; who durst emulate
 The blest Celestials both in style and state.
 The next contains the miserable doom
 90 Of that Pygmean matron, overcome

108 METAMORPHOSIS,

By Juno made a Crane, and forc'd to jar
 With her own nation in perpetual war.
 A third presents Antigone, who strove
 For unmatcht beauty with the Wife of Jove,

95 (Nor Ilium, nor Laomedon her fire,
 Prevail'd with violent Saturnia's ire)
 Turn'd to a Stork, who, with white pinions rais'd,
 Is ever by her creaking Bill self-prais'd.
 In the last circle Cynaras was plac't;
 Who, charg'd with grief, the Temple stairs imbrac't,
 (Of late his Daughters, by their pride o'rethrown)

100 Appears to weep, and grovel on the stone.
 The web a wreath of peacefull Olive bounds;
 And her own tree her work both ends and crowns.
Arachne weaves Europa's rape by Jove.

The Bull appears to live, the Sea to move.

105 Back to the shore she casts a heavy eye,
 To her distracted Damsels seems to cry;
 And from the sprinkling waves, that skip to meet
 With such a burthen, shrinks her trembling feet.
Asteria there a struggling Eagle preft:

A Swan here spreads his wings o're Leda's breast.

110 Jove, Satyr-like, Antiope compells;
 Whose fruitfull Womb with double issue swells:
Amphitryon for Alcmena's love became;
 A Showr for Danae; for Aegina, Flame:
 For beautifull Mnemosyne he takes
 A Shepherd's form; for Deois a Snake's.

115 Thee also, Neptune, like a lustfull Seer,
 She makes the fair Aeolian Virgin bear;
 And get th' Aloides in Enipe's shape;
 Now turn'd t' a Ram in sad Bisaltis rape.
 The gold-hair'd mother of life-strengthening seed,
 The snake-hair'd mother of the winged Steed,

120 And thee a Stallion: thee Melanbo finds.

A Dolphin. She to every form assigns
 Like-equal looks, to every place the same
 Aspect. A Herdsman Phæbus here became;
 A Lion now; now Falcon's wings displays;
Micarean Issa Shepherd-like betrays.

125 Liber, a Grape, Erigone compest:
 And Saturn Horse-like Chiron gets, half beast.
 About her web a curious trail designs;
 Flowers intermixt with clasping Ivy twines.

Not Pallas this, nor Envy this reproves.

- 130 Her fair success the next Virago moves :
 Who tears the web with crimes celestial fraught ;
 With shuttle from Cytorian Mountains brought,
Arachne thrice upon the forehead smote.
 Her great heart brooks it not, about her throat
- 135 An halter knits. Remorsefull Pallas staid
 Her falling weight ; Live, wretch, yet hang, she said.
 This curse (left of succeeding times secure)
 Still to thy issue and their race endure.
- 140 Sprinkled with Hecate's banefull weeds, her hair
 She forthwith sheds : her nose and ears impair ;
 Her head grows little, her whole body so ;
 Her thighs and legs to spiny fingers grow ;
 The rest all belly, whence a thred she sends :
- 145 And now, a Spider, her old webs extends.
 All Lydia sounds, the same through Phrygia rung,
 And gave an argument to every tongue.
 Her Niobe had known, when she a maid
 In Sipylus and in Meonia staid.
- 150 Yet flights that home example ; still rebels
 Against the Gods, and with proud language swells.
 Much made her haughty. Yet Amphion's town,
 Their high descents, nor glory of a crown,
 So pleas'd her (though she pleas'd her self in all)
- 155 As her fair race. We Niobe might call
 The happiest mother that yet ever brought
 Life unto light, had not her self so thought.
Tiresian Manto, in presages skill'd,
 The streets, inspir'd by holy fury, fill'd
 With these exhort's : Ismenides, prepare ;
- 160 To great Latona and her Twins with prayer
 Mix sweet perfumes ; your brows with Lawrel bind :
 By me Latona bids. The Thebans wind
 About their Temples the commanded Bay ;
 And, sacred fires with incense feeding, pray.
- 165 Behold, the Queen in height of state appears.
 A Phrygian mantle weav'd with gold she wears:
 Her face, as much as rage would suffer, fair.
 She stops, and shaking her dishevell'd hair,
 The godly troop with haughty eyes surveys.
- 170 What madness is it, unseen God (she says)
 Before the seen Celestials to prefer ?
 Or, while I Altars want, to worship her ?

- Me Tamalus (alone allow'd to feast
 In Heav'n) begot; my Mother not the least
Pleias; and greatest Atlas Sire to those,
 175 On whose high shoulders all the Stars repose.
Jove is my other Grandfather; and he
 My Father-in-law: a double grace to me.
 Me Phrygia, Cadmus kingdoms me obey:
 My Husband's harp-rai'd walls I jointly sway:
 180 Throughout my Court behold in every place
 Infinite riches: adde to this a Face
 Worthy a Goddess: then, to crown my joys,
 Seven beauteous Daughters, and as many Boys:
 All these by marriage to be multiply'd.
 Behold, have we not reason for our pride?
 185 Dare you Latona then, by Cæm got,
 Before me place? to whom a little spot
 The ample Earth deny'd t' unlade her womb?
 Heav'n, Earth, nor Seas afford your Goddess room;
 A Vagabond, till Delos harbour gave.
 190 Thou wandrest on the land, I on the wave,
 It said; and granted an unstable place.
 She brought forth two; the seventh part of my race.
 I happy am, who doubts? so will abide;
 Or who doubts that? with plenty fortify'd.
 195 My state's too great for Fortune to bereave:
 Though much she ravish, yet much more must leave.
 My blessings are above low fear. Suppose
 Some of my hopefull sons this people lose;
 They cannot be reduced unto two.
 200 Off with your Bays, these idle Rites eschew.
 They put them off, the sacrifice forbore:
 And yet Latona silently adore.
 As much as free from barrenness, so much
 Disdain and grief th' enraged Goddess touch.
 205 Who on the top of Cynthus thus begins,
 To vent her passions to her sacred Twins.
 Lo I, your mother, proud in you alone,
 (Excepting Juno, second unto none)
 Am question'd if a Goddess, and must lose,
 210 If you assist not, all religious dues.
 Nor is this all; that curst Tamalian Seed
 Adds foul reproaches to her impious deed.
 She dares her children before you prefer,
 And calls me childless: may it light on her,

Whose wicked words her Father's tongue declare.

- 215 About to second her report with prayer ;
 Peace, Phæbus said, complaint too long delays
 Conceiv'd revenge : the same vext Phœbe says.
 Then swiftly through the yielding air they glide
 To Cadmus tow'r's ; the clouds their glories hide.
 A spacious plain before the City lies,
 Made dusty with the daily exercise
- 220 Of trampling hoofs, by strifefull Chariots trackt.
 Part of Amphion's active sons here backt
 High-bounding Steeds ; whose rich caparison
 With scarlet blusht, with gold their bridles shone.
- 225 Ismenus, from her womb who first did spring,
 As with his ready horse he beats a ring,
 And checks his foamy jaws, Ay me ! out-cries ;
 While through his groaning breast an arrow flies.
 His bridle slackning with his dying force,
- 230 He leisurely sinks side-long from his horse.
 Next, Sipylos from clashing quiver flies
 With slackned reins : as when a Pilot spies
 A growing storm, and, lest the gentle gale
 Should scape besides him, claps on all his sail.
- 235 His haft th' unevitable bow o're-took,
 And through his throat the deadly arrow struck.
 He, by the horse's mane, and speedy thighs,
 Drops head-long, and the Earth in purple dyes.
- 240 Now Phædimus, and Tamalus, the heir
 T' his Grand-sire's name, that labour done, prepare
 To wrastle. Whilst with oiled lims they preste
 Each others pow'r, close grasping breast to breast,
 A shaft, which from th' impulsive bow-string flew,
- 245 Them in that sad Conjunction jointly flew.
 Both groan at once, at once their bodies bend
 With bitter pangs, at once to earth descend.
 Their rowling eyes together set in death,
 Together they expire their parting breath.
 In rusht Alphenor, (bleeding in their harms)
- 250 And rais'd their heatless corpes in his arms :
 But in that pious duty fell ; the threads
 Of life, his heart-strings, wrathfull Delius shreds.
 Part of his lungs clave to th' extracted head :
 And with his bloud his troubled spirit fled.
- 255 But unshorn Damascithon slaught' red lies,
 Not by a single wound ; shot where the thighs

112 METAMORPHOSIS,

- Knit with the ham-strings in the knotty joint.
 Striving from thence to tug the fatal point,
 Another at his neck the bow directs.
 Thick-gushing blood the piercing shaft ejects ;
 Which, spinning upward, cleft the passive air.
 Last Ilioneus, with succelless prayer,
 His hands up-heaves ; You Gods in general,
 Said he, (and ignorantly pray'd to all)
 O pity me. The Archer had remorse ;
 But now irrevocable was that force :
 And yet his life a little wound-dispatcht,
 His heart but onely with the arrow scratcht.
 Ill news, the people's grief, her household's tears
 Present their ruine to their mother's ears.
 Who wonders how the Gods their lives durst touch ;
 And swells with anger that their power was such.
 For sad Amphion, wounding his own breast,
 Had now his sorrow with his soul releast.
 How different is this Niobe, from that
 Who great Latona's Rites suppress'd of late,
 And proudly pac'd the streets, envy'd by those
 That were her friends ; now pitied by her foes ?
 Frantick she doth on their cold corse fall,
 And her last kisses distributes to all.
 From whom to Heav'n erecting her bruise'd arms,
 Cruel Latona, feast thee with our harms ;
 Feast, feast, she said ; thy savage stomach cloy ;
 Cloy thy wild rage, and in our sorrows joy.
 Seven times, upon seven Hesperes born, I die.
 Triumph, triumph, victorious foe. But why
 Victorious ? hapless I have not so few ;
 Who, after all these funerals, subdue.
 This said, the bow-string twangs. Pale terror chills
 All hearts save Niobe's, obdur'd by ills.
 The sisters, in long mourning robes array'd,
 About their Hesperes stood, with hair display'd.
 One draws an arrow from her brother's side ;
 And joining her pale lips to his, so dy'd.
 Another striving to assuage the woes
 That rack her mother, forthwith speechless grows ;
 And bowing with the wound, which inly bled,
 295 Shots her fixt teeth, the soul already fled.
 This, flying falls ; that, her dead sister makes
 Her bed of death : this hides her self ; that quakes.

Six slain by sundry wounds ; to shield the last,
Her mother over her her body cast.

This one, she cries, and that the least, O save.

The least of many, and but one, I crave.

Whilst thus she sues, the su'd-for Delia hits.

She by her husband, sons and daughters, sits

A childless Widow, waxing stiff with woes.

The wind wags not one hair ; the ruddy Rose

Forakes her cheek ; in her declining head

Her eye-balls fix, throughout appearing dead.

Her tongue and palate robb'd of inward heat,

At once congeal ; her pulse forbears to beat.

Her neck wants power to turn, her feet to go,

Her arms to move : her very bowels grow

Into a stone. She yet retains her tears :

Whom straight a whirl-wind to her country bears,

And fixes on the summit of an Hill.

Now from that mourning Marble tears distill.

Th' exemplary revenge struck all with fear :

Who offerings to Latona's altars bear

With doubled zeal. When one, as oft befalls,

By present accidents the past recalls.

In fruitfull Lycia once, said he, there dwelt

A sort of Peasants who her vengeance felt.

'Twas of no note, in that the men were base ;

Yet wonderfull. I saw the pool and place

Fam'd by the prodigy. My father, spent

Almost with age, ill-brooking travel, sent

Me thither for choice Steers ; and for my Guide

A native gave. Those Pastures searcht, we spy'd

An ancient Altar, black with cinders, plac'd

Amidst a Lake, with shivering reeds imbrac'd.

O favour me, he, softly murmuring, said :

O favour me, I, softly murmuring, pray'd.

Then askt, if Nymph or Faun therein reside,

Or rural God. The Lycian thus reply'd :

O Youth, no Mountain Powers this Altar hold :

She calls it hers to whom Jove's Wife of old

Earth interdicted : scarce that floating Isle,

Wave-wandering Delos, finisht her exile.

Where, coucht on Palms and Olives, she, in spight

Of fretfull Juno, brought her Twins to light.

Thence also, frighted from her painfull bed,

With her two infant Deities she fled.

Now

- 340 Now in Chimera-breeding Lycia, (fir'd
 By burning beams) with her long travel tir'd,
 Heat-raising thirst the Goddess sore oppress,
 By their exhausting of her milk increast.
 By fortune, in a dale, with longing eyes
 A Lake of shallow water she descries,
 345 Where Clowns were then a-gathering picked weeds,
 With shrubby osiers, and plash-loving reeds.
 Approacht, Titania kneels upon the brink,
 And of the cooling liquour stoops to drink.
 The Clowns withstood. Why hinder you, said she,
 350 The use of water, that to all is free?
 The Sun, Air, Water, Nature did not frame
 Peculiar; a publick gift I claim.
 Yet humbly I intreat it: not to drench
 My weary limbs, but killing thirst to quench.
 355 My tongue wants moisture, and my jaws are dry:
 Scarce is there way for speech: for drink I die.
 Water to me were Nectar. If I live,
 'Tis by your favour: life with water give.
 Pity these babes: for pity they advance
 360 Their little arms. Their arms they stretcht by chance
 With whom would not such gentle words prevail?
 But they, persisting to prohibit, rail;
 The place with threats command her to forsake.
 365 Then with their hands and feet disturb the lake;
 And leaping, with malicious motion move
 The troubled mud, which rising, floats above.
 Rage quencht her thirst: no more Latona sues
 To such base slaves; but Goddess-like doth use
 Her dreadfull tongue, which thus their fates imply'd
 370 May you for ever in this Lake reside.
 Her wish succeeds. In loved lakes they strive,
 Now sprawl above, now under water dive;
 Oft hop upon the bank, as oft again
 375 Back to the water: nor can yet restrain
 Their brawling tongues; but, setting shame aside,
 Though hid in water, under water chide.
 Their voices still are hoarse: the breath they fetch
 Swells their wide throats: their jaws with railing stretch
 380 Their heads their shoulders touch; no neck between,
 As intercepted: all the back is green,
 Their bellies (every part o're-sizing) white.
 Who now, new Frogs, in slimy pools delight.

Thus much I know not by what Theban said,
 Another mention of a Satyre made,
 85 By Phæbus with Tritonia's reed o'recome ;
 Who for presuming felt an heavy doom.
 Me from my self, ah ! why do you distract ?
 (Oh !) I repent, he cry'd : alas ! this fact
 Deserves not such a vengeance. Whilst he cry'd,
Apollo from his body stript his hide.
 His body was one wound ; bloud every way
 90 Streams from all parts : his sinews naked lay ;
 His bare veins pant : his heart you might behold,
 And all the fibers in his breast have told.
 For him the Fauns that in the forests keep,
 95 For him the Nymphs and brother Satyrs weep :
 His end Olympus (famous then) bewails,
 With all the shepherds of those hills and dales.
 The pregnant Earth conceiveth with their tears,
 Which in her penetrated womb she bears,
 Till big with waters ; then discharg'd her fraught.
 100 This purest Phrygian Stream a way out sought
 By down-falls, till to toiling seas he came :
 Now called Marsyas of the Satyrs's name.

The Vulgar, these examples told, return
 Unto the present ; for Amphion mourn,
 And his lost issue. All the mother hate.
 105 Pelops alone laments his sister's fate.
 While with torn garments he presents his woes,
 The Ivory piece on his left shoulder shows.
 This once was flesh, and coloured like the right.
 Slain by his Sire, the Gods his limbs unite ;
 His scattered parts all found, save that alone
 110 Which interpos'd the neck and shoulder-bone.
 They then with Ivory supply'd th' unfound :
 And thus restored Pelops was made sound.

The neighbouring Princes met : the Cities near
 Intreat their Kings the desolate to cheer ;
 115 Renown'd Mycenæ, Sparta, th' Argive State,
 And Calydon, not yet in Dian's hate,
 Fertile Orchomenos, Corinthus, fam'd
 For high-priz'd brass, Messene, never tam'd,
Cleonæ, Patræ, Pylos, (Neleus crown)
 And Træzen, not as then Pittheus town,
 120 With all that two-sea'd Isthmos Streights include,
 And all without, by two-sea'd Isthmos view'd.

Athen

- Athens* alone (who would believ'c ?) withheld,
 Thee from that Civil office war compell'd.
 Th' inhabitants about the Pontick coast
 Had then belieg'd thee with a barbarous host :
 425 Whom Thracian Terem with his Aids o're-threw,
 And by that victory renowned grew.
 Powerfull in wealth and people, from the loins
 Of Mars deriv'd, Pandion Progne joins
 To him in marriage. This nor Juno blest,
 430 Nor Hymen, nor the Graces grac'd that feast.
 The snake-hair'd Furies held the sputtering light
 From funeral snatcht, and made the bed that Night.
 Th' ill-boding Owl upon the roof was set.
Progne and Terem with these omens met ;
 435 Thus Parents grew. The Thracians yet rejoice,
 And thank the Gods with one united voice.
 The marriage-day, and that of Itys birth,
 They consecrate to universal mirth.
 So lies the good unseen. By this the Sun,
 440 Conducting Time, had through five Autumns run ;
 When flattering Progne thus allures her Lord.
 If I have any grace with thee, afford
 This favour, that I may my sister see :
 Send me to her, or bring thou her to me :
 Promise my father, that with swiftest speed
 She shall return. If this attempt succeed,
 445 The sum of all my wishes I obtain.
 He bids them lanch his ships into the Main :
 Then makes th' Athenian port with sails and oars,
 And lands upon the wilst Pirean shoars.
 Brought to Pandion's presence, they salute.
 450 The King with bad presage begins his sute.
 For lo, as he his wife's command recites,
 And for her quick return his promise plights,
 Bright Philomela came in rich array ;
 More rich in beauty. So they use to say
 The stately Naiades and Dryad's go
 455 In Sylvan shades, were they apparel'd so.
 This sight in Terem such a burning breeds,
 As when we fire an heap of hoary reeds ;
 Or catching flames to Sun-dry'd stubble thrust.
 Her face was excellent : and in-bred lust
 460 Inrag'd his blood ; to which those Climes are prone.
 Stung by his Countrie's fury and his own,

- He straight intends her women to intice,
 And bribe her Nurse, to prosecute his vice;
 Her self to tempt with gifts; his crown to spend;
 65 Or ravish, and by war his rape defend.
 What dares he not, thrust on by wild desire?
 Nor can his breast contain so great a fire.
 Rackt with delay, he Progne's sure renews:
 And for himself, that but pretended, sues.
 70 Love made him eloquent. As oft as he Exceeded, he would say, Thus charged she:
 And moving tears (as she had sent them) sheds.
 You Gods, how dark a blindness over-spreads
 The souls of men! whilst to his sin he climbs,
 75 They think him good, and praise him for his crimes.
 Even Philomela wisht the same. Now she Hangs on her Father's neck: and what would be
 Her utter ruine, as her safety prest.
 While Tereus by beholding pre-possess,
 80 Her kisses and embraces heat his blood,
 And all afford his fire and fury food.
 He wisht, as oft as she her Sire imbrac't,
 Himself her Sire: nor would have been more chaste.
 He by their importunities is wrought.
 85 She, over-joy'd, her Father thanks; and thought
 Her self and Sister in that fortunate,
 Which drew on both a lamentable fate.
 The labour of the Day now near an end,
 From steep Olympus Phæbus Steeds descend.
 The boards are Princely serv'd: Lyæus flows
 490 In burnisht gold. Then take they soft repose.
 And yet th' Odrysian King, though parted, cries;
 Her face and grace is ever in his eyes.
 He parts unseen unto his fancy feigns,
 And feeds his fires: Sleep flies his troubled brains.
 495 Day rose, Pandion his departing Son
 Wrings by the hand; and, weeping, thus begun:
 Dear son, since Piety this due requires,
 With her, receive both your and their desires.
 By faith, alliance, by the Gods above,
 500 I charge you guard her with a Father's love:
 And suddenly send back (for all delay
 To me is death) my age's onely stay.
 And, Daughter, ('tis enough thy Sister's gone)
 For pity leave me not too long alone.

- 505 As he impos'd this charge, he kist withall ;
 And drops of tears at every accent fall.
 The pledges then of promis'd faith demands,
 (Which mutually they give) their plighted hands.
 To Progne, and her little Boy, said he,
 My love remember ; them salute from me.
 510 Scarce could he bid farewell, sobs so ingage
 His troubled speech ; dreading his soul's presage.
 As soon as shipt, as soon as active oars
 Had mov'd the surges, and remov'd the shoars,
 She's ours, With me my wish I bear, he cries ;
 515 Exults, and barbarous, scarce defers his joys,
 His eyes fast fixt. As when Jove's Eagle bears
 An Hare t' her Airy trusts'd in rapess full fears,
 And to the trembling prisoner leaves no way
 For hoped flight, but still beholds her prey.
 520 The voiage made, on his own land he treads ;
 And to a Lodg Pandion's Daughter leads,
 (Obscur'd with woods) pale, trembling, full of fear
 And for her Sister asking now with tears.
 There mues her up ; his soul intent makes known ;
 525 Inforc'd her, a weak virgin, and but one.
 Help, Father, Sister, help, in her distress
 She cries ; and on the Gods with like success.
 She trembles like a Lamb, snatcht from the fangs
 Of some fell Wolf, that dreads her former pangs :
 530 Or as a Dove, who on her feathers bears
 Her blood's fresh stains, and late-felt talons fears.
 Restor'd unto her mind, her ruffled hair,
 As at a wofull funeral, she tare ;
 Her arms with her own fury bloody made :
 Then, wringing her up-heaved hands, thus said ;
 O Monster ! barbarous in thy horrid lust !
 535 Treacherous Tyrant ! whom my Father's trust,
 Impos'd with holy tears, my Sister's love,
 My Virgin state, nor Nuptial ties, could move !
 O what a wild confusion-hast thou bred !
 I'm an Adulteress to my Sister's bed :
 Thou, Husband to us both ; my onely hate ;
 And to expect a miserable fate.
 540 Why mak'st thou not thy villanies compleat,
 By forcing life from her abhorred seat ?
 O would thou hadst, ere I my honour lost :
 Then had I parted with a spotless ghost.

Yet, if the Gods have Eyes ; if their Powers be
Not meerly Names ; nor all decay with me ;
5 Thou shalt not scape due vengeance. Sense of shame
I will abandon ; and thy crime proclame
To men, if free : if not, my voice shall break (speak ;
Through these thick walls, and teach the woods to Hard rocks resolve to roth. Let Heav'n this hear,
And Heav'n-thron'd Gods ; if there be any there.

10 These words the savage Tyrant move to wrath :
Nor less to fear. Alike provok'd by both,
He draws his sword : his cruel hands he winds
In her loose hair, her arms behind her binds.
Her throat glad Philomela ready made,
5 Conceiving hope of death from his drawn blade.
Whilst she reviles, invokes her Father, sought
To vent her spleen ; her Tongue, in pincers caught,
His sword divided from the panting root :
Which, trembling, murmurs curses at his foot.
10 And as a Serpent's tail, dissever'd, leaps :
Even so her Tongue, and dying sought her steps.
After this fact (if we may rumour trust)
He oft abus'd her body with his lust.
Yet to his Wife even after this retires,
5 Who for her Sister earnestly inquires.
Her Funerals he belies, with feigned grief ;
And by instructed tears begets belief.
Progne her royal ornaments rejects,
And puts on black ; an empty tomb erects ;
10 To her imagin'd Ghost oblations burns ;
Her Sister's fate, not as she should, she mourns.

Now through twelve Signs the Sun had born his light.
What should sad Philomela do ? her flight
A barbarous guard restrain'd ; the walls were strong ;
5 Her mouth had lost the Index of her wrong.
The wit that misery begets is great :
Great sorrow adds a quickness to conceit.
A woof upon a Thracian loom she spreads,
And inter-weaves the white with crimson threads,
That character her wrong. This closely wrought
She gave t' her servant, by her looks besought
10 To bear it to her Mistress ; who presents
The Queen therewith, not knowing the contents.
The Wife to that dire Tyrant this unfolds,
And in a wofull verse her state beholds:

She

- She held her peace: ('twas strange) grief struck her
 585 No language could with such a passion sure.
 Nor had she time to weep. Right, wrong, were mixt
 In her fell thoughts: her soul on vengeance fixt.
 It was that time when, in a wild disguise,
Sithonian matrons use to solemnize
 590 Lyæus three-years Feast. Night spreads her wings:
 By night high Rhodope with timbrels rings.
 By night th' impatient Queen a javelin takes,
 And, now a Bacchanal, the Court forsakes.
 Vines shade her brows: the rough hide of a Deer
 595 Shogs at her side: her shoulder bare a spear.
 Hurried through woods, with her attendant frows,
 Terrible Progne, frantick with her woes,
 Thy far more sober fury, Bacchus, strives
 To counterfeit. Now at the Lodge th' arrives,
 600 Howls, Euxæ cries, breaks ope the doors, and took
 Her Sister thence; with Ivy hides her look,
 In habit of a Bacchanal array'd;
 And to her City the amaz'd convey'd.
 That hated roof when Philomela knew,
 The poor soul shook; her visage bloudless grew.
 605 Progne withdraws, the sacred weeds unloos'd;
 Her wofull Sister's bashfull face disclos'd;
 Falls on her neck. The other durst not raise
 Her down-cast eyes: her Sister's wrong surveys
 In her dishonour. As she strove t'have sworn,
 With up-raisd look, and call'd the Gods t'have
 610 Her pure thoughts witness, how she was compell'd
 To that loath'd fact; she hands, for speech, upheld.
 Stern Progne broils; her bosom hardly bears
 So vast a rage: she chides her Sister's tears.
 No tears, said she, our lost condition needs,
 But steel; or if thou hast what steel exceeds.
 615 I for all horrid practices am fit:
 To wrap this roof in flame, and him in it:
 His eyes, his tongue, or what did thee inforce,
 T'extirp; or with a thousand wounds divorce
 His guilty soul. The deed I intend is great:
 620 But what, as yet, I know not. In this heat
 Came Itys in, and taught her what to do.
 Beheld with cruel eyes, Ah! how I view
 In thee, said she, thy Father! then intends
 Her tragick Scene. Rage in her looks ascends.

But when her Son saluted her, and clung
 Unto her neck, mixt kisses as he hung,
 With childish blandishments; her high-wrought blood
 Began to calm, her rage abated stood:
 Tears trickled from her eyes by strong constraint.
 But when she found her resolution faint
 With too much pity; she her Sister views,
 And says, while both by turns her eyes peruse,
 Why flatters he? why tongueless weeps the other?
 Why Sister calls not she, whom he calls Mother?
 Degenerate! think whose Daughter, to whom wed:
 All piety is sin to Terem bed.
 Then Irys trails, (as when by Ganges floods
 A Tigress drags a Fawn through silent woods)
 Retiring to the most sequestered room.
 While he, with hands up-heav'd, foresees his doom;
 Clings to her bosome; Mother! Mother! cry'd;
 She stabs him, nor once turn'd her face aside.
 His throat was cut by Philomela's knife:
 Although one wound suffic'd to vanquish life.
 His yet quick limbs, e're all his soul could pass,
 She piece-meal tears: some boil in hollow brass,
 Some hiss on spits. The pavements blusht with blood.
Progne invites her Husband to this food,
 And feigns her Country's Rite; which would afford
 No servant, nor companion, but her Lord.
 Now Terem, mounted on his Grand-fire's throne,
 With his Son's carved intralls stuffs his own;
 And bids her (so Soul-blinded) call his Boy.
Progne could not disguise her cruel joy:
 In full fruition of her horrid ire,
 Thou hast, said she, within thee thy desire.
 He looks about, asks where. And while again
 He asks, and calls; all bloody with the slain,
 Forth, like a Fury, Philomela flew,
 And at his face the head of Irys threw.
 Nor ever, more then now, desir'd a Tongue,
 T' express the joy of her revenged wrong.
 He with loud out-cries doth the board repell;
 And calls the Furies from the depth of Hell.
 Now tears his breast, and strives from thence in vain
 To pull th' abhorred food: now weeps amain,
 And calls himself his Son's unhappy tomb.
 Then draws his sword, and through the guilty room

- Pursues the Sisters; who appear with wings
 To cut the air : and so they did. One sings
 670 In woods ; the other near the house remains,
 And on her breast yet bears her murther's stains.
 He, swift with grief and fury, in that space
 His person chang'd. Long tufts of Feathers grace
 His shining Crown ; his Sword a Bill became ;
 675 His Face, all arm'd : whom we a Lapwing name.
 This killing news, e're half his age was spent,
 Pandion to th' infernal Shadows sent.
 Erechthem the throne and scepter held ;
 Who both in justice and bold arms excell'd.
 680 To him his Wife four Sons, all hopefull, bare ;
 As many Daughters, two surpassing fair.
 Thee, Cephalus, thy Procris happy made :
 But Thrace and Terens Boreas nuptial staid,
 Whom God-below'd Orithya wanted long,
 685 While he put off his pow'r, to use his tongue.
 His sute rejected, horridly inclin'd
 To anger, (too familiar with that Wind,)
 I justly suffer this indignity :
 For why, said he, have I my arms laid by,
 Strength, violence, high rage, and awfull threats ?
 690 'Tis my dishonour to have us'd intreats :
 Force me befits. With this thick clouds I drive,
 Toss the blue billows, knotty Oaks up-ripe,
 Congeal soft Snow, and beat the earth with hail.
 When I my brethren in the air assail,
 695 (For that's our field) we meet with such a shock,
 That thundring skies with our incounters rock,
 And cloud-struck lightning flashes from on high.
 When through the crannies of the earth I fly,
 And force her in her hollow caves, I make 700 The Ghosts to tremble, and the ground to quake.
 Thus should I've woo'd, with these my match have Erechthem should have been compell'd, not pray'd. (made
 Thus Boreas chafes, or no less storms, and shook
 His horrid wings ; whose airy motion struck
 705 The earth with blasts, and made the Ocean roar.
 Trailing his dusky mantle on the floor,
 He hid himself in clouds of dust, and caught
 Below'd Orithya, with her fear distraught.
 Flying, his agitated fires increast :
 710 Nor of his airy race the reins suppress,

Till to the walled Cicones he came.
Two goodly Twins th' espous'd Athenian Dame
Gave to the Icy authour of her rape,
Who had their Father's wings, and Mother's shape:
Yet not so born. Before their Faces bare
The manly ensigns of their yellow hair,
Calais and Zetes both unplumed were.
But when the down did on their chins appear,
Then, fowl-like, from their sides soft feathers bud.
When youth to action had inflam'd their blood;
In the first vessel, with the flow'r of Greece,
Through unknown Seas they sought the Golden Fleece.

OVID'S METAMORPHOSIS.

THE SEVENTH BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

MEN, Dragons teeth produce. Wing'd Snakes ibid
By Odours cast. A dry branch Olives bears.
Drops sprout to flowers. Old Aeson young become
So Liber's Nurfes. An old Sheep a Lamb.
Ceramabus flies. A Snake, - a snake-like stone.
An Ox, a Stag. Sad Mera barks unknown.
Horns front the Coan Dames. The Telchines
All change. A Dove turn'd Maid. The hard to please Becomes a Swan. His Mother Hyrie weeps
Into a Lake. High-mounting Combe keeps
Her Son-sought life. A King and Queen estrang'd
To flightfull Fowls. Cephalus Nephew chang'd
Into a Seal. Eumelus daughter flies
Through traceless regions. Men from Mushrooms rise.
Phineus and Periphas light wings assume.
So Polyphemon's Niece. From Cerberus spume
Springs Aconite. Just Earth a grave denies
To Sciron's bones; which now in Rocks arise.
Arne, a Chough. Stout Myrmidons are born
Of toiling Ants. The late-rejected Morn
Masks Cephalus. The Dog that did pursue,
And Beast pursu'd, two Marble Statues grew.

With Pegasus keel the Minye plow
The curling waves; and Phineus see, whom
In endless night his needy Age consumes.
The youthfull sons of Boreas, rais'd with plumes,

Those greedy Harpyes, with the Virgin face,
Far off from his polluted table chase.

5 They, under Jason, having suffered much,
At length the banks of slimy Phasis touch:
Now Phryxus fleece the hardy Minya ask;
And from the King receive a dreadfull task.

Meanwhile Ætias fries in secret fires:

10 Who struggling long with over-strong desires,
When Reason could not such a rage restrain,
She said, Medea, thou striv'st all in vain: (prove ?
Some God, unknown, withstands. What wilt thou
Or is it such a thing as men call Love?

Why seem the King's commands so too severe?

15 And so in truth they be. Why should I fear

A Stranger's ruine, never seen before?

Whence spring these cares? why fear I more and more?

These furies from thy virgin-breast repell,

Wretch, if thou canst. Could I, I should be well.

A new-felt force my striving pow'rs invades:

Affection this, Discretion that persuades.

20 I see the better, I approve it too:

The worse I follow. Why should'st thou pursue

An Husband of another world, that art

Of royal birth? Our Countrey may impart

A choice as worthy. If this foreign mate

Or live, or die, 'tis in the hands of fate.

Yet, may he live. I such a sure might move

25 To equal Gods, although I did not love.

For what hath Jason done? his hopeful youth

Would move all hearts, that were not hard, to ruth,

His birth, his valour. Set all these apart;

His person would: I feel it moves my heart.

Yet should not I assist, the flaming breath

Of Bulls would blast him; or assaults of death

30 Spring up in arms from Tellus hostile womb;

Or else the greedy Dragon prove his tomb.

This suffer, and thou hast an heart of stone,

Born of a Tigress, and more savage grown.

Yet why stand I not by? behold him slain?

And so my accessory eyes profane?

35 Adde fury to the Bulls? to th' Earth-born, ire?

And sleepless Dragon with more spleen inspire?

The Gods forbid. I'll rather help, then pray.

My Father's Kingdome shall I then betray?

- And save this Stranger, whom I hardly know,
 40 That, sav'd by me, he should without me go,
 Marry another, and leave me behind
 To punishment? Could he prove so unkind,
 Or for another my deserts neglect,
 Then should he die. Such is not his aspect,
 The clearness of his mind, his very grace,
 45 That I should fraud suspect, or think him base.
 Besides, beforehand he shall plight his troth,
 And bind the contract with a solemn oath.
 What needst thou doubt? go on; delay decline:
 Obliged Jason will be ever thine.
- 50 Hymen shall crown thee, mothers celebrate
 Their sons Protectress through th' Achajan State.
 My Sister, Brother, Father, country Gods,
 Shall I abandon for unknown abodes?
 Fierce is my Father, barbarous my land,
 My Brother a child: my Sisters wishes stand
 55 With my desires: the greatest God of all
 My breast inshrines. What I forsake, is small;
 Great hopes I follow: to receive the grace
 For Argo's safety; know a better place;
 And Cities which in these far-distant parts
 Are famous; with civility and arts;
- 60 And Æson's son, whom I more dearly prize
 Then wealthy Earth, and all her Monarchies.
 In him most happy, and affected by
 The bounteous Gods, my crown shall reach the sky.
 They tell of Rocks that jostle in the main:
Charybdis, that sucks in, and casts again
 The wreckfull waves: how in Sicilian Streights,
 65 Girt round with barking dogs, fierce Scylla waits.
 My love possest, in Jason's bosom laid,
 Let Seas swell high, I cannot be dismay'd,
 While I infold my Husband in my arms.
 Or should I fear, I should but fear his harms.
 Call'st thou him Husband? wilt thou then thy blame
 70 Medea, varnish with an honest name?
 Consider well what thou intend'st to doe;
 And, while thou mayst, so foul a crime eschew.
 Thus she: When Honour, Piety, and Right,
 Before her stood, and Cupid put to flight.
 She goes where Hecate's old Altar stood,
 75 O're-Shadowed by a dark and secret wood.

- Her broken ardour she had now reclaim'd :
 Which Jason's presence forthwith re-inflam'd.
 Her cheeks blush fire, her face with fervour flashes.
 80 And as a dying cinder, rak'd in ashes,
 Fed by reviving winds, augmenting, glows,
 And, tossed, to accustom'd fury grows :
 So sickly Love, which late appear'd to die,
 New life assum'd from his inflaming eye ;
 Whose looks by chance more beauty now discover
 85 Then heretofore. You might forgive the Lover.
 Her eager eyes she rivets on his face ;
 And, frantick, thinks him of no humane race.
 Nor could divert her looks. As he his tongue
 Began t' unloose, her fair hand softly wrung,
 90 Implor'd her aid, and promis'd her his bed ;
 She answer made, with tears profusely shed :
 I see to what events m' intentions move ;
 Nor ignorance deceives me thus, but love.
 I by my cunning will preserve your life :
 But swear, that done, to take me to your wife.
 He by the Altar of the Triple Power,
 95 The groves which that great Deity imbower,
 Her Father's Sire, to whom the bid appears,
 His own success, and so great danger, swears.
 Believ'd, from her th' enchanted herbs receives ;
 With them, their use ; and his Protectress leaves.
 100 The Morrow had the sparkling stars defac'd,
 When all in Mars's field assemble, plac'd
 On circling ridges : seated on a throne,
 The Ivory-scepter'd King in scarlet thone.
 From adamant nostrils brass-hoof'd Bulls now cast
 105 Fierce Vulcan, and the grass with vapours blast.
 And as full forges, blown by art, resound ;
 As lime of flints, infurnac'd under ground,
 By sprinkled water fire contrives : so they
 Pent flames, involv'd in noisefull-breasts, display ;
 110 So roar their scorched throats. Yet Jason's Heir
 Came bravely on : on whom they turn, and stare
 With terrible aspects ; his ruine threat
 With steel-tipt horns, Inrag'd, their cleft hoofs beat
 The thundring ground, whence clouds of dust arise :
 They with their smoky bellowings rend the skies.
 The Minyæ fear-congeals ; but he remains
 115 Untoucht, such virtue Sorcery contains.

- Their dew-laps boldly with his hand he strokes :
 Makes them to draw the plough with unknown yokes.
 The Colchians at so strange a sight admire :
 120 The Minye shout, and set his thoughts on fire.
 He in his Cask the Viper's teeth assumes :
 And in the turn'd-up furrows them inhumes.
 Earth mollifies the pois'nous seeds, which spring,
 125 And forth a harvest of new People bring.
 And as an Embryo, in the womb inclos'd,
 Assumes the form of man, within compos'd
 Through all accomplisht numbers ; nor comes forth
 To breathe in air, till his maturer growth :
 So when the bowells of the teeming Earth
 Grew great, she gave mens perfect shapes their birth,
 130 And, what's more strange, with them, their arms
 Who at th² Amonian youth their lances bend. (scend
 When this th² Achaians saw, they hung the head ;
 And all their courages for terrour fled.
 Even she who had secur'd him was afraid,
 135 When she beheld so many one invade.
 A chill cold checks her blood ; death looks less pale
 And, lest the herbs she gave should chance to fail,
 Unheard auxiliary charms sh² imparts,
 And calls th² assistance of her secret Arts.
 He hurls a massie stone among his foes,
 140 Who on themselves convert their deadly blows.
 The Earth-born Brothers mutual wounds destroy,
 And civil war. The Grecians skip for joy,
 And throng t² imbrace the Victour. Her the same
 145 Affection spurr'd ; she was withheld by shame.
 Yet that too weak, if none had lookt upon her :
 Not vertue checkt her, but the wreck of honour.
 Now in conceit she hugs him in her arms ;
 And thanks the Gods, the authours of her charms.
 To make the Dragon sleep that never slept,
 Remains, whose care the golden purchase kept.
 150 Bright-crested, triple-tongu'd, his cruel jaws
 Arm'd with sharp fangs, his feet with dreadfull claws.
 When once besprinkled with Lethæan juice,
 And words repeated thrice, (which sleep produce,
 Calm the rough seas, and make swift rivers stand)
 155 His eye-lids vait'd to sleep's unknown command.
 The Hero of the Golden Fleece possest,
 Proud of the Spoil, with her whose favour blest

His enterprize (a Second Spoil) now bore
To sea, and lands safe on Iolchian shoar.

- Aemonian* Parents for their Sons return
160 Bring gratefull gifts, congested incense burn;
And chearfully with horn-gilt offerings pay
Religious vows. But Aeson was away,
Opprest with tedious age, now near his tomb.
When thus Aesonides: O wife, to whom
165 My life I ow, though all I hold in chief
From thy deserts, which far surpass belief;
If Magick can, (what cannot Magick doe?)
Take years from me, and his with mine renew.
Then wept. His piety her passion stirs;
170 Who sighs to think how she had used her's:
Yet this concealing, answers; What a crime
Hath slipt thy tongue? thinkst thou that with thy time
I can, or will, another's life invest?
Hecate' fore-send: nor is't a just request.
175 Yet, Jason, we a greater gift will give:
Thy Father, by our Art renew'd, shall live,
Without thy loss; if so the triple Pow'r
Assist me with her presence in that hour.
Three nights yet wanted e're the Moon could join
180 Her growing horns. When with replenisht shine
She view'd the Earth, the Court she leaves; her hair
Untrest, her garments loose, her ancles bare;
And wanders through the dead of drowzy Night
185 With unseen steps. Men, beasts, and birds of flight,
Deep Rest had bound in humid gyves: she crept
So silently, as if her self had slept.
No Aspen wags, moist air no sound receives;
Stars onely twinkle. She to those upheaves
190 Her arms; thrice turns about, thrice wets her crown
With gathered dew, thrice yawns; and, kneeling down,
O Night, thou friend to Secrets; you clear Fires,
That, with the Moon, succeed when day retires;
195 Great Hecate, that know'st and aid imparts
To our designs; you Charms and Magick Arts;
And thou, O Earth, that to Magicians yields
Thy powerfull simples; airs, winds, mountains, fields,
Soft murmuring Springs, still lakes, and rivers clear;
You Gods of woods, you Gods of night, appear.
200 By you, at will, I make swift streams retire
To their first fountains, whilst their banks admire;

- Seas tofe, and smooth; clear clouds, with clouds defo
 Storms turn to calms, and make a calm a Storm.
 With spells and charms I break the viper's jaw;
 205 Cleave solid rocks; oaks from their roots I draw;
 Whole woods remove; the airy mountains shake;
 Earth force to groan; and ghosts from graves awake,
 And thee, Titania, from thy sphere I hale;
 Though brass resounding do thy throes avail.
 Our charms thy chariot pale; our pois'nous weeds,
 210 That blushing Goddess which the night succeeds.
 Flame-breathing bulls you tam'd; you made them
 Their stubborn necks unto the servile plow.
 The Serpent's brood by you self-slaughtered lies:
 Your slumbers clos'd the wakefull Dragon eyes,
 215 At our command; and sent the Golden Fleece
 (The guard deluded) to the towers of Greece.
 Now need I drugs that may old age indue
 With vigour, and the flower of youth renew.
 Which you shall give. Nor blaze these stars in vain
 Nor Dragons vainly through the airy main
 220 This Chariot draw. Hard by the Chariot rests.
 Mounting, she strokes the bridled Dragons crests,
 And shakes the reins. Rapt up, beneath the spies.
Thessalian Tempe; and her Snakes applies
 225 To parts remote. The herbs that Ossa bear,
 Steep Pelion, Oibrys, Pindus, ever-clear
Olympus, who proud Pindus over-tops;
 Up roots she, or with brazen sickle crops:
 Much gathers on the bank of Apidan,
 230 By Amphrysus much, and where Enipeus ran.
 Nor Sperchius, nor Penaeus barren found;
 Nor thee, smooth Bæbe with sharp rushes crown'd.
 She gather'd from Eubæan Anthedon.
 That herb as yet by Glaucus change unknown.
 235 By winged Dragons drawn, nine nights, nine daies,
 About the romes, and every field surveys.
 Return'd, her Snakes, that did but opely smell
 The Odours, cast their skins, and age expell.
 Her feet to enter her own roof refuse,
 Roof't by the sky: the touch of man eschews.
 240 Two Altars builds of living turf; the right
 To Hecate, the left to Youth. These dight
 With Vervin and green boughs, hard by two pits
 She forthwith digs; and sacrificing flits

245 The throats of black-fleech'd Bares: with racking blood
 The ditches fill; and pour thereon a flood
 Of honey and new milk, from turn'd-up bowls;
 Repeating powerfull words. The King of Soules
 250 His ravish'd Queen th' myokes, and Powr's beneath,
 Not to precipitate old Ætas's death.
 They with long murmurings and pray'rs appeas'd;
 She bids them to produce the age-diseas'd.
 Her sleep-producing Charm his spirits dead,
 255 Who on the grass his senseless body spreads.
 Charg'd Jason and the rest far off withdrew.
 Unhallowed eyes might not such Secrets view:
 Furious Medea, with her hair unbound,
 About the fragrant Altar trots a Round;
 260 The brands dips in the ditches black with blood,
 And on the Altars fires th' infected wood;
 Thrice purges him with waters, thrice with flames,
 And thrice with sulphur, muttering horrid names.
 Meanwhile in hollow bras the med'cine boils,
 And, swelling high, in foamy bubbles toils.
 265 There sooths she what th' Æmonian vales produce,
 Roots, juices, flow'rs, and seeds of soveraign use:
 Adds stones from Oriental rocks bereft,
 And others by the ebbing Ocean left;
 The Dew collected e're the Dawning Springs;
 270 A Screech-Owl's flesh, with her ill-boding wings;
 The intralls of ambiguous Wolves, that can
 Take, and forsake the figure of a Man;
 The Liver of a long-liv'd Hart: then takes
 The scaly skins of small Cinyphian Snakes;
 275 A Crow's old head and pointed beak was cast
 Among the rest, which had nine ages past.
 These, and a thousand more without a name,
 Were thus prepared by the barbarous Dame,
 For humane benefit. Th' ingredients now
 She mingles with a withered Olive-bough.
 280 Lo, from the caldron the dry stick receives
 First verdure, and a little after leaves;
 Forthwith with over-burthening Olives deckt:
 The skipping froth, with under-flames eject,
 Upon the ground descended in a dew;
 285 Whence vernal flow'rs and springing pasture grew.
 This seen, she cuts the old man's throat, out-scrus'd
 His scarce-warm blood; and her receipt (infus'd)

- His mouth or wound suckt in. His beard and head
 290 Black hairs forthwith adorn, the hoary shed.
 Pale colour, morrow, meager looks remove;
 And under rising flesh his wrinkles smooth.
 His limbs wax strong and lusty. Aeson much
 Admires his change; himself remembers such
 Twice twenty Summers past: withall, indu'd
 295 A youthfull mind, and both at once renew'd.
 This wonder from on high Lyæus views:
 By Col. his gift his Nurses dates renews.
 Lest fraud should cease, she with her bed's Consort
 300 Dissension feigns, and flies to Pelias Court.
 His Daughters (for sad age the King arrests)
 Her entertain. She soon, with lye protests
 Of forged love, allures their quick belief:
 Her many merits mentions, but in chief
 305 Old Aeson's cure, insisting on that part.
 This hope ingenders, that her able Art
 Might to their Father's vanish youth restore.
 Her they with infinite rewards implore.
 She, musing, seems to doubt, and, with pretence
 310 Of difficulty, holds them in suspense.
 But when she had a tardy promise made;
 To win your stedfast confidence, (she said)
 Take from your flocks the most age-shaken Ram,
 And suddenly he shall become a Lamb.
 315 Straight thither by the wreathed horns they drew
 A sunk-ey'd Ram, whose youth none living knew.
 Now at his rivell'd throat out-lancing life,
 (Whose little blood could hardly stain her Knife)
 His carcase she into a Caldron throws;
 With it, her drugs. Each limb more slender grows:
 320 He casts his horns, and with his horns his years:
 Anon a tender bleating strikes their ears.
 While they admire, out skips a frisking Lamb,
 That sports, and seeks the Udder of his Dam.
 Fixt with amaze, they, strongly now possest,
 325 Her promise more importunately press.
 Thrice Phæbus had unyok'd his panting Steeds,
 Drencht in Iberian Seas, whilst Night succeeds,
 Studded with stars; when false Medea took,
 With useless herbs, meer waters of the brook.
 330 On Pelias, and his drowzy Guard, she hung
 A death-like sleep with her inebriating tongue.

Whom now the so-instructed Sisters led
Into his chamber, and besiege his bed.

Why pause you thus, said she, O slow to good ?
Unleath your sword, and shed his aged blood ;
335 That his veins with spritely juice may fill.
His life and youth depends upon your will.
If you have any vertue, nor pursue
340 Unfruitfull hopes, perform this filial due.
With steel your father's age expulse, and purge
His dregs through wounds. Their zeal her speeches urge.
Who were most pious, impious first became ;
Shunning Unnaturalness, they act the same.
Yet hearts they had not to behold the blow,
But with averted looks blind wounds bestow.
345 He, bloud-imbrew'd, his hoary head advanc'd ;
Half-mangled strove to rise ; and now intranc'd
Amidst so many swords, his arms up-held,
And, Daughters, cry'd, what doe you ? what compell'd
Those cruel hands t' invade your Father's life ?
Down sunk their hands and hearts. Medea's knife
350 His following speech and throat asunder cuts :
She his backe lims in seething liquour puts.

And had not Dragons rapt her through the skies,
Revenge had tortur'd her. Aloft she flies
O're shady Pelion, God-like Chiron's Den,
355 Aspiring Othrys, hills renown'd by men
For old Cerambus safety : who, by aid
Of favouring Nymphs, relief-full wings display'd,
While swallowing waves the weighty Earth confound ;
And swo'n Dekalion's surges seap'd, undrown'd.
Aolian Pitane on her left hand leaves ;
360 That Marble which the Serpent's shape receives ;
Idean groves, where Liber turn'd a Steer
(To cloke his son's lie theft) into a Deer ;
The sand-heap which Corytus Sire contains ;
And where new-barking Mora frights the plains :
365 Eurypylus town, where horns the Matrons sham'd
Of Co, when Hercules the Coans tam'd ;
Phaebian Rhodes, Jalyssin Tetchines,
Drencht by Jove's vengeance in his brother's seas,
For all transforming with their vicious eyes.
370 By Cea's old Cartheian walls she flies,
Where fates Alcidamus with wonder move,
To think his Daughter could become a Dove.

Then

- Then Hyrie's lake, Eumenis Tempe view'd,
 Grac'd by a Swan with sudden plumes indu'd.
 For Phyllis there had, at a Boy's command,
 375 Wild Birds and savage Lions brought to hand;
 And bid to tame a Bull, his will perform'd:
 Yet at so stern a love not seldom storm'd,
 And his last purchase to the Boy deny'd.
 Pouting, You'l wish you'd given him me, he cry'd;
 380 And jump't from down-right cliffs. All held him slain
 When spreading wings a silver Swan sustain.
 His mother (ignorant thereof) became
 A Lake with weeping, which they Hyrie name.
 385 Next Pleuron lies, where Ophian Combe shuns,
 With trembling wings, her life-pursuing sons.
 Then near Latona-lov'd Calauria rang'd,
 In which the King and Queen to birds were chang'd,
Cyllene on the right hand, where that beast
Menephron would his mother have compress'd.
 390 Cephisus spies, who for his nephew mourn'd,
 Into a Sea-calf by Apollo turn'd:
Eumelus Court, whose Daughter sads her Sire
 With mounting wings. Her Snakes at length retire
 To Piren Ephyre: men, if Fame say true,
 395 Here at the first from show'r-rai'd mushrooms grew.
 But after Colchis had the new-wed Dame,
 And Creon's Palace, wrapt in Magick flame,
 When impious steel her childrens blood had shed,
 She ill-reveng'd from Jason's fury fled.
 400 Whom now the swift Titanian Dragons draw
 To Pallas towers. Those thee, just Phineus, saw,
 And thee, old Periphas, together fly:
 Where Polyphemon's Neere new wings supply.
Aegaeus entertains her, (of his life
 405 The onely stain) and took her for his wife.
 And now arrives, unknown, Aegaeus seed,
 Who, great in name, had two-sea'd Isthmos freed;
 Whose undeserved ruin Phasias sought,
 By mortal Aconite, from Scythia brought.
 410 This from th' Echidnean Dog dire essence draws.
 There is a blind steep cave with foggy jaws,
 Through which the bold Tymthian Hero strain'd,
 Dragg'd Cerberus with adamant inchain'd:
 Who backward hung, and, scowling, lookt askew
 415 On glorious day, with anger rabid grew;

- Thrice howls, thrice barks at once, with his three heads,
 And on the grass his foamy poison sheds,
 This Spring, attracting from the fruitfull Soil
 Dire nourishment, and power of deathfull spoil.
 420 The rural Swains, because it takes delight
 In barren rocks, surnam'd it Aconite.
Aegæu, by her sly perswasions won,
 As to a foe, presents it to his Son.
 He took the cup : when, by his Ivory hilt,
 He both his Son discovered, and her guilt ;
 425 And struck the potion from his lips. With charms
 Ingendring clouds she scapes his lengthless arms.
 Though glad of his Son's safety, a chill fear shook all his powers, that danger was so near:

 Is now secure, inhumane Sciron dead.
 The Earth his scatter'd bones a grave deny'd ;
 Nor would the Sea his hated reliques hide :
 Which, tossed to and fro, in time became
 A solid rock : the rock we Sciron name.
 450 If we thy years should number with thy acts,
 Thy years would prove a cypher to thy facts.
 Great soul, for thee, as for our publick wealth,
 We pray, and quaff Lyæu to thy health.
 The Palace with the people's praises rings ;
 And sacred joy in every bosome springs.
 455 Aegæu yet (no pleasure is compleat :
 Grief twines with joys :) for Thesew safe receit

 Which, tossed to and fro, in time became
 A solid rock : the rock we Sciron name.
 450 If we thy years should number with thy acts,
 Thy years would prove a cypher to thy facts.
 Great soul, for thee, as for our publick wealth,
 We pray, and quaff Lyæus to thy health.
 The Palace with the people's praises rings ;
 And sacred joy in every bosome springs.
 455 Aegæus yet (no pleasure is compleat :
 Grief twines with joys :) for Thesew safe receit

135 METAMORPHOSIS,

- Reaps little comfort. Minos threatens war,
 Though strong in men and ships, yet stronger far
 Through vengeance of a Father ; who his harms,
 460 In slain Androgeos, scourgeth with just arms.
 Yet wisely first endeavours foreign aid ;
 And all the Islands of that Sea survey'd.
 He Anaphe and Astypalea gains ;
 The one by gifts, the other war constrains ;
 465 Low Mycone, Cimolus chalky fields,
 High Scyros, Cythnos, which rich metals yields,
Champaign Seriphos, Paros far display'd
 With marble brows, Sithonis ill-betray'd
 By impious Arne for, yet-loved, gold,
 470 Turn'd to a Chough, whom sable plumes infold.
Oliaros, Didyme, the Sea-lov'd soil
 Of Tenos, Peparethos fat with oil,
Andros, and Gyaros ; these their aid deny'd.
 The Gnosian fleet from thence their sails apply'd
 Unto Oenopia, for her children fam'd :
 475 Oenopia by the ancient dwellers nam'd ;
 But Æacus, there reigning, call'd the same
Ægina, of his honour'd Mother's name.
 All throng to see a Prince of so great worth :
 Straight Telamon and Telem, issuing forth,
 With Phocus, youngest of that royal race,
 480 Make hast to meet him. With a tardy pace
 Came aged Æacus, and ask'd the cause
 Of his repair. When, after some short pause,
 With sighs, which his imbosom'd grief display'd,
 The Ruler of the hundred Cities said :
 Assist our arms, born for my murth'red son,
 And in this pious war our fortunes run ;
 485 Give comfort to his grave. The King reply'd,
 In vain you ask what needs must be deny'd :
 No City is in stricter league than ours
 Conjoin'd to Athens ; mutual are our pow'rs.
 He, parting, said, Your league shall cost you dear.
 And held it better far to threaten, than bear
 490 A war so hazzardous, whereby he might
 Consume his force before he came to fight.
 Yet might they see the Cretans under sail
 From high-built walls, when, with a leading gale,
 An Attick ship attain'd their friendly shoar,
 495 Which Cephalus and his embassy bore.

Th' Æacides him know, (though many a day
 Unseen) imbrace, and to the Court convey.
 The goodly Prince, who yet th' impression held
 Of those perfections which in youth excell'd,
 100 Enters the Palace, bearing in his hand
 A branch of Attick Olive. By him stand
Clytus and Butes, valorous and young;
 Who from the loins of high-born Pallas sprung.
 First Cephalus his full Oration made;
 Which shew'd his message, and demanded aid:
 105 Their leagues and ancient loves to mind recalls;
 And how all Greece was threatned in their falls:
 With eloquence inforcing's embassie.
 When God-like Æacus made this reply;
 (His royal Scepter shining in his hand)
Athenians, crave not succour, but command.
 110 This Island's forces yours vouchsafe to call;
 For in your aid I will adventure all.
 Souldiers I have enough, at once t'oppose
 My enemies, and to repell your foes.
 The Gods be prais'd, and happy times, that will Bear no excuses. May your Citie still
 Increase with people, Cephalus reply'd.
 115 At my approach I not a little joy'd,
 To meet so many youths of equal years,
 So fresh and lusty. Yet not one appears
 Of those who heretofore your town possess,
 When first you entertain'd me for a Guest.
 Then Æacus, (in sighs his words ascend)
 120 A sad beginning had a better end.
 Would I could utter all: Day would expire
 Ere all were told, and 'twould your patience tire.
 Their bones and ashes silent graves inclose.
 And what a treasure perished with those!
 125 By Juno's wrath, a dreadfull pestilence
 Devour'd our lives. She took unjust offence,
 In that this Isle her Rival's name profess.
 While it seem'd humane, and the cause unquest,
 So long we death-repelling Physick try'd:
 But those diseases vanquisht Art deride.
 130 Heav'n first the Earth with thickned vapours shrouds,
 And lazy heat involves in sullen clouds.
 Four pallid Moons their growing horns unite,
 And had as oft withdrawn their feeble light;

- Yet still the death-producing Auster blew.
 535 The Springs and standing Lakes infected grew.
 Serpents in untill'd fields by millions creep;
 And in the streams their tainting poisons steep.
 Dogs, Oxen, Sheep, and savage Beasts first die:
 Nor Birds could from the swift infection fly.
 540 Sad Swains, amazed, see their Oxen shrink
 Beneath the yoke, and in the furrows sink.
 The fleecy Flocks with anguish faintly bleat,
 Let fall their wool, and pine away with heat.
 The generous Horse, that from the Race of late
 Return'd with honour, now degenerate,
 545 Unmindfull of the glory of his prize,
 Groans at his manger, and there deedless dies.
 The Boar forgets his rage: swift feet now fail
 The Hart: nor Bears the horned Herd assail.
 All languish. Woods, fields, paths (no longer bare)
 550 Are fill'd with carcases, that stench the air:
 Which neither Dogs, nor greedy Fowl (how much
 To be admir'd!) nor hoary Wolves would touch.
 These putrefy, and deadly Odours bred,
 That round about their dire contagion spread.
 Now Plague among the wretched Countrey-Swains
 555 Now in our large and populous City reigns.
 At first, their bowels broil, with fervour stretcht:
 The symptoms, redness, hot wind hardly fetcht.
 Their furr'd tongues swell; their dry jaws gasp
 And with the air inhale a swifter death.
 560 None could endure or coverture, or bed;
 But on the stones their panting bodies spread.
 Cold stones could no way mitigate that heat:
 Even they beneath those burning burthens sweat.
 None cure attempt: the stern disease invades
 The heartless Leech; nor Art her authour aids.
 565 The near ally'd, whose care the sick attends,
 Sicken themselves, and die before their friends.
 Of remedy they see no hope at all,
 But only in approaching funeral.
 All, their desires obey; for help none care;
 Help was there none: in shameless throngs repair
 570 To Springs and Wells: there stick, in bitter strife
 To extinguish thirst; but first extinguish life.
 Nor could sh' o're-charg'd arise; but, dying, sink
 And of those tainted waters others drink.

The wretches loath their tedious Beds, thence break
 575 With giddy steps ; or, if now grown too weak,
 Roul on the floor : their quitted Houses hate,
 As guilty of their miserable fate ;
 And, ignorant of the cause, the place accuse.
 580 Half-Ghosts they walk'd, while they their legs could
 You might see others on the earth lie mourning, (use.
 Their heavy eyes with dying motion turning,
 Stretching their arms to heav'n ; where-ever death
 Surpris'd them, parting with their sigh'd-out breath.
 585 Oh what a heart had I ! or ought to have !
 I loath'd my life, and wisht with them a grave.
 Which way soever I convert my eye,
 The breathless multitude dispersed lie ;
 Like perisht apples dropping with the strokes
 Of rocking winds, or acorns from broad oaks.
 590 See you ycn Temple, mounted on high stairs ?
 'Tis Jupiter's. Who hath not offer'd prayers,
 And slighted incense, there ; Husbands for Wives,
 Fathers for Sons ? and while they pray, their livcs
 They 'fore th' inexorable Altars vent,
 With incense in their hands, half yet unspent.
 How oft the Ox unto the Temple brought,
 595 While yet the Priest the angry Powers besought,
 And pour'd pure wine between his horns, fell down,
 Before the ax had touch'd his curled crown ?
 To Jupiter about to sacrifice,
 For me, my countrey, sons ; with horrid noise
 600 Th' unwounded Offring fell ; and now the wound
 Scarce bloud to wet the knife, that made it, found.
 The Inwards lost their signs of heav'n's presage,
 Out-razed by the stern Disease's rage.
 The dead before the sacred doors were laid,
 605 Before the Altars too ; the Gods t' upbraid.
 Some choke themselves with cords ; by death eschew
 The fear of death ; and instant Fates pursue.
 Dead corpes without Dues of funeral
 They weakly bear : the Ports are now too small.
 Or un-interr'd they lie ; or else are thrown 610 On wealthless Piles. Respect they give to none.
 For Piles they strive : on those their kingsfolk burn,
 That flame for others. None are left to mourn ;
 Ghosts wander undeplor'd by sons or fires :
 615 Nor is there room for tombs, or wood for fires.

Astonisht

- Astonisht with these tempests of extreams,
 O Jove, said I, if they be more then dreams
 That laid thee by Aegina; nor thy ire
 Incensed be, that I should call thee fire;
 620 Render me mine, or me afford a grave.
 With prosperousthunder-claps a sign he gave.
 I take it, said I; let this Omen be
 A happy pledge of thy intents to me.
 Hard by, a goodly Oak by fortune stood,
 625 Sacred to Jove, of Dodoneian wood.
 Grain-gathering Ants there in long files I saw,
 Who with their little mouths great burthens draw,
 Keeping their paths along the rugged rine.
 While I admire their number; O divine,
 And ever helpfull, give to me, said I,
 630 As many men, who may the dead supply.
 The trembling Oak his lofty top declin'd,
 And murmured without a breath of wind.
 I shook with fear, my tresses stood an end:
 Yet on the earth and oak I kisses spend.
 I durst not seem to hope, yet hope I did;
 635 And in my breast my cherisht wishes hid.
 Night came, and sleep care-wasted bodies chear'd:
 Before my eyes the self-same Oak appear'd:
 So many branches, as before, there were;
 So many busie Ants those branches bear;
 So shook the Oak, and with that motion threw
 640 To under-earth the grain-supporting crue.
 Greater and greater straight they seem to fight;
 To raise themselves from earth, and stand upright.
 These, numerous feet, black colour, lankness leave;
 And instantly a humane shape receive.
 645 Now sleep withdrew. My dream I waking blame;
 And on the small-performing Gods exclaim:
 Yet heard a mighty noise, and seem'd t' have heard
 Almost forgotten voices: yet I fear'd
 That this a dream was also. Whereupon,
 The door thrust open, in rusht Telamon.
 Come forth, said he, O father, and behold
 650 What hope transcends, nor can with faith be told.
 Forth went I, and beheld the men which late
 My dream presented; such in every state
 I saw, and knew them. They salute their King.
Jove prais'd, a party to the town I bring;

Leave to the rest the empty fields ; and call
 Them Myrmidons, of their original.
 You see their persons : such their manners are
 As formerly ; a people given to spare,
 Patient of labour, what they get preserve.
 They, like in years and minds, these wars shall serve,
 And follow your conduct ; when first this wind
 (The wind blew Easterly) that was so kind
 To bring you hither, will to your avail
 Convert it self into a Southern gale.

Discourse thus entertain'd the day ; With Feasts
 They crown the Evening ; Sleep the Night possess.
 The Morning Sun projects his golden rays :
 Still Eurus blew, and their departure stays.
 Now Pallas sons to Cephalus resort,
 And Cephalus with Pallas sons to Court,
 With early visits : (sleep the King inchains)
 Whom Phocus at the entrance entertains.
 For Pelem, with his brother Telamon,
 To raise an army were already gone.
Phocus meanwhile into an inward room,
 Of fair receipt, th' Athenians led ; with whom,
 They seated first, he sits. His fancy fed
 Upon the Javelin with the golden head,
 Held by Æolides : of what tree made
 Being ignorant, some speeches past, he said ;
 I haunt the desert woods, delight in blood
 Of savage Beasts ; yet know not of what wood
 Your Dart consists. For if of Ash it were,
 'Twould look more brown ; if Cornel, 'twould appear
 More knotty. On what tree soe'er it grew,
 Mine eyes so fair a Dart did never view.
 One of th' Aëean brethren made reply :
 You would more wonder at the quality.
 It hits the aim'd at, not by fortune led ;
 And of it self returns with slaughter red.
Phocus the cause desireth much to know,
 From whence it came, and who did it bestow.
 He yields to his request : yet things well known,
 Restrain'd by modesty, he lets alone.
 An^d, toucht with sorrow for his wife, that bleeds
 In his remembrance, thus with tears proceeds.
 This Dart, O Goddess-born, provokes these tears :
 And ever would, if endless were my years.

This,

- This me, in my unhappy Wife, destroy'd :
 695 This gift I would I never had enjoy'd.
Procris Oribya's sister was ; if Fame
 Have more inform'd you of Oribya's name.
 Yet she (should you their minds and forms confer)
 700 More worth the rape. Erechibem me to her,
 And Love, unite. Then happy, happy I
 Might yet have been. But, Oh ! the Gods envy.
 Two months were now consum'd in chaste delight ;
 705 When gray Aurora, having vanquish'd Night,
 Beheld me on the ever-fragrant hill
 Of steep Hymettus, and, against my will,
 As I my Toils extended, bare me thence.
 I may the truth declare without offence.
 Though rose be her Cheeks ; although she sway
 The dewy Confiner of the Night and Day,
 And Nectar drink ; my Procris all possest :
 710 My Heart was hers, my Tongue her praise profess.
 I told her of her holy Nuptial ties,
 Of Wedlock's breach, and yet-scarce-tasted joys.
 Fire-red, she said, Thy harsh complaints forbear ;
 Possess thy Procris : though so fair, so dear,
 715 Thou'lt wish th' hadst never known her, if I know
 Insuing fate : and, angry, lets me go.
 Her words I ponder'd as I went along ;
 Began to doubt Procris might m' honour wrong.
 Her youth and beauty tempt me to distrust :
 Her vertue checks those fears as most unjust.
 720 But I was absent : but example fed
 My jealousy : but lovers all things dread.
 I seek my sorrows ; and with gifts intend
 To tempt the chaste. Aurora proves a friend
 725 To this suspicion, and my form translates.
 Unknown, I enter the Athenian gates,
 And then my own. The house from blame was free,
 In decent order, and perplex for me.
 Scarce with a thousand sleights I gain'd her view.
 730 View'd, with astonishment I scarce pursue
 My first intent : scarce could I then forbear
 Due kisses, scarce, not what I was appear.
 She still was sad ; yet lovelier none then she,
 Even in that sadness ; sorrowfull for me.
 735 How excellent, O Phocis, was that face,
 Which could in grief retain so sweet a grace ?

What need I tell how often I assail'd
 Her vexed chastity, how oft I fail'd ?
 How often said she, One I onely serve :
 For him, where-ever, I my bed preserve.
 What mad man would such faith have farther prest,
 But I, industrious to my own unrest ?
 With fervent vows, and gifts still multiply'd,
 At length she wavers. False of faith, I cry'd,
 Thou art disclos'd : I no Adulterer,
 But thy wrong'd Spouse ; nor can this trial erre.
 She made no answer, prest with silent shame,
 Th' unhappy house, and me, far more in blame,
 Forsaking : mankind for my sake th' eschews,
 And, Dian-like, the mountain-chace pursues.
 Abandon'd, hotter flames my bloud incense.
 I pardon begg'd, confessing my offence ;
 And said, Aurora might have me subdu'd
 With such enticements, had but she so woo'd.
 My fault confest, her wrong revenged, we
 Grow reconcil'd, and happily agree.
 Besides her self, as though that gift were small,
 A Dog she gave ; which, Cynthia giving, All,
 Said she, shall pass in swiftness : and this Spear
 You so commend, which in my hand I bear.
 Do you the fortune of the first inquire ?
 Receive a wonder, and the fact admire.

Dark prophecies, not understood of old,
 The Naiades with searching wits unfold.
 When sacred Themis, in that so obscure,
 Neglected grew. Nor could she this endure.
 A cruel Beast infests th' Aonian plains,
 To many fatal, fear'd by Countrey Swains,
 Both for their cattel, and themselves. I met
 The neighbouring youth, our Toils the fields beset.
 He nimbly skips above the upper lines,
 And, mounting over, frustrates our designs.
 The dogs uncouple ; from them all he springs,
 With no less speed then if supply'd by wings.
 All bid me let my Lelaps slip, (for so
 My dog was call'd ;) who, struggling long ago,
 Half-throttled, strain'd the leash. No sooner gone
 Then out of sight, his foot-steps left he on
 The burning sand, but vanish from our eyes,
 As swiftly as a well-driven Javelin flies ;

Or

- Or as a singing Pellet from a Sling ;
 780 Or as an Arrow from a Cretan String.
 I mount a hill which over-topt the place,
 From thence beholding this admired chace.
 The beast now pincht appears, now thuns by flight
 His catching jaws: nor (crafty) runs out-right,
 785 Nor trusts his heels ; with nimble turnings shunning
 His urgent foe, in stead of over-running.
 He at his heels, well match'd, doth now appear
 To catch th' uncaught, and mounth the empty air.
 My dart I take to aid : which while I shook,
 790 And on the thong direct my hasty look,
 To fit my fingers, looking up again,
 I saw two marble Statues on the plain.
 Had you these seen, you could not chuse but say,
 That this appear'd to run, and that to bay.
 That neither should each other over-go,
 795 The Gods decreed : if Gods descend so low.
 Thus he, and paus'd. Then Phocæus, Pray unfold
 Your Dart's offence. Which Cephalus thus told.
 Joy Grief fore-runs : that Joy we first recite.
 For, O, those times I mention with delight,
 800 When youth and Hymen crown'd our happy life,
 She in her Husband blest, I in my Wife.
 In both one care, and one affection moves :
 She would not have exchang'd my bed for Jove's ;
 Nor Venus could have tempted my desire :
 805 Our bosoms flam'd with such an equal fire.
 When Sol had rais'd his beams above the fouds,
 My custom was to trace the leafy woods.
 Arm'd with this dart, alone I hunting went,
 Without horse, huntsmen, toils, or dogs of scent.
 810 Much kill'd, I to the cooler shades repair.
 And where the valley breaths a fresher air.
 Cool air I seek, while all with fervour glows ;
 Cool air expect, the cause of my repose.
 815 Come, Air, I use to sing, relieve th' oppress'd ;
 Come, O most welcome, glide into my breast :
 Now quench, as erst, in me this scalding heat.
 By chance I other blandishments repeat :
 (So Fates in'orce) as, O my sou's delight,
 820 By thee I'm fed and chear'd ; thy sweets excite
 M' affections to these woods : O may thy breath
 Still fix with mine, and so preserve from death.

A busie ear these doubtfull speeches caught,
 5 Who oft-nam'd Air some much-lov'd Dryad thought ;
 And told my Procris with a leuder tongue
 His false surmises, with the song I sung.
 Love is too credulous. With grief she faints,
 And, scarce reviving, bursts into complaints ;
 My spotless faith with fury execrates :
 10 Woe's me, she cries, produc'd to cruel fates !
 Transported with imaginary blame,
 What's not, she fears ; an unsubstantial name :
 Yet grieves, (poor soul !) as if in truth abus'd ;
 Yet often doubts, and her distrust accus'd.
 15 Now holds the information for a lie ;
 Nor will trust other witness then her eye.
Aurora re-inthron'd th' insuing Day :
 I hunt, and speed. As on the grafs I lay,
 Come, Air, said I, my tired spirits chear.
 20 At this an unknown sigh invades my ear.
 Yet I ; O come, before all joys preferr'd.
 I then among the leaves a rustling heard,
 And threw my dart, supposing it some beast.
 But, O ! 'twas Procris : wounded on the breast,
 25 She thriek'd at me. Her voice too well I knew ;
 And thither, with my grief-distracted, flew.
 Half dead, all bloud-imbrew'd, my Wife I found,
 Her gift (alas !) extracting from her wound.
 I rais'd her body, then my own more dear ;
 30 To bind her wounds, my lighter garments tear,
 And strive to staunch the bloud. O, pity take,
 Said I, nor thus a guilty soul forsake.
 She, weak, and now a-dying, thus replies :
 (Her last of speech) By all our nuptial ties,
 35 By heav'n-imbowred Gods, by those below,
 To whose infernal monarchy I go,
 By that, if ever I deserved well,
 By this ill-fated love, for which I fell,
 Yet now in death most constantly retain,
 O, let not Air our chaster bed prophane.
 This said, I shew'd, and she perceived, how
 40 That error grew : but what avail'd it now ?
 She sinks ; her bloud along her spirits took :
 She looks on me as long as she could look.
 My lips her soul receive, with her last breath ;
 Who, now resolved, sweetly smiles in death.

The weeping Hero told this Tragedy
To those that wept as fast. The King drew nigh,
And his two sons, with well-arm'd Regiments,
New rais'd ; which he to Cephalus presents.

OVID'S

METAMORPHOSIS

THE EIGHTH BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

H *Armonious Walls. Lewd Scylla now despairs,
With Nilus, chang'd : the Lark the Hobby
Ariadne's Crown a Constellation made.
To inventive youth a Partridge, still afraid
Of mounting. Meleager's Sisters mourn
His Tragedy: to Fowl, so named, turn.
Five Water-nymphs, the five Echinades
Demonstrate. Perimele, near to these,
Becomes an Island. Jove and Hermes take
The forms of Men. A City turn'd i' a Lake;
A Cottage to a Temple. That good pair,
Old Baucis and Philemon, changed are
At once to sacred Trees. In various shapes
Blue Proteus sports. Of self-chang'd Metra scapes
Storn'd servitude. The Stream of Calydon
Forsakes his own, and other shapes puts on.*

N *ow Lucifer exalts the Day, to Hell
Old Night descends; the Eastern winds
Moist clouds arose; when gentle South
Besfriend returning Cephalus. Full sails
Wing his successfull course; who long before
All expectation touch'd the wished shore.*

5 Mean while just Minos wafts Lelegia's coast,
 And girts Alcathoe City with his Hoast.
 This Nisus held ; whose head a purple Hair,
 'Mong those of honourable silver, bare ;
 10 His Kingdom's strength. Six aged Moons grew young ;
 Yet wars success in equal balance hung :
 Slow Victory, in choice yet what to doe,
 With doubtfull wings 'twixt either army flew.
 A royal Tower, with sounding walls, there stands,
 15 Erected by Apollo's sacred hands :
 Whereon, they say, he laid his golden Lyre ;
 Whose strings the stones with harmony inspire.
 This, Nisus Daughter oft ascends alone,
 And drops small pebbles on the warbling stone,
 20 In time of peace. When war had peace expell'd,
 Thence she the conflicts of stern Mars beheld.
 By this delay, the Princes names she knows,
 Their arms, horse, habits, and Cydonian bows ;
Europa's Son, the General, yet she knew
 More then the rest, more then 'twas fit to do.
 25 For when he wore his fairly-plumed cask,
 She thought him lovely in that warlike mask :
 Or when his brass-refulgent shield he rais'd,
 His gracefull gesture infinitely the prais'd.
 Nor could his practis'd arm let flie a dart,
 But straight sh' extolls his strength, conjoyn'd with art.
 30 If he an arrow drew, she'd swear that so
Apollo stood, when he discharg'd his Bow.
 But when, his helmet off, he shew'd his face ;
 When clad in purple, with a gallant grace,
 He on his hot high-bounding Courser sits,
 35 O then she scarce is mistress of her wits.
 Happy she cal's the launce his hand sustains :
 Happy she calls his hand-sustained reins.
 And had she pow'r, she would have madly past
 Through all the hostile ranks ; her self have cast
 40 Amidst the Cretan tents, even from that Tower ;
 Or op'd the brass-ribb'd gates to Minos power ;
 Or what he else could wish. She then survey'd
 The Gnosian King's white Tent, and softly said ;
 Whether I should for this so sad a war
 Or joy, or grieve, within my self I jar.
 45 Alas, that he I love should be my foe !
 But I'd not known him, had it not been so.

- Yet me in hostage might he take, of peace
 A pledge, me for his spouse ; and wars surcease.
 No marvel though a God her beauty took,
 50 If she that bare thee had so sweet a look.
 Thrice happy I, could I with wings prevent
 This dull delay, and fly to Minos tent !
 My self I would disclose, confesse my flame ;
 55 And buy him with what dowry he should name,
 But to betray these towers. Die, die, desire,
 E're I by treason to your ends aspire.
 Yet, through the Victour's clemency, it some,
 Nay many, hath avail'd t' have been o'recome.
 Just war he wageth for his son's sad end :
 His cause is strong, strong arms his cause defend.
 60 Sure we must fall. If such our Citie's fate ;
 Why should his Power inthroned him in this State,
 And not my Love ? better, without delay,
 His souldiers bloud, his own, he conquer may.
 For ill-presaging fears my rest confound,
 65 Lest some, not knowing him, should Minos wound.
 For no heart is so hard, that did him know,
 And would a Launce against his bosome throw.
 Then thus ; with me, my Countrey I intend
 To render up, and give these wars an end.
 What is't to intend ? Each passage hath a guard ;
 70 My father keeps the keys, sees the gates barr'd.
 'Tis he defers my joys ; 'tis him I dread :
 Would I were not, or he were with the dead.
 Tush, we are our own Gods. They thrive that dare
 And Fortune is a foe to slothfull pray'r.
 Long since, another scortcht with such a fire,
 75 By death had forc'd a way to her desire.
 And why should any more adventurous prove ?
 I dare through sword and fire make way to Love,
 And yet here is no use of fire nor sword ;
 But of my Father's hair. This must afford
 What I so much affect, and make me blest ;
 80 Richer then all the treasure of the East.
 This said, Night, nurse of cares, her curtains drew
 When in the dark the more audacious grew.
 In prime of rest, when tir'd with day-bred cares
 Sleep all infolds, she silently repairs
 Into her Father's bed-chamber, and there
 85 Picks out (O horrid act !) his fatal hair.

Seiz'd on her wicked prey, with her she bore
 The guilty spoil, unlock'd a Postern door ;
 Then past the foe, (bold by her merit made)
 And to the King not un-astonisht said :
 Inforc'd by Love, I Scylla, Nisus Seed,
 Yield up my Country, and my Gods: no meed,
 But thee, I crave. This purple hair receive,
 My love's rich pledge : nor think a hair I give,
 But my old Father's head. And therewith she Presents the gift with wicked hand. But he Rejects her profer : and much terrifi'd
 With horror of so foul a deed, reply'd ;
 The Gods exile thee (O thou most abhorr'd !)
 Their world ; to thee nor Land nor Sea afford.
 Howe're, Jove's Creet, the world wherein I reign,
 Shall such a Monster never entertain.

This said, the most just Victor doth impose
 Laws no less just upon his vanquisht foes :
 Then orders, that they forthwith oars conveigh
 Aboard the brass-beak'd ships, and anchors weigh.

When Scylla saw the Gnossian navy swim,
 And that her Treason was abhorr'd by him,
 To violent anger she converts her prayers,
 And, Fury-like, with stretcht arms, and spread hairs,
 Cry'd ; Whither fly'st thou, leaving me, whose love
 With conquest crown'd thee ? O prefer'd above
 My Country, Father ; 'twas not thou didst win,
 But I that gave ; my merit, and my sin.
 Yet this, nor such affection could persuade :
 Nor that on thee I all my hopes had laid.
 For whither should I go, thus left alone ?
 What ? to my Country ? that's by me o'rethrown.
 Wer't not, my treason dooms me to exile.
 Or to my Father, giv'n unto thy spoil ?
 Me worthily the Citizens will hate :
 And neighbours fear th' example in their State.
 I out of all the world my self have thrown,
 To purchase an access to Creet alone.
 Which if deny'd, and I left to despair ;
Europa never one so thankless bare :
 But swallowing Syrus, Charybdis chaf'd with wind,
 Or some fell Tiger of th' Armenian kind.
Jove's nor thy Father ; nor with forged shape
 Of Bull beguil'd, thy Mother suffer'd rape.

- That story of thy glorious race is feign'd :
 125 For she a wild and loveless Bull sustain'd.
 O father Nisus, thy revenge behold.
 Rejoyce, O City, by my treason sold.
 Death, I confess, I merit. Yet would I
 Might by their hands whom I have injur'd die.
 For why shouldst thou, who onely didst subdue
 By my offending, my offence pursue?
- 130 My Country and my Father felt this sin ;
 Which unto thee hath meritorious been.
 Thou worthy art of such a wife, as stood
 A Bull's hot lust, within a Cow of wood ;
 Whose shameless womb a monstrous burthen bare.
 Ah ! do my sorrows to thy ears repair ?
 Or are my fruitless words born by that wind
- 135 That bears thee hence, and leaves me wretch behind ?
 No marvel though Pasiphaë preferr'd
 A Bull 'fore thee more savage then the Herd.
 Woe's me ! make haste I must : the waves with oars
 Resound ; his ship forsakes, with us, our shores.
- 140 In vain ! I'll follow thee ungratefull King ;
 And, while I to thy crooked vessel cling,
 Be dragg'd through drenching seas. This having said,
 She takes the waves, by Cupid's strengthening aid,
 And cleaves t' his ship. Her Father, now high-flown,
- 145 Strikes airy wings, (a red-mail'd Hobby grown)
 And stoops to cuff her with his golden ears.
 She slips her hold, ineebled by her fears.
 While yet a-falling, that she might eschew
 The threatning sea, light wings t' her shoulders grew.
- 150 She changes to a bird in sight of all :
 This, of that raviisht Hair, we Ciris call.
 No sooner Minos touch'd the Cretan ground,
 But by an hundred Bulls, with garlands crown'd,
 His vows to conquest-giving Jove he pay'd ;
 And all his palace with the spoil array'd.
- 155 And now his familie's reproach increast ;
 That uncouth Prodigie, half man, half beast,
 The mother's foul adultery descry'd.
Minos resolv'd his marriage shame to hide
 In multitude of rooms, perplexed and blind,
 The work t' excelling Daedalus assign'd :
- 160 Who sense distracts, and error-leads a maze
 Through subtle ambages of sundry ways.

As Phrygian Meander sports about
 The flowry vales, now winding in, now out ;
 Himself incounters, sees what follows, guides
 65 His streams unto their Springs, and, doubling, slides
 To long-mockt seas : so Dædalm compil'd
 Innumerable by-ways, which beguil'd
 The troubled sense; that he, who made the same,
 Could scarce retire : so intricate the frame.
 Within this fabrick Minos then inclos'd
 70 This double form, of man and beast compos'd.
 The Monster, with Athenian blood twice fed,
 The third Lot, in the ninth year, vanquished.
 Who by a Clew was guided to the door
 (A virgin's counsel) never found before.
Ægides, with rapt Ariadne, makes
 For Dia ; on the naked shore forsakes
 75 His confident and sleep-oppressed Mate.
 Now, pining in complaints, the desolate
Bacchus with marriage comforts, and that the Might glorious by a Constellation be,
 Her head unburthens of her crown, and threw
 It up to heav'n : through thinner air it flew.
 80 Flying, the jewels that the verge inchase
 Convert to fires, fast fixed in one place ;
 Th' old form retaining. They their station take,
 'Twixt him that kneels, and him who holds the Snake.
 The Sea-imprison'd Dædalm, meanwhile,
 Weary of Creet, and of his long exile,
 Toucht with his Countrie's love and place of birth,
 85 Thus said ; Though Minos bar both sea and earth ;
 Yet heaven is free : that course attempt I dare.
 Held he the world, he could not hold the air.
 This said, to Arts unknown he bends his wits,
 And alters nature, Quills in order knits,
 90 Beginning with the least ; the longer still
 The short succeeds ; much like a rising Hill.
 Their rural Pipes the Shepherds long ago
 (Fram'd of unequal reeds) contrived so.
 With threads the midst, with wax he joyns the ends :
 95 And these, as natural wings, a little bends.
 Young Icarus stood by, who little thought
 That with his death he play'd ; and, smiling, caught
 The feathers tossed by the wandring air :
 Now chafes the yellow wax with busie care,

- 200 And interrupts his Sire. When his last hand
Had made all perfect, with new wings he fann'd
The air that bare him. Then instructs his Son:
Be sure that in the middle course thou run.
Dank Seas will clog the wings that lowly flie:
- 205 The Sun will burn them, if thou soar'st too high,
'Twixt either keep. Nor on Boötes gaze,
Nor Helice, nor stern Orion's rays:
But follow me. At once, he doth advise,
And unknown feathers to his shoulders ties.
- 210 Amid his work and words the salt tears brake
From his dim eyes; with fear his fingers shake.
Then kist he him ne'r to be kissed more;
And rais'd on lightsome feathers flies before,
His fear behind: as birds through boundless skie
From airy nests produce their young to flie.
- 215 Exhorts to follow; taught his banefull skill;
Waves his own wings, his son's observing still.
These, while some Angler fishing with a Cane,
Or Shepherd leaning on his staff, or Swain,
With wonder views; he thinks them Gods that glide
- 220 Through airy regions. Now he on's left side
Leaves Juno's Samos, Delos, Faros white;
Lebymbos and Calydna on the right,
Flowing with honey. When the Boy, much took
With pleasure of his wings, his Guide forsook;
And, raviht with desire of heav'n, aloft
- 225 Ascends. The odour-yielding wax more soft
By the swift Sun's vicinity then grew,
Which late his feathers did together glew.
That thaw'd, he shakes his arms, which now were bare,
And wanted wherewithall to gather air.
- 230 Then falling, Help, O Father, he cries. The blew
Seas stop his breath, from whom their name they drew.
His Father, now no Father, left alone,
Cry'd, Icarus, where art thou? which way flown?
What region, Icarus, doth thee contain?
Then spies the feathers floating on the Main.
He curst his arts, interr's the corps, that gave
The Land a name which gave his Son a grave.
- 235 The Partridge from a thicker him survey'd,
As in a tomb his wretched son he laid:
Who clapt his fanning wings, and loudly churr'd,
T' express his joy; as then an onely bird;

So made of late, (unknown in former time)
 O Dædalus, by thy eternal crime.
 240 To thee thy Sister gave him to be taught;
 Who little of his destiny fore-thought;
 The Boy then twelve years aged, of a mind
 Apt for instruction, and to Arts inclin'd.
 He Saws invented, by the bones that grow
 245 In fishes backs, the steel indenting so:
 And two shant Compasses with rivet bound,
 Th' one to stand still, the other turning round,
 In equal distance. Dædalus this stung,
 250 Who from Minerva's sacred turret flung
 The envy'd headlong, and his falling feigns.
 Him Pallas, faultrix of good wits, sustains:
 Who straight the figure of a fowl assumes,
 Clad in the midst of air with freckled plumes.
 The vigour of his late swift wit now came 255 Into his feet and wings: he keeps his name.
 They never mount aloft, nor trust their birth
 To tops of trees; but flock as low as earth,
 And lay their eggs in tufts. In mind they bear
 Their ancient fall, and lofty places fear.
 260 Tir'd Dædalus now in Sicilia lights:
 In whose defence hospitious Cocalus fights.
 Now Athens, by Ægeus glorious Seed,
 Was from her lamentable tribute freed.
 They crown their Temples, warlike Pallas, Jove.
 265 Invoke, with all the Deities above.
 Whom now they honour with the large expence
 Of bloud, free gifts, and heaps of frankincense.
 Vast fame through all th' Argolian Cities spread
 His praise; and all that rich Achaia fed
 His aid in their extremities inreat:
 270 And Calydon (though Meleager's seat)
 His aid seeks 'gainst a Boar by Dian sent,
 As her revenge, and horrid instrument.
 For Oeneus, with a plenteous harvest blest,
 To Ceres his first-fruits of Corn addrest,
 To Pallas Oil, and to Lyæus Wine;
 275 Ambitious honours all the Powers divine
 Reap from the Rurals; who neglect to pay
Diana dur'd, her Altars empty lay.
 Anger affects the God. This will not we Unpunisht bear; nor unreveng'd, said she,

- 280 Though un-adored, shall they vaunt we be.
 With that she sent into Oeneian fields
 Avenge full Boar. Rank-grass'd Epirus yields.
 No big-bon'd bullock of a larger breed :
 But those are less which in Sicilia feed.
 His eyes blaze bloud and fire : his stiff neck bears
- 285 Horrible bristles, like a grove of spears.
 A boiling foam upon his shoulders flows
 From grinding jaws : his tushes equal those
 Of Indian Elephants : his fell mouth casts
 Swift lightning : and his breath the pastures blasts.
- 290 Now tramples he the Corn, when in the blade ;
 The Husbandman's ripe vows now frustrate made,
 He reaps the weighty ears : their usual grain
 The Barns and threshing-floors expect in vain.
 Broad-spreading Vines he with their burthen shears ;
- 295 And boughs from ever-leafy Olives tears.
 Then falls on Beasts, the Herdsmen now unfear'd :
 Nor Dogs, nor raging Bulls defend their Herd.
 The people fly, security scarce find
 In walled towns : till Meleager, joyn'd
- 300 With youths of choicest worth, inflam'd with praise,
 Attempts his death. The twin Tyndarides,
 One for his Horsemanship, the other fam'd
 For Whorl-bats ; Jason, who the first Ship fram'd ;
Theseus with his Pirithous, a pair
 Of happy friends ; and Lyncus, Aphar's heir ;
 The two Thestiadæ Leucippus, crown'd
- 305 For strength ; Acastus, for his dart renown'd ;
 Swift Idas ; Ceneus, not a woman then ;
Hippothous, Dryas ; Phænix, (best of men,)
Amyntor's son ; th' alike Actorides ;
 And Phyleus, sent from Elis, came : with these,
Pheretes hope ; adventurous Telamon ;
 And he who call'd the great Achilles Son ;
- 310 Hyantian Iolæus ; the well-grac'd
Eurytion ; and Echion, who surpass
 In running ; Lelex the Narycian ;
 With Panopæus ; Hyleus ; Hippasus ;
 Now youthfull Nestor : sons to that intent
Hippocoon from old Amyctæ sent ;
- 315 Penelope's father-in-law ; Paribasia bred
Anceus ; wise Ampycides well read
 In fates ; Oecides, not as yet betray'd

- By's wife; Tegeian Atalant', a maid
 Of passing beauty, sprung from Schænum race,
 Of high Lycean woods the onely grace.
 A polish'd Zone her upper garment bound;
 320 And in one knot her artless hair was wound.
 Her arrows Ivory guardian clattering hung
 On her left shoulder; and a Bow well strung
 Her left hand held. Her looks a wench display'd
 In a boy's face, a boy's face in a maid.
 335 The Calydonian Hero her beheld,
 And wisht at once: his wishes fate repell'd.
 He lurking flames attracts; and said, O blest
 Is he, whom thou shalt with thy joys invest!
 But time and modesty his courtship stay,
 By a more prelling action call'd away.
 330 A wood o're-grown with trees, yet never fell'd,
 Mounts from a plain, that all beneath beheld.
 The glory-thirsting Gallants this ascend.
 Forthwith a part their corded toils extend;
 Some, hounds uncouple; some, the track or feet
 Together trace, and danger long to meet.
 335 A Dale there was, (through which the rain-rais'd flood Oft tumbled down, and in the bottom stood)
 Repleat with pliant Willows, marsh Weeds,
 Sharp Rushes, Ofers, and long slender Reeds.
 The Boar from thence dislodg'd, like lightning crust
 340 Through jostling clouds, among the hunters rush'd,
 Bears down the obvious trees; the crashing woods
 Report their fall. The Youths each other's blouds
 With high-rais'd shouts inflame, who keep their stands,
 And shake their broad-tipt spears with threatening
 The dogs he scatters; those that durst oppose (hands.
 345 His horrid fury, wounds with gaunching blows.
Echion first his javelin vainly cast,
 Which struck a Beech. The next his sides had past,
 But that with too much strength it over-flew:
 350 This weapon Fagasean Jason threw.
 O Phæbus, said Ampycides, if I
 Have honour'd, and do honour thee, apply
 Thy succour in success of my intents.
 The God, as much as in him lay, assents,
 But from the dart the head Diana took;
 355 Which gave no wound, although the Boar it struck.
 The beast like lightning burns, thus chaf'd with ire:

- His grim eyes shine, his breast breaths flames of fire,
 And as a stone which some huge engine throws
 Against a wall, or bulwark mann'd with foes ;
 350 The deadly boar with such sure violence
 Assaults their forces. The right wing's defence,
Eupalamon and Pelagon, he cast
 On sounding earth : drawn off with timely hast.
Enesimur, great Hippocoon's son,
 Could not so well his laughing tushes shun,
 365 Which cut the shrinking sinews in his thigh,
 Even as he trembled, and prepar'd to flie.
 And Nestor long had perished, perchance,
 Before Troy's war ; but vaulting on a Launce,
 He took a tree, which there his branches spred,
 And safely saw the foe from whom he fled.
 370 Who, full of rage, his vengefull tushes whets
 Upon an Oak, and dire destruction threats.
 Then, trusting to his new-edg'd arms, the Boar
 The manly thigh of great Orithyas tore.
 The brother Twins, not yet celestial stars,
 Conspicuous both, both terrible in wars,
 375 Both mounted on white Steeds, aloft both bare
 Their glittering spears, which trembled in the air :
 And both had sped, but that the Swine withdrew
 Where neither horse nor javelin could pursue.
 In follows Telamon, hot of the chace ;
 380 And, stumbling at a root, fell on his face.
 While Pelem lifts him up, a winged sight
Tegæa drew, which flew as swift as sight.
 Below his ear the fixed arrow stood,
 And stain'd his bristles with a little blood.
 385 The Virgin less rejoyced in the blow
 Then Miledes, who first saw it flow,
 First threw'd his mates the blood. O most renown'd,
 Said he, thy honour bath thy vertue crown'd.
 The men, they blush for shame ; each other chear ;
 390 And high-raisd souls with clamours higher rear :
 Their spears in clusters sing ; which make no breach
 Through idle store, and throws their throws impeach.
 Behold Ancæus, with a poll-ax, stern
 To his own fate ; who said, By me O learn
 You youths, how much a man's sharp steel exceeds
 A woman's weapons, and applaud my deeds.
 395 Though Dian should take arms, and in this strife

Protect her Beast, she should not save his life.
Thus gloriously he boasts ; in both his hands
Advanc'd his poll-ax, and on tip-toes stands.
Whom, e're his arms descend, the furious Swine
Prevents, and sheaths his tuskes in his groin.
Down fell Ancæus, out his bowels gusht :
All gore with bloud the earth, as guilty, blusht,
Ixion's son Pirithous forward prest,
And with an able arm his Launce address.
To whom Ægides ; O to me more dear
Then my own life, my better half, forbear.
The wise in valour should aloof contend :
Fool-hardy courage was Ancæus end.
This said, his heavy cornel, with an head
Of brass, he hurls : which sure had struck him dead,
(It was deliver'd with so true an aim)
But that a tall Beech interpos'd the same.
Æsonides then threw his thrilling Launce ;
Which hit (diverted from the mark by chance)
A dog between his baying jaws : the wound
Rusht through his guts, and nail'd him to the ground.
Oenides varying hand discharg'd two spears :
The earth the one, the beast the other bears.
Whi'e now he raves, grunts, turns his body round,
Casts bloud and foam, the authour of his wound
Rusht in, provokes his greater wrath, and, where
His shields dis sever, thrusts his deadly spear.
They all with chearfull shouts their joys unfold,
Shake his victorious hands, the Beast behold
With wonder, whose huge bulk posselt so much,
And hardly think it safe the slain to touch ;
Yet dye their javelins in his bloud. He laid
His foot upon his horrid head, and said,
My right receive, beloved Nonacrine,
And let my glory ever share with thine.
Then gavethe bristled spoil, and ghastly head
With monstrous tuskes arm'd, which terrour bred.
She in the Gift and Giver pleasure took.
All murmur, with preposterous envy strook.
On her the violent Thestiade frown ;
And cry aloud with stretcht-out arms, Lay down ;
Nor, Woman, of our titles us bereave :
Lest thee thy beautie's confidence deceive.
He's no fit judge, whom love hath rest of sight.

Then

- Then snatch from her her gift, from him his right,
Oenides swells, his looks with anger stern:
 You ravishers of others honours, learn
 440 (Said he) the distance between words and deeds,
 With impious steel secure Plexippus bleeds.
 While Toxem, whether to revenge his bloud,
 Or shun his brother's fortune, wavering stood;
 He clears the doubt: the weapon, hot before
 445 By th' other's wounds, new heats in his heart's gore,
 Gifts to the holy Gods Althæa brings
 For her son's victory, and Pæans sings.
 When back she saw her slaughtred brothers brought,
 At that sad sight she screecht, and, grief-distraught,
 The City fills with out-cries; off she tears
 450 Her royal robes, and funeral garments wears.
 But told by whom they fell, no longer mourns:
 Rage dries her eyes, her tears to vengeance turns.
 The triple Sisters erst a brand convey'd
 Into the fire, her belly newly laid;
 Thus chanting, while they spun the fatal twine;
 455 O lately born, one period we assign
 To thee, and to this brand. The charm they weave
 Into his fate, and then the chamber leave.
 His mother snatcht it with an hasty hand
 Out of the fire, and quencht the flagrant brand.
 This in an inward closet close she lays;
 460 And by preserving it, preserves his days.
 This now produc'd, a pile of wood she rais'd,
 That, by the hostile fire invaded, blaz'd.
 Four times she proffers to the greedy flame
 The fatal brand; as oft withdrew the same.
 A Mother, and a Sister, now contend:
 465 And two contending names one bosom rend.
 Oft fear of future crimes a paleness bred:
 Oft burning fury gave her eyes his red.
 She seems to threaten now with cruel look:
 And now appears like onethat pity took.
 470 Her tears the fervour of her anger dries:
 Yet found the tears again to drown her eyes.
 Even as a ship, when wind and tide contends,
 Feels both their furies, and witheither bends:
 So Thestias, whom unsteddy passion drives,
 475 By changes, calms her rage, and rage revives.
 A Sister's love at length subdues a Mother's.

That blood may calm the ghosts of bleeding Brothers,
Impiously pious, Flames, to ashes turn
This brand, said she, and my loath'd bowels burn.
30 Then, holding in her hand the fatal wood,
As she before the funeral altar stood,
You triple Powers, who guilty Souls pursue,
Eumenides, these Rites of vengeance view.
- I aſt the crime I puniſh. Death muſt be
By death aton'd. On murder, murder we 85 Accumulate, redoubling funerals.
This curſed houſe by throngs of miſchief falls.
Shall Oeneus joy in his victorious ſon?
Sad Theſtius robb'd of his? One fortune run.
Look up, O you my Brothers ghosts, you late
90 Diſlodged ſouls; ſee how I right your fate.
Accept of this infernal ſacrifice,
Which coſt me dear, my womb's accuſed price.
Ay me! O whither am I rapt? excuſe
A Mother, Brothers. Trembling hands reſuſe
Their fainting aid. He merits death: yet by
A Mother's rage methinks he ſhould not die.
95 Then ſhall he ſcape? alive, a victor, feaſt
In proud ſucceſs, of Calydon poſſeſt?
You, little aſhes, and chill ſhades, forlorn?
I'll not endure it. Periſh, villain, born
To our immortal ruine. Ruinate
With thee thy Father's hopes, his crown and ſtate:
100 Where is a Mother's heart? a parent's pray'r?
Th' unthought-of burthen which I ten months bare?
O would, while yet an infant, the firſt flame
Had thee devour'd; nor I oppos'd the ſame.
Thy life, I gave; by thine own merit die:
A juſt reward for thy impiety.
105 Thy twice-giv'n life reſign; firſt by my womb,
Laſt by this raviſht brand; or me intomb
With my poor Brothers. Fain I would purſue
Revenge, yet would not. O, what ſhall I doe?
Before my eyes my Brothers wounds now bleed,
110 And the ſad image of ſo foul a deed.
Now pity and a Mother's name controul
My ſtern intention. O diſtracted ſoul!
You've won, my Brothers; but, alas! ill won:
So that, while thus I comfort you, I run
Your fate. With eyes turn'd back, her quaking hand

- To trembling flames expos'd the funeral brand.
 The brand appears to sigh, or sighs expires,
 515 Wrapt in th' imbracements of unwilling fires.
 Unknowing Meleager absent broils
 Even in those flames; his blood, thick-panting, boils
 In unseen fire. He such tormenting pains
 With more than manly fortitude sustains.
 Yet grieves, that by a slothfull death he falls
 520 Without a wound: Ancæus happy calls.
 His aged Father, Brothers, Sisters, Wife,
 He groaning names, with his last words of life:
 Perhaps his Mother. Flames and pains increase;
 Again they languish, and together cease.
 525 To liquid air his vanisht spirits turn,
 The sable coals in clouds of ashes mourn.
 Low lies high Calydon, the young, the old,
 Ignoble, noble, all their griefs unfold.
 The Calydonian Matrons cut their hair,
 Desflower their beauties, cry, Wo and despair!
 530 His hoary head with dust his Father hides,
 Lies groveling on the ground, and old age chides.
 For now his Mother, by her guilt pursu'd,
 Revenging steel in her own breast imbrow'd.
 Though Phæbus would an hundred tongues bestow,
 A wit that should with full invention flow,
 535 All Helicon infuse into my breast;
 His Sisters sorrows could not be express.
 Themselves, forgetting decency, they deface:
 While he retains a body, that imbrace;
 Kiss his pale lips: when turn'd to ashes, they 540 The ashes in their bruised bosomes lay:
 Fall on his tomb; his name, that there appears,
 Imbrace, and fill the characters with tears.
 But when Diana's wrath was satisfi'd
 With Oeneus misery; they all (beside Fair Gorge and the lovely Deianire)
 545 On plummy pinions, by her power, aspire,
 With long-extended wings, and beaks of horn:
 Who through the air in varied shapes are born.
 - Meanwhile to Pallas towers Ægides hies,
 (His part perform'd in that joint enterprize:)
 550 Whose haft rain-raised Achelous staid.
 Renown'd Cecropian Prince, the River said,
 Vouchsafe my roof; nor to th' impetuous flood.

- Commit thy person, Oft huge logs of wood,
And broken Rocks, down tumbling, loudly roar.
55 Herds with their stalls not seldome heretofore
They hurried have : nor was the Ox of force
To keep his stand ; nor swiftness sav'd the Horse.
And when dissolved snow from mountains pour'd,
Their violent whirl-pits many have devour'd.
More safe to stay untill the current run
60 Within his bounds. To whom Ægeus son ;
'Twere folly, it not madness, to refuse
Thy house and counsel : both I mean to use.
Then enters his large Cave, (where Nature play'd
The Artisan) of hollow Pumice made,
And rugged Tophus, floor'd with humid moss :
65 The roof pure white and purple shells imboss.
Now had Hyperion past two parts of day,
When Theseus, with the partners of his way,
Pirithous, and Lelex the renown
Of Træzen, now appearing gray, sat down ;
70 And whom the River (glad of such a guest)
Preferr'd unto the honour of his feast.
Forthwith bare-footed Nymphs bring in the meat :
That ta'ne away, upon the table set
Crown'd cups of wine. When Theseus turn'd his face
75 To under-seas, and, pointing, said ; What place
Is yon, and of what name, that stands alone ?
And yet methinks it should be more then one.
It is not one, the courteous Floud replies,
But five : their neighbourhood deceives your eyes.
80 The less t' admire Diana, late despis'd,
Five Nymphs they were ; who having sacrific'd
Ten beeves, invited to their festival
The rural Gods ; my self forgot by all.
At this I swell, and, never greater, roul
85 With streams as much enraged as my soul.
The woods from woods, and fields from fields I tear ;
With them, the Nymphs (now mindfull of me) bear
In exile to the deep : whose waves, with mine,
That then-united mass of earth disjoin
Into as many pieces, as in seas.
90 Are of the Floud-imbrac'd Echinades.
Yet see one Isle, far, O ! far off remov'd,
Call'd Perimele, once by me belov'd.
I from this Nymph her virgin-honour took.

Hippodamus

- Hippodamas* his Daughter could not brook ;
 595 But cast her from a rock into the deep.
 Whom while my loving streams from sinking keep,
 I said ; O Neptune, thou that dost command
 The wandring waves, that beat upon the land,
 To whom we Rivers run, in whom we end,
 Incline a gentle ear. I did offend
 600 Whom I support. O kind and equal prove.
 Had but Hippodamas a Father's love,
 Or had he not been so inhumane ; he
 Would both have pitied her, and pardon'd me.
 Her, whom his fury hath from earth exil'd,
 When in the troubled waves he cast his child,
 605 A place afford : or let her be a place
 Which I may ever with my streams imbrace.
 His head the King of Surges forward shook,
 And, in assenting, all the Ocean struck.
 The Nymph yet swims, although with fear oppress'd,
 I laid my hand upon her panting breast :
 610 While thus I handled her, I might perceive
 The earth about her stiffning Body cleave.
 Now, with a mass infolded, as she swims,
 An Island rises from her transform'd limbs.
 He held his peace. This admiration won
 615 In all ; derided by Ixion's son,
 By nature rough, and one who did despise
 All-able Gods : who said, Thou tell'st us lies,
 And think'st the Gods too potent ; as if they Could give new shapes, or take our old away.
 His saying all amaz'd, (none it approv'd)
 620 Most Lelex, ripe in age and wisdom, mov'd.
 Heav'n's power, immense and endless, none can shun,
 Said he ; and what the Gods would doe, is done.
 To check your doubt ; on Phrygian hills there grows
 An Oak by a Lime-tree, which old walls inclose.
 625 My self this saw, while I in Phrygia stay'd,
 By Pittneus sent, where erst his father sway'd.
 Hard by, a lake, once habitable ground,
 Where Coots and fishing Cormorants abound.
 Jove, in an humane shape, with Mercury,
 630 (His heels unwing'd) that way their steps apply.
 Who guest-rites at a thousand houses crave ;
 A thousand shut their doors : one onely gave,
 A small thatch'd Cottage, where, a pious Wife,

- Old Baucis, and Philemon, led their life;
635 Both equal-ag'd. In this, their youth they spent,
In this grew old; rich onely in content.
Who poverty, by bearing it, declin'd;
And made it easy with a cheartull mind.
None master, nor none servant, could you call:
They who command, obey; for two were all.
640 Jove hither came, with his Cyllenian mate,
And, stooping, enters at their humble gate.
Sit down and take your ease, Philemon said.
While busie Baucis straw-stufft cushions laid,
And stirr'd abroad the glowing coals, that lay
In smothering ashes, rak'd up yesterday.
645 Dry bark and with'ed leaves thereon she throws;
With feeble breath to flame the cinders-blows:
Then slender clefts and broken branches gets:
And over all a little Kettle sets.
Her Husband from the cool herbs cuts their leaves,
650 Which from his gratefull Garden he receives:
Takes down a sitch of Bacon with a Prong,
That long had in the smoky chimney hung:
Whereof a little quantity he cuts;
And it into the boiling liquour puts.
This seething, they the time beguile with speech,
655 Unsensible of stay. A bowl of Beech
There by the handle hung upon a pin:
This fills he with warm water, and therein
Washes their feet. A moss-stufft bed and pillow
Laid on an homely bedstead made of willow;
660 A coverlet, us'd but at feasts, they spread:
Though coarse and old, yet fit for such a bed.
Down lie the Gods. The palsie-shaken Dame
Sets forth a table with three legs: one lame,
665 And shorter then the rest, a pot-sheard rears.
This, now made level, with green Mint she clears;
Whereon she party-colour'd Olives set,
Autumnal Cornels, in tart pickle wet,
670 Cool Endive, Radish, new Eggs roasted rear,
And late-prest Cheese, which earthen dishes bear.
A Goblet of the self-same silver wrought,
And bowls of Beech, varnisht with wax, were brought.
Hot victuals from the fire were forthwith sent:
675 They wine, not yet of perfect age, present.
This ta'ne away, the second course now comes;

Filbards,

- Filberds, dry Figs, with rugged Dates, ripe Plums,
 Sweet-swelling Apples, distill'd in Osier twines,
 And purple Grapes new gather'd from their vines :
 680 I'th' midst, an honey-comb. Above all these,
 Were chearfull looks, and ready will to please.
 Meanwhile the Maple-cup it self doth fill :
 And oft exhausted, is replenisht still.
 Astonisht at the miracle, with fear
 685 Philemon and the aged Baucis rear
 Their trembling hands in pray'r ; and pardon crave
 For that poor entertainment which they gave.
 One Goose they had, their cottage's chief guard,
 Which they to hospitable Gods award :
 690 Which long their slow pursuit deluding, flies
 To Jupiter ; so sav'd from sacrifice.
 W' are Gods, said they ; Revenge shall all destroy :
 You in this ruine shall your lives enjoy.
 Together leave your house ; and to yon hill
 695 Follow our steps. They both obey their will.
 The Gods conducting, feebly both ascend,
 Leaning on staves, and with time's burthen bend.
 A flight-shot from the top, review they take ;
 700 And see all swallowed by a mighty Lake,
 Their House excepted. While they this admire,
 Lament their neighbours ruine, and desire
 To see their cottage, which alone doth keep
 Its place, while for the Place's fate they weep ;
 705 That humble shed, two little even for two,
 Becomes a Fane. The Crotches Columns grew ;
 The Thatch and Roof shine with bright Gold ; the Doors
 Divinely carv'd ; the Pavement Marble-floors.
 While fearfull Baucis and Philemon pray'd,
 710 Saturnus with a chearfull count'nance said :
 Thou just old man, and thou good woman, (who Deserv'st so just an husband) what do you
 In chief desire ? They talk a while alone ;
 Then thus to Jove their common wish make known.
 We crave to be your Priests, this Fane to guard.
 715 And since in all our lives we never jarr'd,
 Let one hour both dissolve : nor let me be
 Intomb'd by her, nor she intomb'd by me.
 Their sute is sign'd. The Temple they possess,
 As long as life. With time and age oppress,
 720 As now they stood before the sacred gate,

- And call to memory that place's fate,
Philemon saw old Baucis freshly sprout ;
 And Baucis saw Philemon leaves thrust out.
 Now on their heads aspiring branches grew.
 While they could speak, they spake : at once, Adieu ;
 725 They jointly said ; at once the creeping rine
 Their trunks inolos'd ; at once their shapes resign.
 They of Tyana to this present show
 These neighbour-trees, that from two bodies grow.
 Old men, nor like to lie, nor vain of tongue,
 This told. I saw their boughs with Garlands hung ;
 730 And hanging fresh, I said, Who Gods before
 Receiv'd, be such : Adorers we adore.
 The tale and teller wonder and belief
 Provok'd in all, but Thesew mov'd in chief.
 Who covetous to hear such deeds as these ;
 The Calydonian River, prest to please,
 735 In this sort, leaning on his elbow, spake.
 There be who ever keep the form they take :
 Others have power themselves at will to change.
 As thou, blue Protem, that in seas dost range :
 Who now a Man, a Lion now appear'st,
 740 Now a fell Boar ; a Serpent's shape now bear'st ;
 A Bull, with threatening horns, now seem'st to be ;
 Now like a Stone, now like a spreading Tree ;
 And sometimes like a gentle River flow'st,
 Sometimes like Fire, averse to Water, show'st.
 745 Autolyces his Wife, the Daughter to
 Leud Erisichthon, things as strange could do.
 He was her Father, who the Gods despis'd,
 Nor ever on their Altars sacrific'd ;
 Who Ceres groves with steel profan'd, where stood
 750 An old huge Oak, even of it self a Wood.
 Wreaths, ribbands, gratefull tables, deckt its boughs,
 And sacred stem, the Dues of powerfull Vows.
 Full oft the Dryades, with chaplets crown'd,
 755 Danc'd in his shade, full oft they tript a Round
 About his bole. Five cubits three times told
 His ample circuit hardly could infold :
 Whose stature other trees as far exceeds,
 As other trees surmount the humble weeds.
 Yet this his fury rather did provoke ;
 Who bids his servants fell the sacred Oak :
 760 And snatching, while they paus'd, an Ax from one,

Thy,

- Thus stormeth ; Not the Goddess-lov'd alone,
 But though this were the Goddess, she should down,
 And sweep the Earth with her aspiring crown.
- 765 As he advanc'd his arms to strike, the Oak
 Both sigh'd and trembled at the threatening stroke ;
 His Leaves and Acorns pale together grew :
 His colour-changing Branches sweat cold dew.
 Then, wounded by his impious hand, the bloud
 Gush'd from th' incision in a purple flood.
- 770 Much as a mighty Ox, that falls before
 The sacred altar, spouts forth streams of gore;
 On all amazement seiz'd : when One (of all)
 The crime deters ; nor would he's Ax let fall.
 Contracting his stern brows, Receive, said he,
 Thy pietie's reward : and from the tree
 The stroke converting, lops his head ; then strake
- 775 The Oak again : from whence a voice thus spake ;
 A Nymph am I, within this Tree inshrin'd,
 Belov'd of Ceres. O profane of mind,
 Vengeance is near thee, with my parting breath
 I prophesie : a comfort to my death.
- 780 He still his guilt pursues, and overthrows
 With cables, and innumerable blows,
 The sturdy Oak : which, nodding long, down rush'd ;
 And in his lofty fall his fellows crush'd.
 Their Sister and their grove the Nymphs lament ;
 And, hid in sable veils, to Ceres went ;
- 785 On Erisichthon just revenge require.
 She readily consents to their desire.
 The fair-brow'd Goddess shakes her shining hairs :
 (With that, the Fields shook all their golden ears)
 Then to a merciless revenge proceeds,
 (Had he deserved mercy by his deeds)
- 790 By starving. But, since not, by fatal doom,
Ceres and Famine might together come ;
 A Nymph, one of the light Oreades,
 She sends to Famine, with such words as these.
 In frosty Scythia lies a land, forlorn
- 795 And barren, bearing neither fruit nor corn.
 Num Cold, pale Hue, chill Ague there abide,
 And meagre Famine. Bid that Fury glide
 Into his cursed intralls, and devour
 All plenty : let her rage subdue my power.
- 800 But lest long ways thy journey tedious make,

My chariot and my yoked Dragons take,
 Taking her Chariot, through the empty skies,
 To Scythia and rough Caucasus she flies:
 There, in a stoney field, sad Famine found,
 Tearing with teeth and nails the foodless ground;
 With snarled hair, sunk eyes, looks pale and dead,
 Lips white with slime, thin teeth with rust o're-spread.
 Through her hard skin the writhel'd guts appear.
 Her huckle-bones stuck up; a valley, where
 Her belly should ascend; her dry breasts hung
 So lank, as if they to her back had clung.
 The falling flesh the rising joints augment.
 Round knees, and ancles leanly eminent.
 Espy'd far off, (she durst not be so bold
 To come too near,) the Nymph her message told.
 After a little stay, although she were
 Far off, although but now arrived there,
 She famine felt; so wheels about her Snakes,
 And her high passage to Aemonia takes.
Famine obeys the Goddess's command,
 (Though their endeavours still oppos'd stand)
 And, by a tempest hurried through the skies,
 Enters the wretche's roof; besides him lies,
 Then fast asleep; (for now Night's heavy charms
 All eyes had clos'd) imbrac'd him in her arms;
 Her self infus'd; breath'd on his face and breast;
 His empty veins with hungry rage possess'd.
 This thus perform'd, she leaves the fruitfull earth
 And back returns to her abodes of dearth.
 Sleep hitherto with pleasurable wings
 On Erisichthon gentle slumber flings:
 Who dreams of feasts, extends his idle jaws,
 With labouring teeth fantastically chaws;
 Deludes his throat by swallowing empty fare,
 And for affected food devours the air.
 Awak'd, hot famine raves through all his veins,
 And in his guts and greedy palate reigns.
 Forthwith, what Sea, what Earth, what Air affords,
 He craves, and plains of starving at full boards;
 In banquets banquets seeks. What might alone
 Have Towns and Nations fed, suffice not one.
 Hunger increaseth with increast repast.
 And as all Rivers to the Ocean hast,
 Who, thirsty still, drinks up the stranger-flouds:

- As ravenous fires refuse no prosper'd foods,
845 Huge piles receive, the more they have, the more
By much desire, made hungry with their store ;
So Erisichiton, of a mind profane,
Full dishes empties, and demands again.
Meat breeds in him an appetite to meat ;
Who, ever empty, still prepares to eat.
850 His bellie's gulf his patrimony wasts,
Consuming famine yet unlesened lasts :
And his insatiable throat's extent
Now all his wealth into his bowels sent.
A daughter left, unworthy such a Sire,
The begger sold, to feed his hunger's fire.
855 Her noble thoughts base servitude disdain ;
And now her hands extending to the Main,
O thou that hadst my maidenhead, said she,
Thy ravisht spoil from hated bondage free.
Neptune had this, who to her prayer consents :
860 And, though then by her Master seen, prevents
His following search ; transforming of his Rape
Into a Man, mask'd in a Fisher's shape.
Angler, her Master said, that with thy bait
Conceal'st thy hook, so prosper thy deceit,
So rest the Sea compos'd, so may the fish
865 Be credulous, and taken at thy wish,
As thou reveal'st her, who, in garments poor,
And ruffled hair, late stood upon this shoar.
For here, but very now, I saw her stand ;
Nor farther trace her foot-steps in the sand.
She, Nepiune's bounty finding, well apaid
870 To be inquir'd for of her self, thus said :
Pardon me, Sir, whoere you are ; my eyes
Have been attentive on this exercise.
To win belief ; so may the God of Seas
Assist my cunning in such Arts as these,
As late nor man nor maid I saw before
875 Your self, my self excepted, on this shoar.
He credits, and beguil'd, the shoar forsook :
When she again her former figure took.
Her Father, seeing she could change her shape,
880 Oft sold her ; she as often made escape,
Now Hart-like, now a Cow, a Bird, a Mare,
And fed his hunger with ill-purchas'd fare.
But when his malady all means had spent,

And he had given it the last nourishment ;
Now to devour his own flesh proceeds,
85 And by diminishing it, his body feeds.
What need I dwell on foreign facts ? even we
Can vary shapes, though limited they be.
Now seem I as I am ; oft like a Snake ;
And many times a Bull's horn'd figure take.
890 But while I horns assum'd, one thus was broke
As you behold. This with a sigh he spoke.

H OVID'S

OVID'S METAMORPHOSIS.

THE NINTH BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

A Serpent Achelous ; now a Bull :
His severed Horn with Plenty ever full.
Lychas a Rock. Alcides sunk in flame,
Ascends a God: The labour-helping Dame
A Wessel. Lotis, flying lust, becomes
A Tree : the like fate Dryope intombs.
Old Iolaus waxeth young agen.
Callirrhoe's Infants suddenly grow Men.
Byblis a weeping Fountain. Iphis, now
Turn'd Boy, to Isis pays his Maiden Vow.

HE who his high descent from Neptune draws,
 Of this so sad a Sigh demands the cause,
 This maimed Brow. When thus the God pro-
 His dangling curls impal'd with quivering reeds. (ceeds,
 An heavy task you set : his own disgrace
 5 Who would revive? Yet was in not so base
 To be subdu'd, as noble to contend :
 And such a Victor doth by foil defend.
 Have you not heard of fair-cheekt Deianire,
 10 The envy'd hope of many, the desire
 Of all that knew her? We, with others, went
 To Oenew Court, to purchase his consent.
 Parthaon's son, make me thy son-in-law,
 I and Alcides said: the rest withdraw.

- He, with his Father Jove, his Labours fame,
 15 And Step-dame's vanquish'd tasks, inforc'd his claim.
 'Twere shame, said I, that deathless Gods to men
 Who die should stoop. (A God he was not then.)
 These ever-living waters I command,
 That wind in endless currents through thy Land.
 Thy son no stranger is, if I be He ;
 20 But of thy Country, and a Friend to thee.
 And be't no prejudice, that Juno's Hate,
 Nor punishing Employments press my fate.
 If from Alcmena you your lineage shew ;
Jove's your false Sire, or criminous, if your true.
 25 You seek a Father in a Mother's shame.
 Brag not of Jove, or take a Bastard's name.
 He all this while, with eyes that sparkle fire,
 Upon me frown'd, and hardly rul'd his ire :
 Then onely said, My hand my tongue exceeds :
 30 Win thou with words, so I subdue with deeds.
 With that, fell on. To speak so big, and shrink,
 I shame ; and let my wave-green Mantle sink ;
 My arms oppose, my hands for seizure prest ;
 And every fitted part for fight addrest.
 35 He throws dust on me with his hollow hand :
 And I again besprinkle him with sand.
 Now catch'd he at my neck, now at my thighs,
 Or profer makes, and t'every limb applies.
 But me my weight defends ; in vain he strives.
 Much like as when a roaring billow drives
 40 Against a rock : the rock repe's his pride,
 By his own poisure firmly fortify'd.
 Both for a while withdrew : again we meet,
 And strongly keep our stands ; feet join to feet.
 With that I rusht upon him with my breast :
 45 My fingers his, my brow his forehead prest.
 So have I seen two Bulls with horrid might
 Together close ; the motive of their fight
 The fairest Cow in all those fields ; the Herd
 With fear expecting which should be preferr'd.
 50 Thrice Hercules did all his force incline
 (But all in vain) to free his breast from mine.
 The fourth assay my strong embrace unbound,
 And from my grasping arms his body wond.
 Then turning me about, (truth guides my tongue)
 Upon my back with all his weight he hung.

- 55 If I have credit, (Lies can find no way
To praise) on me, methought, a mountain lay.
Scarce could I clasp my arms, all froath'd with sweat :
Scarce from his gripes could I my body get.
Still pressing on, he gives nor time to breathe, .
Nor gather strength : my powers my trust deceive.
- 60 At last, his yoking arms my neck command :
When, pull'd upon my knees, I bit the sand.
My native Slight my weaker force supply'd :
I straight from him like a long Serpent glide.
Now in contracted folds I forward sprung,
- 65 Horridly hissing with my forked tongue.
He laughs, and flouts my Cunning in this sort :
To strangle Serpents was my cradle's sport.
Though other Dragons to thy conquests bow :
To dire Lernean Hydra what art thou?
- 70 Her wounds were fruitfull : from each sever'd head,
Each of her hundred necks, two fiercer bred.
More strong by twinning heirs. These, thus renew'd
And multiply'd by death, I twice subdu'd.
What hope hast thou, a forged Snake, to 'scape ;
- 75 That fight'st with feigned arms, and begg'st thy shape ?
This said, my neck his grasping fingers clinch'd,
And scruz'd my throat, as if with pincers wrinch'd ;
While from his gripes I strove my jaws to pull.
- 80 Twice over-come, I now, like furious Bull,
Once more his terrible assaul's oppose.
His arms about my swelling chest he throws,
And following, hales ; my Horn (my head turn'd round)
Fixt to the earth, and threw me on the ground.
- 85 My brow (that not sufficient) dis-adorns,
By breaking one of my ingaged horns.
The Naiades with fruits and flowers this fill :
Wherein abundant Plenty riots still.
Here Achelous ends. One lovely-fair,
- 90 Girt like Diana's Nymph, with flowing hair,
Came in, and brought the wealthy Horn, repleat
With Autumn's store, and fruit serv'd alter meat.
Day sprung, and mountains shone with early beams.
His Guests depart ; nor stay till peacefull streams
Glide gently down, and keep their bounded race.
- 95 Sad Achelous now his rustick face
And maimed head within the current shrouds.
This blemish much his former beauty clouds ;

- All else compleat. The dammage of his brows
 100 He shades with flaggy wreaths, and fallow boughs.
 But Deianira, Nessus, was thy wrack ;
 A deadly arrow piercing through thy back.
Jove's son, with his new Wife, to Thebes his course
 Directing, came t' Euenus rapid source.
 105 The big-swoln streams, increast with Winter's rain,
 And whirling round, their passage now restrain.
 For her he fears ; fear for himself abhorr'd :
 When strong limb'd Nessus came, who knew the Ford,
 And said ; I safely will transport thy Bride :
 110 Meanwhile swim thou unto the other side.
 To him Alcides his 'fraid Wife betakes ;
 Who, fearing both the flood and Nessus, quakes :
 Charg'd with his quiver, and his Lion's skin,
 (His club and bow before thrown over) in
 The Heros leaps, and saies, However vast,
 115 These waves, since undertaken, shall be past.
 And confident, nor seeks he smoothest waies ;
 Nor by declining entertains delay :
 Now over, stooping for his bow, he heard
 His Wife's shrill shrieks ; and Nessus saw, prepar'd
 120 To violate his trust. Thou ravisher,
 What hope, said he, can thy vain speed confer ?
 Soho, thou half a beast, withhold thy flight :
 I with thee bear ; nor intercept my right.
 If no respect of me can fix thy trust,
 Yet let thy Father's wheel restrain thy lust.
 125 Nor shalt thou 'scape revenge, however fleet :
 Wounds shall o'retake thy speed, though not my feet.
 The last his deeds confirm ; for as he fled,
 An arrow struck his back : the barbed head
 Past through his breast. Tugg'd out, a crimson flood 130 Spouts both waies, mixt with Hydra's pois'nous blood.
 This Nessus took, and softly said ; Yet I,
Alcides, wil not unrevenged die :
 And gave his Rape a robe dipt in that gore.
 This will (said he) the heat of love restore.
 Long after, (all the ample world possest
 135 With his great acts, and Juno's love) from raz'd Oechalia hasting his return
 To sacrifice unto Cenean Jove :
 Fame's babblings Deianira's ears surprize,
 (Which falshood adds to truth, and grows by lies)

- 140 How Iole her Husband Hercules
 With love inthrall'd. Stung with this strong disease,
 The troubled lover credits what she fears.
 At first she nourisheth her grief with tears,
 Which weeping eyes diffule. Then said; But why
 Weep we? the Strumpet in these tears will joy.
- 145 Since she will come, some change attempt I must,
 Before my bed be stained with her lust.
 Shall I complain? be mute? shift houses? stay?
 Return to Calydon, and give her way?
 Or call to mind that I am sister to
- 150 Great Meleager, and some mischief do?
 What a wrong'd Woman, what the spleenfull wo
 Of jealousy, by harlots death, can show?
 Her thoughts, long toil'd with change, now fixed stood,
 To send the garment dipt in Nessus blood;
 To quicken fainting love. The present she
- 155 To Lyckas gave, (as ignorant as she)
 And her own sorrow; which, with good intent,
 And kind respects, she to her Husband sent.
 This now the unsuspecting Hero wore,
 Wrapt in the poison of Echidna's gore.
 He, praying, new-born flames with incense fed;
- 160 And bowls of wine on marble Altars shed.
 The spreading mischief works; with heat dissolv'd,
 The manly limbs of Hercules it involv'd.
 Who, whilst he could, with usual fortitude
 His groans suppress. All patience now subdu'd
 By extream pain, the Altar down he flings;
- 165 And shady Oeta with his clamour rings.
 Forthwith to tear the torture off he strives.
 The riven robe his skin, that lines it, rives:
 Or to his limbs inseparably it cleaves;
 Or his huge bones and sinews naked leaves.
- 170 As fire-red steel in water drencht; so toils
 His hissing blood, and with hot poison boils.
 No mean: the greedy flames his entrails eat;
 And all his body flows with purple sweat:
 His scorched sinews crack, his marrow fries.
- 175 Then, to the Stars his hands advanc'd he cries:
 Feast, Juno, on our harms. Oh, from on high
 Behold this plague: thy cruel stomach cloy.
 If foes may pity purchase; (such are we;)
 This life, with torments vext, long sought by thee,

- 180 And born to toil, receive. For death would prove
To me a blessing : and a Step-dame's love
May such a blessing give. Have I thus gain'd,
For slain Busiris, who Jove's temple stain'd
With strangers blood ? that from the earth earth-bred
Antæus held ? whom Geryon's tripple head,
185 Nor thine, O Cerberus, could once dismay ?
These hands, these made the Cretan Bull obey.
Your labours, Elis, smooth Stymphalian flocks,
Confess with praises, and Parthenian woods.
You got the golden Belt of Thermodon :
190 And Apples from the sleepless Dragon won.
Nor cloud-born Centaurs, nor th' Arcadian Boar,
Could me resist ; nor Hydra, with her store
Of frightfull Heads, which by their loss increas't.
I, when I saw the Thracian Horses feast
195 With humane flesh, their mangers overthrew ;
And, with his Steeds, their wicked Master slew.
These hands the Nemean Lion choak'd ; these quell'd
Huge Cacus : and these shoulders heav'n upheld.
Jove's cruel wife grew weary to impose :
200 I never to perform. But Oh ! these woes,
This new-found plague, no virtue can repell,
Nor arms, nor weapons. Hungry flames of Hell
Shoot through my veins, and on my liver prey.
Eurystheus yet triumphs : and some will say
205 That there be Gods. Here his complaint he ends ;
And high-rai'd steps o're lofty Oeta bends,
Hurried with anguish : like a Bull, that bears
A wounding javelin ; whom the wounder fears.
Oft should you see him quake, oft groan, oft striving
To tear his garments ; solid trees up-riving,
210 Inraged with the mountains, and then rear
His scorched arms unto his Father's sphere.
Hid in an hollow Rock, he Lychas spies :
When torture having seiz'd his faculties
With all her furie, Lychas, didst thou give
This horrid gift, said he ? Think'st thou to live,
215 I dying by thy treason ? While he quakes,
Looks ghastly pale, unheard excuses makes ;
While yet he spake, while to his knees he clung ;
Caught by the heels, about his head thrice swung,
Him into deep Eubæan waves he threw ;
220 (As engines stones) who hardned as he flew.

As falling show'rs congeal'd with freezing winds,
 Convert to snow ; as snow together binds,
 And, rolling round, in solid hail descends :
 So while the air his forced body rends,

235 Bloudless with terrour, all his moisture gone,
 That Age reports him chang'd to rugged Stone.
 And still within Eubæa's gulfy deeps,
 A small Rock lies, which man's proportion keeps ;
 Whereon the mariners will not tread at all,
 As if't had sense : and this they Lychas call.

230 But thou, Jove's God-like son, (a Pile with store
 Of trees prepar'd, which lofty Oeta bore)
 Thy Bow and ample Quiver (wherein lie
 Those Arrows that again must visit Troy)
 Bequeathst to Pean's Heir ; who catching fire
 235 Puts to the Pile. While greedy flames aspire,
 Thou on the top thy Lion's spoil didst spread ;
 And lay'st thereon (thy Club beneath thy head)
 With such a look, as if a crowned Guest
 Amidst full goblets, at a mirthfull feast.

240 Now all-embracing flames a crackling made,
 And their Contemner's patient limbs invade.
 The Gods much thought for Earth's Defender took :
 When thus Saturnus, with a chearfull look :

This grief, you Gods, is our delight : with all
 245 Our soul we joy, that such as you should call
 Us King and Father ; who so gratefull are,
 And of our progeny express such care.

For though his noble acts deserve as much ;
 You us oblige. But lest vain terrours touch
 250 Your loyal hearts, let not these flames displease.
 Who conquer'd all, shall also conquer these.
Vulcan shall but his mother's part subdue.

For that's immortal which from us he drew,
 And can nor taste of death, nor stoop to fire ;
 255 But, freed from earth, shall to our joys aspire.
 This all your Deities I think will please.

If any grudg such grace to Hercules,
 Nor would his honour ; let them envy still :
 They shall confirm our act against their will.
 260 The Gods assent. And Juno's self accords ;
 At least in show : yet Jupiter's last words
 Unsmooth her forehead with observ'd distast.
 What flame could vanquish, Mulciber doth wast ;

- 265 And Hercules not known by's face remains,
 Who nothing of his mothers form retains;
 Now onely Jove-like. As a Snake his years
 Casts with his skin, and sprightly young appears
 With glittering scales: so the Tirynthian,
 Having put off the habit of frail man,
 270 Shines in his better part, and seems more great,
 With aw-insufing majesty repleat;
 Rapt in a chariot by almighty Jove,
 Through hollow clouds unto the Stars above.
 Preft Atlas feels his Weight. Euryfthem ire
 275 Ends not in death; his hatred to the Sire
 Pursues his race. Alcmena, worn with care,
 Had Iole, to whom she might declare
 Her old-wives plaints, her sons hard labours, (known
 Through broad-spread Earth) his fortunes and her own.
 Her Hyllus, by Aleides testament,
 280 Took to his bed, with love's unforc'd consent;
 And fill'd her womb with generous seed. When thus
Alcmena: Be the Gods propitious,
 And quick in working, when thy time draws near
 To call Ilithya, which sad mothers fear;
 285 To me made difficult by Juno's spight.
 For ten accomplisht signs did now excite
 My travail to Alcides birth, whose weight
 My belly stretcht; which bare so great a freight,
 That you might swear it was begot by Jove:
 290 When with intolerable pains I strove.
 Now also, speaking, horreur chills my heart:
 And griefs remembred adde to grief a part.
 Seven nights, seven daies thus rackt, with anguish tir'd,
 My hands upheld, with out-cries, I desir'd
 295 Lucina's aid, my burthen to untie.
 She came indeed, but pre-corrupted by
Jove's wife, to execute her deadly hate.
 Hearing my groans, she sat before the gate
 On yonder Altar. Her right knee upholds
 300 Her cross left ham, her fingers knit in folds
 Delai'd delivery: she with mutter'd spells
 Of secret power, the pressing birth repells.
 I strive, and, raving, tax ungratefull Jove;
 Desir'd to die; and breathe complaints might move
 305 Relentless fints. The Cadmean Dames were there;
 Who pray for me, and comfort my despair.

- Red-hair'd Galanthis, one of mean descent,
 In all employments stoutly diligent,
 Beloved for her duty, doth misdoubt
 310 Malicious Juno. Passing in and out,
 She saw the Goddess on the Altar sit;
 Her arms about her knees her fingers knit.
 What-e're you be, rejoyce with us, she said;
 Joyfull Alcmena hath her belly laid.
 The Goddess ruling child-birth, (starting, rose;
 315 And, parting her link'd fingers, eas'd my Throes.
 They say Galanthis laught at this deceit:
 Whom straight the flouted Goddess, in a fret,
 Drags by the hair, nor suffers her to rise.
 320 Forthwith her arms convert to legs and thighs.
 Agility and colour still abide;
 Her shape transform'd. In that her Mouth supply'd
 Help to that child-birth, at her Mouth she bears:
 Nor now our still-frequented houses fears.
 325 This said, she sighs for her old servant's sake:
 To whom her Daughter, likewise sighing, spake.
 You, Mother, sorrow for no kindreds fate.
 But what if I the wondrous change relate
 Of my poor Sister? Tears and sorrow seize 330 My troubled speech. Of all th' Oecalides,
 For form few might with Dryope compare;
 The onely child her dying mother bare:
 I born by a second Wife. Her Virgin-flow'r
 Being gath'ed by that over-mastring pow'r,
 Who in Delos and in Delphos doth reside;
Andraemon weds her, happy in his Bride.
 335 A Lake there is, which shelving borders bound,
 Much like a shoar, with fragrant Myrtles crown'd.
 Hither came simple Dryope, and (what more Afflicts me) to those Nymphs she garlands bore.
 Her arms her Child, a pleasing burthen, hold;
 340 Who suckt her breasts, not yet a twelve-month old.
 Hard by the Lake a flow'ry Lotus grew,
 (Expecting berries) of a crimson hue.
 Thence pulling flowers, she gave them to her Son
 To play withall: so was I like t'have done;
 345 For I was there. I saw the bloud descend
 From dropping twig; the boughs with horreur bend;
 And heard, too late, Lotis a Nymph, who fed
 From lustfull Priapus, to quit her dread,

- Assum'd this shape, her name of Lotus kept:
 350 My Sister, this not knowing, backward stept,
 And would depart, as soon as she had pray'd.
 But roots her feet, for all her struggling, stay'd;
 And onely above she moves. The bark increast,
 Ascending from the bottom to her breast.
 355 This seen, she thought t' have torn her hair; but tears
 Leaves from their twigs: her head green branches bears.
 The child Amphisus (for his grand-father,
Eurytus, did that name on him confer)
 Now finds his Mother's breasts both stiff and dry.
 360 I, a spectator of thy tragedy,
 Dear Sister, had in me no power of aid.
 Yet, as I could, thy growing trunk I staid,
 Clung to thy spreading boughs, and wisht that I,
 Intomb'd with thee, might in thy Lotus lie.
 Behold, Andraemon comes, with him her Sire,
 365 (Both wretched) and for Dryope inquire.
 When I for Dryope the Lotus show'd,
 They kisses on the yet warm wood bestow'd;
 And, groveling on the ground, her roots imbrace.
 Now all of thee, dear Sister, but thy face,
 Th' incroaching habit of a Tree receives.
 With tears she baths her new-created leaves;
 370 And, while she mighr, while yet a way remain'd
 For speaking passion, in this sort complain'd:
 If credit to the wretched may be given,
 I swear by all the Powers above in Heaven,
 I never this deserv'd. Without a sin
 I suffer: innocent my life hath bin.
 Or if I lie, may my green branches fade,
 375 And, fell'd with axes, on the fire be laid.
 This Infant from his dying Mother bear
 To some kind Nurse: and often let him here
 Be fed with milk; oft in my shadow play.
 Let him salute my tree; and sadly say,
 (When he can speak) This Lotus doth contain
 380 My dearest Mother. Let him still refrain
 All Lakes; nor ever dare to touch a Flower:
 But think that every tree inshrines a Power.
 Dear Husband, Sister, Father, all farewell.
 If in your gentle hearts compassion dwell,
 Suffer no ax to wound my tender boughs;
 385 Nor on my leaves let hungry cattel browse.

And

- And since I cannot unto you decline,
 Ascend to me, and joyn your lips to mine.
 My little son, while I can kiss, advance.
 But fate cuts off my failing utterance.
 For now the softer rind my neck ascends,
 And round about my leafy top extends.
 390 Remove your hands : without the help of those,
 The wrapping bark my dying eies will close.
 She left to speak, and be. Yet humane heat
 In her chang'd body long retain'd a seat.
 395 While Iole this story told, her eies,
 Fild with her tears, the kind Alcmena dries,
 And weeps her self. Behold, a better change
 With joy defers this sorrow, nor less strange.
 For Iolam, twice a youth, came in,
 400 The doubtfull Down now budding on his chin.
 Fair Hebe, at her Husband's fate, on thee
 This gift bestow'd. About to swear, that she
 Would never give the like ; wise Themis said,
 Forbear ; War raves in Thebes by discord swaid ;
 And Capaneus but by Jove alone
 405 Can be subdu'd. The Brothers then shall groan
 With mutual wounds. The sacred Prophet, lost
 In swallowing earth, alive shall see his Ghost.
 His Son's red hands his Mother's life extract,
 T' appease his Sire ; a just, yet wicked fact.
 410 Rapt from his home and senses, with th' affright
 Of staring furies, and his mother's Sprite,
 Untill his Wife the fatal gold demands ;
 Her Husband murther'd by Peleides hands.
 Then Acheloian Callirrhoe
 415 Shall Jove importune, that her Infants may
 Be turn'd to Men, and due revenge require
 (As he, for his) of those who slew their Sire.
 Her prai'rs shall win consent from Jove ; who then
 Will bid thee make Callirrho's Children Men.
 This, Themis with prophetick rapture sung.
 420 Among the Gods a grudging murmur sprung,
 Why they this gift should not to others give.
Aurora for her Husband's age doth grieve :
Ceres complains of Jasius hoary hair :
Vulcan would Erichonius youth repair :
 425 And cares of time to come in Venus reign,
 That her Anchises might wax young again.

All she for some, seditious tumults grew,
From Favour sprung; which Jove doth thus subdue.

What mutter you? or where is your respect?

430 Think you, you can the power of Fate subject?

Old Iolans was by Fate renew'd:

By fate Callirrhoe's Babes shall be indu'd

With youth; not by ambition, nor by war.

Even we, that you may better brook it, are

435 Prescrib'd by Fate: which could we change, not thus

Should time make old our God-like Æacm;

Eternal youth should Rhadamanthus crown;

Nor should our Minos lose his old renown,

Despised now through age, who heretofore

With such a brave command his Scepter bore.

440 These words of Jove the yielding Gods assuage;

Sith Rhadamanth and Æacm with age

Decline; and Minos, whose youth's active flame

Made mighty nations tremble at his name:

Though now, in mind and body impotent,

445 Miltus Deionides ascent

T' his throne he fears, adorn'd with youth, and style

Of Phæbus son: nor durst his fears exile.

But thou, Miletus, of thy own accord

Forsook'st thy native home; and now abroad,

Through deep Ægean seas to Asia cam'st,

450 Building a Town which from thy self thou nam'st.

He, as the Nymph Cyaneë, (excellent

For beauty) daughter to Meander, went

Along his winding banks, compress'd her there:

Who Byblis at one birth with Caunus bare.

455 Byblis example lawless love reproves:

For Byblis her own Brother Caunus loves,

Nor as a Sister should a Brother do.

She at the first no lustfull Passion knew,

Nor thought it sin him eagerly to kiss,

460 Nor by imbracing that she did amiss.

A shadow of false piety her beguiles.

Love by degrees corrupts. Her dress and smiles

She frames t' attract; and to seem fair desires;

And envies whomsoever she admires.

465 Yet knowes not her disease: no wishes rise

In sighs as yet; and yet within she fries.

She calls him Lord, the due of bloud disclaim'd:

And would be Byblis, and not Sister, nam'd.

Nor

- Waking she durst not harbour in her breast
 470 A wanton hope. But in dissolving rest
 Her lover oft sh' enjoys ; her senses keep
 A festival : yet bluthes she in sleep.
 Sleep fled ; long mute, her dream sh' again renews.
 By repetition : which she thus pursues.
- 475 Woe's me ! what boad these fantasies of night ?
 If true, how wretched ! why should such delight ?
 His heav'nly form by envy is approv'd :
 He might, if not my Brother, be belov'd ;
 And merit my affections, (O too well)
 If I were not his Sister : there's my hell.
- 480 While waking I endeavour no such ill,
 May these bewitching dreams inchant me still:
 No spy could blab that imitated joy.
 O Venus, and withall, thou winged Boy,
 What pleasure, what content had I that night !
- 485 How lay I all dissolved in delight !
 With how much joy remembered ! short those joyes ;
 And hasty Night our happinessenvies.
 Would I could change this wretched name of mine :
 Or he the interest in his blood resign.
 How well, O Caunus, might our Father be
- 490 A Father-in-law, or to thy self, or me ?
 O would to Jove we all in common held,
 Except our birth ; though mine his birth excell'd.
 Whom then (O fairest) wilt thou make a mother ?
 How ill hath Nature linkt us to each other ?
- 495 Still must thou be my Brother. What I hate,
 I onely have. What then prognosticate
 These flattering visions ? what, in these extreame,
 Can dreams avail ? or is there weight in dreams ?
 The Gods forbid. Yet Gods their Sisters wed.
- 500 Saturn and Ops had both one womb and bed.
 So Tethis with Oceanus ; so Jove
 Combines with Juno in eternal love.
 Gods have peculiar laws : how dare I draw
 From them examples, bound t' another law ?
 Die, die, forbidden flames ; or let me die.
- 505 Then may my Brother kiss me when I lie
 On sable herse. Besides, the joint consent
 This craves of two. Say, it should me content :
 He may abhor it. Yet th' Æolides
 Imbraced theirs. Whence sprung such proofs as these ?
 O whe-

- 510 O, whither wrapt ? You wicked flames, remove.
 A Brother, as befits a Sister, love.
 Yet should he first affect, perhaps I then
 His love might cherish, and affect agen.
 Then shall I, who would not his sute reject,
 515 Sue first ? What, canst thou speak ? thy thoughts detect ?
 I can : Love prompts. If shame my speech suppress,
 Yet Letters may my hidden flames confess.
 This pleas'd her, and a little satisfy'd
 Her doubtfull mind. When, rais'd on her left side,
 And leaning on her elbow, Hap what may ;
 520 We will (said she) our frantick love display.
 O, whither slide I ? O what flames excite
 These thoughts ? Then sits she trembling hands to write ;
 (One holds the wax, the style the other guides)
 Begins, doubts, writes, and at the tables chides ;
 525 Notes, razes, changes oft, dislikes, approves ;
 Throws all aside, resumes what she removes.
 Her will she knows not, no composure brooks.
 Soft shame and impudence strive in her looks.
 She had writ Sister : that, as most unfit,
 530 Defac'd, she took the tables, and thus writ.
 Health to her onely Love that Lover sends,
 Whose health alone upon your love depends.
 To tell you who I am, alas ! I shame.
 If you would know my sute ; without a name
 O let me plead, nor be for Byblis known,
 535 Untill my hopes be to assurance grown.
 Pale colour, leanness ; ruthfull looks, wet eyes,
 Long sighs, which from concealed passion rise,
 Frequent imbracements, and (if you so much Observed) kisses of too hot a touch
 540 To sute a Sister's coldness ; these exprest
 The deep distemper of my wounded breast.
 And yet, although my soul the wound sustain'd,
 Although in me a fiery fury reign'd,
 Heav'n's witness, that I might at length be well,
 I try'd the utmost, striving to repell
 The violent darts of Cupid ; and far more
 545 Then you would think a Woman cou'd, I bore.
 Against my will, I now become your slave ;
 And with afflicted language pity crave.
 You may preserve, you onely can undo :
 Chuse which you will. Nor sues a foe to you.

- 550 But one who, near alli'd, would nearer join,
 And in a stricter league of love combine.
 Let old men know what's lawfull, good, or ill;
 And to their frosty rules subject their will.
 Ralh Venus fits our years. Yet know not we 555 Intrangling Laws: let us think all things free,
 And imitate the Gods. Paternal awe,
 Respect of fame, nor fear can us withdraw,
 If once the cause of fear be laid aside,
 Our easie stealths a Brother's name will hide.
 We may in private talk; converse and kifs,
 560 Whoever by. What wants to crown our blifs?
 O pity me, who have my love confest;
 (But would not, had not utmost ardour prest)
 Lest thy remorseless crueltie be read
 Upon my monument, when I am dead.
 565 The wax thus fill'd with her successless wit,
 She verses in the utmost margent writ;
 Then seals her shame: her parched tongue deni'd
 To wet her gem; which weeping eyes suppli'd.
 Then, blushing, calls a servant of known trust,
 570 And flattering him awhile, said, Friend thou must See these with care and secrecie convey'd
 To my——there paus'd, and after, Brother, said.
 In their deliverie the tables fell:
 She at that Omen starts, yet bids farewell.
 The wary messenger attends his time,
 And gives to Caunus her infolded crime.
 575 Amaz'd Meandrius high in choler grew,
 And on the ground the half-read tables threw.
 About to strike; Thou wicked instrument
 Of horrid lust, said he, by flight prevent
 My sword's revenge: but that our infamy
 Thy death would publish, villain, thou should'st die.
 He, frighted, flies; and to his mistress bears
 580 The wrath of Caunus. Byblis quaking hears
 Her sad repulse: a death-resembling cold
 Besieg'd her heart, and vital heat controll'd.
 Yet, with her soul, her frantick love returns;
 585 Who, with scarce-moving lips, thus softly mourns
 And worthily. Why, O too rash! have I
 Disclos'd this wound? affection's secrecie,
 Who would so soon to heady lines commit?
 First, with ambiguous words it had been fit

T' have

- 590 T'have felt his thoughts, and train'd him to pursue.
 I should have noted how the weather grew ;
 And chosen a safe sea : but now my sails
 Swell desperately with rough untried gales.
 Now born on crushing Rocks, the floods o're-bear
 595 My sinking Bark ; nor can I backward steer.
 Could not that Omen check the cherisht scope
 Of my desires, when, with my blasted hope,
 The tables fell ? should I not have assign'd
 Another day, or wholly chang'd my mind ?
 600 O no, the day. Heav'n warned me by sad,
 By sure presages ; had I not been mad.
 My self, before my letters, should have su'd,
 And lively love exprest : he should have view'd
 My moving tears, a Lover's pleading eies.
 605 More could I've spoke then letters can comprise.
 About his neck my arms I might have wound ;
 And, had he cast me off, appear'd to sownd ;
 Clung to his feet, and, groveling, life implore.
 This passion might I've acted and much more :
 Whereof though each particular had fail'd ;
 610 Yet all together joyn'd might have prevail'd.
 Perhaps the blame-deserving messenger
 In choice of time, or circumstance, did err ;
 Took him not when his mind was pleas'd and free.
 This wrackt my hopes. For of no Tigress he,
 Nor Lionness was born : his gentle breast
 615 Rough flint, hard steel, nor adamant invest.
 He must be won ; no sour repulie shall make
 My sute surcrease, till life my breast forsake.
 The best, if what is done were to begin,
 620 Is not t' attempt ; next, what w' attempt, to win.
 For never would he, though I should o'relway
 My strong desires, forget this leud assay.
 Desisting, would condemn my love for light ;
 Or that I tr'd t' intrap him by this sleight.
 It may be thought, that brutish lust did move
 These ecstasies ; and not the God of love.
 625 Nor can I but have had a wicked mind ;
 I made a motion, which my hand hath sign'd.
 No giving back can make me innocent ;
 Nought can I adde to sin, much to content.
 630 This said ; one thought another doth controul :
 So great a discord wracks her wavering soul.

What she dislikes, she acts : unsatisfi'd,
She oft attempteth, to be oft deni'd.

- This seen, he flies his country for her crime ;
635 And builds a City in a forrein clime.
When wofull Byblis, raving through despair,
Her garments from her bruised bosom tare,
Striking her arms through fury, and proclaims
In high distraction her incestuous flames.
640 Hopeless, her hated mansion she eschues,
And frantickly her brothers flight pursues.
And as Ismarian Bacchanals, great son
Of Semele, struck with thy Thyrus, run
In thy Triennials : so Bubastian Dames
Saw howling Byblis hurrying o're their plains.
645 From these she wander'd through the Carian bounds,
The warlike Leleges, and Lycian grounds ;
Cragus, Lymira's streams, the silver waves
Of Xanthus past ; and where Chimera raves
On craggy Rocks, with Lion's face and main,
A Goats rough body, and a Serpent's train.
650 The Woods were past ; when thou, O Byblis, faint
With long pursuit, and passion's strong constraint,
Sunk'st down, thy ruffled hair on earth displaid,
Thy face upon the wither'd leaves low laid.
The kind Lelegean Nymphs oft in their arms
Attempt to raise her, and with powerfull charms
655 Of counsel strive to cure her love-sick mind,
Which at her deafned heart no entrance find.
She, grasping the green rushes, silent lies,
And bathes them in the rivers of her eyes.
The Naiades thrust under these a Spring :
Their bounty could not give a greater thing.
660 As pitch distilleth from the bark's black wound ;
As stiff Bitumen issues from the ground ;
As floods, which frosts in Icy fetters bind,
Thaw with th' approaching Sun, and Southern wind:
Even so Phæbeian Byblis, spent in tears,
665 Becomes a living fountain, which yet bears
Her name ; and under a black Holm, that grows
In those rank valleys, plentifully flows.
The fame of this so wonderfull a fate
Had fill'd Creel's hundred Cities ; if of late
The change of Iphis, generally known,
Had not produc'd a wonder of their own.

- 670 For Phæstus, near to Gnëssus, fostered
One Lycus, of un-noted parents bred ;
However free. Nor did his wealth exceed
His parentage : yet both in word and deed
Sincere he was, and of a blameless life.
- 675 Who thus bespake his now down-lying Wife :
Two things I wish : that you your belly lay
With little pain ; and that it prove a boy.
A daughter is too chargeable, and we Too poor to match her. If a girl it be,
- 680 I charge, what I abhor, (O Piety
Forgive me) that, as soon as born, it die.
This having utter'd, the Commanded wept
And the Commander ; tears no measure kept.
Yet Teletusa still, with fruitless pray'r,
Desires he would not in the Gods despair.
- 685 But he was constant. Now her time was come,
And the ripe burthen stretcht her heavy womb :
When Inachis, with all her sacred band,
In dead of night, or stood, or seem'd to stand
Besides her bed. Her brows a crown adorns,
- 690 With ears of shining corn, and Cynthia horns.
Barking Anubis, and Bubastis bright,
Black Apis spotted variously with white,
He whose mouth-sealing finger silence taught,
Timbrels, Osiris never enough sought,
- 695 And forreign Serpents, whose dire touch constrain
A deadly slumber, consummate her train.
Then (as if seen awake) the Goddess said :
My Teletusa, be not thus dismaid ;
Reject these cares, thy husband disobey,
And when Lucina shall thy belly lay,
- 700 Foster what-e're it be. A Deity
Auxiliary to Distress am I,
Ready to help, and easily implor'd :
Nor shall it grieve thee that thou hast ador'd
Ungratefull Isis. This admonished,
She leaves the room. When, rising in her bed,
Her hands to heaven glad Teletusa threw ;
And humbly prays her vision may prove true.
- 705 Increasing throes at length a girl disclos'd,
Both by the father and the world suppos'd
To be a boy, so closely hid ; and known
But to the mother, and the nurse alone.

- He paies his vows, and by his Father's name
 710 It Iphis calls. This name rejoic'd the dame,
 To each sex common, now deceiv'd thereby,
 She still with pious fraud conceals her lie.
 A boy it was in show; whose looks assign
 To boy or girl, love would in either shine.
 715 At thirteen years her father her assign'd
 To yellow-trest Ianthe: she the pride
 Of Phæstian virgins for unequal'd fair,
Thelestes daughter, and his onely heir.
 Like young they were, like fair, together bred,
 720 Inform'd alike, alike accomplished.
 Love's darts at once their simple bosoms strike;
 Alike their wounds: their hopes, O! far unlike.
 The day th' expect. Ianthe thought time ran
 Too slow, and takes her Iphis for a man.
 725 Poor Iphis loves, despairs; despair ejects
 Far fiercer flames: a maid, a maid affects.
 What will become of me, (she weeping said)
 730 Whom new, unknown, prodigious loves invade?
 If pitifull, the Gods should me have 'stroy'd:
 Or else have giv'n what might have been enjoy'd.
 No Cow a Cow, no Mare a mare pursues;
 But Harts their gentle Hinds, and Rams their Ewes:
 So Birds together pair. Of all that move,
 735 No female suffers for a female love.
 O would I had no being! Yet, that all
 Abhorr'd by Nature might in Creet befall;
Sol's lust-incens'd daughter lov'd a Bull,
 But male and female they: my love more full
 Of uncouth fury. For she pleas'd her blood;
 740 And stood his errour in a Cow of wood:
 She, for her craft, had an adulterer.
 Should all the world their subtle wits confer;
 Should Dædalm his waxen wings renew,
 And hither flie, what could his cunning do?
 Can Art convert a Virgin to a Boy?
 745 Or fit Ianthe for a maiden's joy?
 No, fix thy mind; compose thy fond desires:
 O quench these ill-advis'd and foolish fires.
 Think of thy sex; do not thy self abuse:
 What may be, seek; and love as females use.
 750 Hope wings desire, hope Cupia's flight sustains:
 Thy Sex thee hope denies. No watch restrains

Our dear imbrace, no husband's jealousies,
 No rigorous Sires; nor she her self denies:
 Yet not to be enjoy'd. Nor canst thou be
 55 Happy in her, though men and Gods agree.
 Now also all to my desires accord.
 What they can give, the easie Gods afford.
 What I desire, my father and hers doth please.
 60 But nature crosseth, stronger then all these.
 She, she forbids. That day begins to shine,
 (Long wisht) wherein Iambe must be mine:
 And yet not mine. Of mortals most accurst
 I starve at feasts, and in the River thirst.
Juno, and Hymen, wherefore are you come?
 We both are Brides; but where is the Bride-groom?
 65 Here ends she. Nor less burns the other Maid;
 Who, Hymen, for thy swift appearance pray'd.
 Yet Telebusa fears what she affects,
 Protracting time; oft want of health objects;
 Ill-boading dreams and auguries oft feigns.
 But now no colour for excuse remains:
 70 Their nuptial rites, put off with such delay,
 Were to be solemniz'd the following day.
 When she unbinds hers and her daughter's hair;
 And, holding by the Altar, form'd this pray'r;
Isis, who Parætonium, Pharos Isle,
 75 Smooth Mareotis, and seven-chanell'd Nile,
 Chear'ft with thy presence, thy poor suppliants hear:
 O help in these extreame, and cure our fear.
 Thee Goddess, thee of old, these ensigns, I
 Have seen, and know; thy lamps, attendancy,
 And sounding Timbrels; and have thee obey'd.
 80 To me impunitie, life to this Maid,
 Thy saving counsel gave: to both renew
 Thy timely pity. Tears her words pursue.
 The Goddess shakes her Altar; when the gate
 Shook on the hinges: horns, that imitate
 The waxing Moon's, through all the Temple flung 85 A sacred splendour: noisefull Timbrels rung.
 The mother, glad of this successfull sign,
 Though not secure, returns from Isis shrine.
 Her Iphis follows, with a larger pace
 Then usual; nor had so white a face.
 Her strength augments; her look more bold appears;
 90 Her shortned curls scarce hang beneath her ears.

She's

She's far more full of courage, rapt with joy :
For though of late a Wench, she's now a Boy.
Gifts to the Temple born, they lo sing :
With joy their gifts they to the Temple bring ;
And add a title, in one verse display'd :

795 What Iphis vow'd a Wench, a Boy he pay'd.
The Morning Night dismask's with welcome flame ;
When Juno, Venus, and free Hymen came
To grace their marriage ; who, with gifts divine,
Iphis the Boy to his Iambe joyn.

OVID'S

OVID'S METAMORPHOSES

THE TENTH BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

Fear turns a Man to Flint. Lethæas blame
 Olenus bears, now Stones, their shapes the same.
 Next Cybele, to Pine her Atys turns.
 Sweet Cyparissus in a Cypress mourns.
 Enamour'd Jove an Eagles wings displays;
 And lovely Ganymede to Heaven conveys.
 Slain Hyacinthus sighs in his new Flower.
 The cruel Sacrificers by the power
 Of Venus turn'd to Bulls. The Prostitute
 To Stones. Pygmalion weds the living fruit
 Of his rare Art. Erigone doth shine
 In Heaven, converted to the Virgin Sign.
 Myrrha, a weeping tree. Hippomenes
 And Atalanta, Lions. Cyprides
 (Inform'd by Mentha's change) her Paramour
 Turns to a fair, but quickly fading Flower.

Hence to the Cicones, through boundless skies,
 In Saffron mantle, Hymenæus flies,
 By Orpheus call'd; but neither usual words,
 Nor chearfull looks, nor happy signs affords.
 The Torch his hand sustain'd, still sputtering rais'd
 A sullen smoke; though shaken, never blaz'd.
 Th' event worse then the Omen. As this Bride
 Troops with the Naiades by Hebrus side,

A Ser.

- 10 A Serpent bit her by the heel ; which forc't
Life from her body, and nuptial ties divorc't.
Which when the Thracian Poet had above
Enough bewail'd, that his complaints might move
The Shades below, by Tenarus he descends
To Stygian floods ; and his bold steps extends
- 15 By airy Ghosts, departed Souls, that found
A sepulture, through that unpleasant Ground,
To Pluto's Court. When, having run'd his strings,
On his harp the God-like Poet sings
The powers that sway the World beneath the Earth,
The seat abode of all our humane birth ;
If we the truth without offence may tell ;
- 20 I come not hither to discover Hell,
Nor bind that scolding Curr, who barking shakes
About his triple brows Medusa's Snakes.
My Wife this journey urg'd. Who, by the tooth
Of trod-on Viper, perisht in her youth.
- 25 I would, and strove t' have born her loss : but LOVE
Wone in that strife, a God well known above ;
Nor here, perhaps, unknown. If truly Fame
Report old Rapes, you also felt his flame.
By these obscure Abodes so full of dread,
- 30 By this huge Chaos, and deep Silence spread
Through your vast Empire, by these prayers of mine,
Eurydice's too-hasty fate untwine.
We are all yours : and after a short stay,
Early or late, we all must run this way.
Hither we throng, 'tis our last home assign'd ;
- 35 Th' eternal habitation of mankind.
She, when her time by nature shall expire,
Again is yours : I but her use desire.
If fate deny me this, my second choice
Is, here t' abide : in both our deaths rejoyce.
- 40 While thus he sung, and struck the quavering strings
The blondest Shadows wept ; no cheating Springs
Tempt Tantalus ; Ixion's Wheel stood still ;
Their Urn the Belides no longer fill ;
The Vulturs feed not Tyrim's Liver on ;
And Sisyphus sate listning on his Stone.
- 45 The Furies, vanquisht by his verse, were seen
To weep, that never wept before. Hell's Queen,
The King of Darkness, yield t' his powerfull plea.
Among the late-come Souls, Eurydice

They call : she came, yet halting of her wound.
Orpheus receives her thus : Till thou the bound
 Of pale Avernus pass, if back thou cast
 Thy carefull eyes, thou lovest what thou hast.
 A steep ascent, dark, thick with fogs, they climb,
 Through everlasting Silence ; by this time
 55 Approach the confines of illustrious Light.
 Fearing to lose her, and longing for a sight,
 His eies th' impatient Lover backward threw :
 When she, back-sliding, presently withdrew.
 He catches at her, in his wits distraught ;
 And yielding air for her (unhappy !) caught.
 60 Nor did she, dying again, her spouse reprove :
 For what could she complain of, but his love ?
 But takes her last farewell : her parting breath
 Scarce reacht his ears, when she revolves to death,
 Her double loss sad Orpheus stupish'd ;
 65 With equal terrour unto his, who spid
 Three-headed Cerberus ; whom fear alone,
 Oppressing nature, turn'd into a stone.
 Or like Olenus, who, t' excuse his Wife,
 Accus'd himself, and taxt his guiltless life :
 With thee, Leithea, whose proud beauty late
 Drew on thy self and him a cursed fate :
 70 United bodies once ; but for thy pride
 Now Marble statues on fount-fruitfull Ide.
 He kindly (pressing to return) intreats
 The Ferry-man ; who answers him with threats.
 Upon the banks seven daies he sate, forlorn
 And comfortless, all sorts of food forborn ;
 75 Care, grief of mind, and tears, his onely chear :
 Calling the Gods of Erebus severe.
 At length to snowy Rhodope he hasts,
 And Hemus, beaten with the northern blasts.
 Now Titan thrice had finished his years
 In watry Fisces. Orpheus still forbears
 80 The love of Women ; or through bad success,
 Or former vowes. Yet many ne'r the less
 Th' affected Poet seek ; none him enjoies :
 He beauty first admir'd in hopefull boies.
 A Hill there was, a Plain upon that hill,
 Which in a flowrie mantle flourish'd still ;
 Yet wanted shade. Hither this God-born went,
 Sate down, and toucht his well-tun'd instrument.

- 90 A shade straight rose. Nor trees of Chaony,
 The Poplar, various Oaks that pierce the sky,
 Soft Linden, smooth-rinde Beech, unmarried Bayes,
 The brittle Hazel, Ash, whose spears we praise,
 Unknotty Firr, the solace shading Planes,
 95 Rough Chesnuts, Maple fleet with different granes,
 Stream-bordering Willow, Lotus loving Lakes,
 Tough Box, whom never sappy Spring forsakes,
 The slender Tamarisk, with trees that bear
 A purple fig, nor Myrtles absent were.
 The wanton Ivy wreath'd in amorous twines;
 100 Vines bearing grapes, and Elms supporting Vines,
 Straight Service trees dropping Pitch, fruit red
Athum; these the rest accompan'd.
 With limber Palms, of Victory the prize :
 And upright Pine, whose leaves like bristles rise :
 Priz'd by the Mother of the Gods : for she 105 Her lust-stain'd Atys turn'd into that tree.
 The spire-like Cypress in this throng appears,
 Of late a Boy : lov'd by that God who bears
 The silver bow, and strikes the quavering strings.
 Sacred to Nymphs that haunt Carthæan Springs
 110 A Stag there was ; whose horns on high display'd
 With spreading palms, afford his head a shade.
 His antlers shone with gold ; a carquenet
 His neck imbrac't with sparkling Diamonds set.
 A silver bell upon his forehead hung
 115 By silken strings, which every motion rung.
 Round pearl, of equal size, from either ear
 Hung on his cheeks : who, void of native fear,
 Frequented houses : and well pleas'd, would stand
 The gentle strokings of a strangers hand.
 This, Cyparissus, was thy onely joy,
 120 (Of all that Cæa bred, the fairest boy)
 By thee full oft, to change of Pasture led :
 To purling streams that part the ranker mead.
 With various flowers now wouldst thou trick his horns
 Now on his back (who no such burthen scorns)
 About the spacious fields in pleasure ride ;
 125 And with a purple reine the willing guide.
 'Twas Summer, and high noon : Daies burning eye
 Made Cancers crooked claws with fervour fry.
 Upon the ground the panting Hart was laid,
 Cool air receiving from the spreading shade.

130 Whom silly Cyparissus wounds by chance :
 And seeing life pursue his tug'd-out lance,
 Resolves to die. What did not Phæbus say,
 That might a grief so slightly caus'd allay ?
 He answers him in sighs : this last good-turn
 135 Implores ; That he might never cease to mourn.
 His blood now shed in tears, a greenish hew
 His body dims : the locks that dangling grew
 Upon his ivory fore-head, bristling rise
 140 And pointing upward, seem to threat the skies.
 When Phæbus, sighing : I for thee will mourn :
 Mourn thou for others : Hercles still adorn.

Such trees attracting ; and environ'd round
 With birds and beasts, upon the rising ground
 The Poet sits : who, having tun'd his strings
 145 Though dissonant, yet musical, thus sings.
 From Jove, O Muse, my Mother, draw my verse ;
 All bow to Jove : Jove's power we oft rehearse.
 150 And late of Giants sung, in lofty strains,
 Foil'd by his thunder on Phlegrean plain.
 Now, in a lower tune, to lovely boyes
 Belov'd of Gods, turn we our softer laies :
 And Women well deserving punishment,
 On interdicted lust, with fury bent.

155 Heavens King, young Ganymed inflames with love :
 There was what Jove would rather be than Jove :
 Yet daigns no other shape then hers that bears
 His awfull lightning in her golden sears.
 Who forthwith stooping with deceitfull wings,
 160 Trust up Iliades by Ida's springs.
 Who now for Jove (though jealous Juno scoules)
 Delicious Nectar fills in flowing bowls.

And Amyclides, thee in azure skies
 Had Phæbus fixt ; if cruel Destinies
 Had not prevented : yet in some sort made
 Eternal. For, asoft as Springs invade
 165 Sharp Winters, and to Aries Pisces yields :
 So oft renu'd, thy Flower adorns the fields.
 My fathers love to thee did mans excell,
 Their president the Delphians miss, who dwell
 On round Earths navel : while the God of Beams,
 Haunts wall-less Sparta, and Eurotas streams.
 170 Now, neither for his Harp, nor quiver, cares :
 Himself debasing, berres the corded snares :

- Or leads the Dogs ; or clambers Mountains ; led
 By Lordly Love, and flames by custom fed.
 Now Titan bore his equal-distant Light,
 175 Between fore-running and ensuing night :
 When lightned of their garments, either shone
 With suppling oil ; in strife to throw the stone.
 This swinging through the air first Phæbus threw :
 The obvious clouds dispersing as it flew ;
 180 On solid earth, though flying long, at length
 Descends ; and shews his art-inabling strength.
 Th' imprudent Boy attempts with fatal haste
 To take it up ; when Earth, by boundings, cast
 The stone, O Hyacinthos, at thy head :
 185 The Boy look't pale ; so lookt the God, who bled
 Even in his bleeding. Raised from the ground ;
 He sought t' assuage, and dry the bitter wound.
 And would with herbs his flying soul have staid :
 That wound was cureless ; art affords no aid.
 190 As Violets, or Lilies loving streams,
 Or Poppy, bruised in their yellow stems,
 Wither forthwith, and hang their heavy heads,
 Nor raise themselves, but bow to their first beds :
 So hung his dying looks ; so over-swai'd,
 His limber neck upon his shoulder laid.
 195 Sweet flower said Phæbus, blasted in the prime
 Of thy fair youth : thy wound presents my crime.
 Thou art my grief and shame. This hand thy breath
 Hath crush'd to air : I, authour of thy death,
 200 Yet what my fault ? unless t' have plaid with thee,
 Or lov'd thee (O too well !) offences be.
 I would, sweet Boy, that I for thee might die !
 Or die with thee ! but since the Fates deny
 So dear a wish ; thou shalt with me abide :
 And ever in my memory reside.
 205 Our Harp, and Verse thy praises shall resound :
 And in thy Flower my sorrow shall be found.
 A valiant Heroe shall in time, to it
 Another add ; and in the same be writ.
 While thus Apollo truly prophesied ;
 Behold the bloud which late the grass had di'd,
 210 Was now no bloud : from whence a flower full blown
 Far brighter then the Tyrian scarlet shone :
 Which seem'd the same, or did resemble right
 A Lily : changing but the red to white.

- Nor so contented ; (for the youth receiv'd
 That grace from Phœbus) in the flower he weav'd
 215 The sad impression of his sighs which bears
Ai ! Ai ! displai'd in funeral Characters.
 Nor shame to Sparta Hyacinth procures ;
 Whose adoration to this day endures :
 For now as then, they yearly celebrate
 The Hyacinthian Feast in solemn State.
 220 Perhaps if Amathus you ask (whose earth
 Abounds with metals) if she like the birth
 Of her Propætides ; she would reply :
 As well as theirs, for their impiety,
 In former time, with monstrous horns defam'd :
 Whereof they fitly were Cerasta nam'd.
 Before their doors the tragick Altar stood
 Of Jove the Hospitable ; stain'd with bloud
 225 Of stranger guests. Who had this shambles seen,
 Would think that bloud the bloud of Calves had been.
 A Guest new sacrific'd ; fair Cyprides
 Offended with such cruel Rites as these,
 Her towns and Ophiussa's fields prepares
 230 T' abandon. Yet said she, what guilt of theirs
 In me so great a detestation breeds ?
 Rather with death reward such bloody deeds ;
 Or exile : if from these extreams they scape,
 What middle course, but to transform their shape ?
 235 When musing to what form, she cast her look Upon the horned Herd ; who from them took
 A resolution so to arm their skulls :
 And turns their mighty limbs to monstrous Bulls.
 Yet durst th' obscene Propætides deny,
 O Venus, thy all-ruling Deitie.
 240 The first that ever gave themselves for hire
 To prostitution ; urged by thy ire
 Their looks emboldned, modesty now gone,
 Convert at length to little-differing Stone.
Pygmalion seeing these to spend their times
 So beast-like ; frighted with the many crimes
 245 That rule in Women ; chose a single life :
 And long forbore the pleasure of a Wife.
 Meanwhile, in Ivory with happy art
 A Statue carves, so gracefull in each part,
 As Women never equal'd it : and stands
 Affected to the fabrick of his hands.

- 250 It seem'd a virgin, full of living flame;
 That would have mov'd if not with-held by shame.
 Such Art his art conceal'd: which he admires:
 And from it draws imaginary fires:
 Then often feels it with his hands, to try
 255 It 'twere a body, or cold Ivory.
 Nor could resolve. Who kissing, thought it kist:
 Oft courts, imbraces, wrings it by the wrist;
 The flesh impressing (his conceit was such)
 And fears to hurt it with too rude a touch.
 Now flatters her; now sparkling stones presents,
 260 And Orient pearl (loves witching instruments)
 Soft-singing birds, each several-colour'd flower,
 First Lilies, painted balls, and tears that pour
 From weeping trees. Rich Robes, her person deck;
 Her fingers, rings; reflecting gems her neck;
 265 Pendants, her ears; a glittering zone her breast.
 In all shew'd well; but shew'd when naked, best.
 Now laies he her upon a gorgeous bed:
 With carpets of Sidonian purple spread.
 Now calls her Wife. Her head a pillow prest
 Of plummy down, as if with sense possest.
 270 Now came the day of Venus Festival:
 Through wealthy Cyprus solemniz'd by all.
 White heifers, deckt with golden horns, by strokes
 Of axes fall; ascending incense smokes.
 He, with his gift before the Altar stands;
 You Gods, if all we crave be in your hands,
 275 Give me the Wife I wish: one like, he said,
 But durst not say, give me my ivory Maid.
 The golden Venus, present at her feast,
 Conceives his wish; and friendly signs exprest.
 The fire thrice blazing, thrice in flames aspires.
 To his admired Image he retires:
 280 Lies down besides her, rais'd her with his arm;
 Then kist her tempting lips and found them warm
 That lesson oft repeats; her bosom oft
 With amorous touches feels, and felt it soft.
 The Ivory dimpled with his fingers, lacks
 Accustom'd hardness: as Hymettus Wax
 285 Relents with heat, which chafing thumbs reduce
 To pliant forms, by handling fram'd for use.
 Amaz'd with doubtfull joy, and hope that reels;
 Again the Lover, what he wishes, feels.

- The veins beneath his thumbs impression beat :
 A perfect Virgin full of juice and heat.
- 290 The Cyprian Prince with joy-expressing words,
 To pleasure-giving Venus thanks affords.
 His lips to her he joins, which seems to melt :
 The blushing Virgin now his kisses felt ;
 And fearfully erecting her fair eyes,
 Together with the light, her Lover spies.
- 295 Venus the marriage blest which she had made.
 And when nine Crescents had at full displaid
 Their joyning horns, repleat with borrowed flame,
 She Paphus bore : who gave that Isle a name.
 He Cinyras begot : who might be stil'd
 Of men most happy, if without a child.
- 300 I sing of horror ! Daughters, far, O far
 From hence remove ! and you, who fathers are !
 Or if my winning verse your minds allure :
 Let them no credit in this part procure.
 Or if you will believe the same for true :
 Believe withal the judgements that ensue.
- 305 If nature could permit so foul a Crime :
 I joy for you Ismarians ; for this Clime ;
 This World of curs ; so distant from that earth,
 That gave to such a cursed Monster birth.
 In Costus, Cinnamon ; and Amomum,
 Rich let Panchaia be : let precious Gum
 Sweat from her trees ; affected flowers bring forth ;
- 310 So't Myrrha bear. No new tree of that worth.
Cupid denies t' have us'd his darts therein :
 And vindicates his flames from such a sin.
Alecto, with swoln snakes, and Stygian fire
 That fury rais'd. 'Tis sin to hate thy Sire :
- 315 This love, a greater. Princes their abodes
 Leave all in parts ; and for thee fall at odds :
 Of all, O Myrrha, make thy choice of one ;
 So one of all be in that number none.
 She knew't : and striving, to her self thus spake :
- 320 Ah whither rapt ! what is't I undertake !
 O Gods : O piety ! divine respect
 Of Parents guard me : and this sin eject :
 If so a sin it be. No piety
 Condemns such Venus ; Nature's common tie.
- 325 Horses their fillies back, fires Heifers bear ;
 Goats kids beget on those whose kids they were ;

- Birds of that seed conceive, whereof but late
 Conceiv'd themselves : nor they degenerate.
 Happy in this are those ! But humane care
 330 Hath fram'd malignant laws : and we who are
 By nature free ; malicious customs bind.
 There is a Nation to their bloud more kind ;
 Where sons their mothers, fathers daughters wed ;
 Affection doubled by their birth and bed.
 Woe's me, that there I was not born ! the place (base)
 Makes this a crime. What thoughts are these ! hence 335 Hence wicked hopes. Though he all-worthy be :
 Yet, as a father, must be lov'd by thee.
 Were I not daughter to great Cyniras ;
 All I conceive in my desires might pass.
 Now, in that mine, not mine : proximity
 Dis-joins us ; nearer, were we not so nigh.
 340 Hence wou'd I flie by un-returning waies
 To shun this sin : dire Love my journey staies ;
 To feast my hungry eies with his dear light,
 Talk, touch and kifs ; or more, if more I might :
 O wicked Virgin, canst thou more propound !
 345 Know'st thou what laws and names thy lusts confound,
 Thy Father's Whore ! a Rival to thy Mother !
 Thy own Son's Sister ! Mother to thy Brother !
 Nor fear'st the Furies with their kissing hair,
 Who on the faces of the guilty stare,
 350 With dreadfull Torches ! From thy soul exile
 This mischief, ere it actually defile.
 Nor with thy horrid lust infringe the law
 Of powerfull Nature : but in time with-draw.
 Would I, he would not : too too well inclin'd.
 355 O that like fury would inflame his mind !
 Thus she. But Cyniras, prest with the store
 Of worthy suiters who his voice implore ;
 In his own choice irresolute, demands
 (Their names rehearsing) how her fancy stands.
 She, thoughtfull silent ; gazing on his face,
 360 Flusht with inbosom'd flames and wept apace.
 He, taking this for maiden fear ; Desist
 Frow weeping, said : then dri'd her cheeks, and kist.
 This too much pleas'd her. Once more asked, who
 She best could like : repli'd One, like to you,
 365 Be still, said he, so pious. At that name
 She hung the head, as conscious of her blame.

'Twas now the mid of night : when Sleep bestows
 On men, and on their cares, a sweet repose.
 But Myrrha watches, rapt with raging fires ;
 Retracting her implacable desires.
 370 Despairs, hopes ; will not, will ; now shames, again
 Desires ; nor knows what course to take. As when
 A mighty Oak (now almost fell'd) his fall
 On each sidethreatens ; and is fear'd on all :
 375 Even so her mind, impair'd with various wounds,
 Waves to and fro ; and changes still propounds.
 No mean, no cure, was left for love but death.
 Death pleas'd. Resolv'd to choak her hated breath.
 Up-starting, to a beam her girdle ties.
 380 Dear Cinyras farewell (she softly cries)
 And of my ruine understand the cause.
 That said, the noose about her neck she draws.
 Her wakefull Nurses faithfull ears, they say,
 A whispering heard : who in the Lobby lay.
 Straight rose ; unlockt the doors ; the instrument
 385 Of death beholding, screecht : together rent
 Her hair and bosom : and, with trembling haste,
 The girdle from her pallid neck displac't.
 Now had she time to weep, t' imbrace her Care :
 And ask the cause of such accurst despair.
 She, silent, fixes on the earth her eies :
 And grieves at deaths prevented enterprise.
 390 Baring her hoary hairs and empty breast,
 The Nurse, by her first food, and cradle, prest
 Her griefs disclosure. Myrrha turns aside,
 And sighes. The Nurse won'd not be so deny'd.
 395 Nor onely promis'd secrecy, but said,
 Tell me, my child, and entertain my aid.
 My old age is not fruitless : charms have we,
 And powerfull med'cines, if it fury be :
 If witchcraft, magick shall thy torments ease :
 If wrath of Gods, the Gods we will appease
 400 With sacrifice. What can be else surmis'd,
 Thy fortunes by incursions unsurpris'd ;
 Thy mother, and thy father, well ; that name
 Drew from her soul a sigh, that scorcht like flame :
 Nor in the Nurse did this suspicion move
 Of such a Crime : and yet she saw 'twas Love.
 405 Importunate to know what least she fears,
 Laid in her lap now watred with her tears.

METAMORPHOSIS,

Sh' infolds her in her feeble arms, and said ;
 I know, thou lov'st : wherein (not be afraid)
 Thou maist on my sedulity rely :

Nor shall thy father ever this descry.

- 410 At that, in fury from her lap she sprung ;
 Then on the bed her prostrate body flung :
 Muffling her guilty looks : Be gone, she said,
 And spare the blushes of a wretched Maid.
 Still urg'd : Be gone, repli'd ; or else forbear
 T' inquire of that which is a sin to hear.

- The Nurse lost in a maze : her hands with years
 415 And terror trembling (kneeling to her) rears :
 Now speaks her fair, now threatens to disclose
 (Unless she made her privy to her woes)
 Her purpos'd violence : and vows to prove
 Both secret, and assistant to her love.

- At that, her head she rais'd ; her Nurses brest
 420 With weeping bathes : oft strove to have confest ;
 As oft with-held : at length she hid her head ;
 And said, O Mother, happy in thy bed !
 There ends : then groans. The Nurse cold horror shook ;
 Now too much knowing : with a ghastly look,
 425 Her hoary hair star'd on her head : Who said,
 What nor, that might so foul a lust dissuade.
 The Virgin could not such a truth deny :
 But stands resolv'd, or to possess or die.

- Live, said she, and possess (there stopt, as loth 430 To say ; thy Sire) and bound it with an oath.

Now Matrons celebrate the yearly Feast
 Of Ceres ; whom long linnen stoles invest :
 And offer garlands of their first ripe corn ;
 Forbidden Venus for nine nights forborn,

- 435 And touch of man. In spotless ornaments,
 With these, the Queen her secret Rites frequents,
 Lying alone the lewdly diligent

Doth Cinyras, o're-charg'd with Wine, present
 With proffer of true love, though falsely maskt :

- 440 And prais'd her beauty. Of what age being askt ?
 Of equal age with Myrrha, she replies.
 When bid to bring her : home in hast she highes ;
 Reioyce, said she, I bring the victory.
 Th' unhappy Virgin felt but little ioy ;
 Such ill success her troubled Soul divin'd :

- 445 And yet she joy'd : such discord rackt her mind.

Now

- Now silence over all the world did reign :
 And slow Bootes had declin'd his Wain.
 (To sin-address't) from heaven bright Cynthia flies ;
 Stars shroud their heads in clouds : Night lost her eyes
- 450 Erigone, Icarus, first remove :
 She plac'd in Heaven for her paternal love.
 Thrice stumbled she ; the funeral Owl thrice rent
 The air with ominous shrieks : yet on she went :
 By pitchy night, of modesty bereft,
- 455 Her Nurses right hand holding with her left,
 And groping with the other hand, explores
 Her blind access. Now came she to the doors
 Of that dire chamber ; now the way to sin
 She boldly opens ; and now enters in.
 Yet blood and courage her at once forsook ;
 Her knees, unknitting, one another strook ;
- 460 The nearness to her crime removes desire :
 Who now repents and would unknown retire.
 Protracting, by the hand the Nurse her led ;
 And, having rendred her unto his bed :
 Here Cinyras, said she, receivethine own,
 And joins their cursed bosoms. He unknown,
- 465 His bowels to his bed assumes : and cheers
 With comfortable words her maiden fears :
 By chance he call'd her daughter, (being old)
 And she him father : that their names might hold.
 Now his incestuous bed his daughter leaves,
 With wicked seed her cursed womb conceives :
- 470 Who bears about the burthen of her shame :
 Next night, and next, and next, re-acts the same.
 When Cinyras who longs to see his Lover,
 So oft imbrac't ; did with a light discover
 His sin, and daughter. Sorrow not a word
- 475 Could utter : he unsheaths his shining sword.
 She swiftly flies : whom nights black shelter shields
 From threatned death ; and strays through spacious Palm-clad Arabia, and Panchæa past ; (fields.
 Now having wandred by nine Noons, at last
- 480 Rest to her weary limbs Sabæa gave.
 Charg'd with her womb ; not knowing what to crave ;
 Between the hate of life, and fear of death,
 These thoughts she utters with her fainting breath.
 You Powers ! If Penitency pierce your ear ;
 I have deserved, nor refuse to hear,

- 485 Your just inflictions : yet lest I prophane
 Or those who live, or who in death remain,
 O banish me from either Monarchy,
 That, chang'd by you, I may nor live, nor die.
 Confession some celestial pity found,
 Those wishes had their Gods. Even then the ground
 490 Cover'd her legs : a downward-spreading root
 Burst from her toes ; whose ever-fixed foot
 Sustain'd the lengthfull bole. Bones turn to wood,
 To pith her marrow, into sap her blood :
 Her arms great branches grow, her fingers spine
 To little twigs ; her skin converts to rind.
 495 Now her big womb the rising tree possesse,
 Her bosom folds, and now her neck oppress :
 When she, delay ill-brooking, downward shrink
 And vales her visage in the closing trunk.
 Though sense, with shape, she lost ; still weeping, she 500 Sheds bitter tears, which trickle from her tree :
 Tears of high honour ; these their Mistress name
 As yet preserve, and still shall bear the same.
 This ill-got Infant, now at perfect growth
 Within the tree ; endeavours to get forth.
 505 The strict embracing bark, her belly wrung,
 With torment stretcht : nor had that grief a tongue :
 Nor could she call Lucina to her throws :
 And yet the tree like one in labour shows ;
 Bows down with pains, and groans, and weeps a flood.
 510 Lucina by her trembling branches stood ;
 Her hand impos'd, and uttered powerfull words.
 The yawning tree the crying Babe affords
 A passage ; Whom those Nymphs receive with joy.
 And in his mothers tears anoint the Boy.
 515 Nor envy could but praise his beauty : so
 The naked Cupids, lively painted, show.
 But, lest their habits some distinction make,
 A quiver give, or his from Cupid take.
 Time glides away with undiscovered haste,
 520 And mocks our hopes : no wings can fly so fast,
 He, whom his sister bore, his Grandfathers son,
 Late trees-inclos'd, who lately life begun,
 But now a most sweet Infant, now as rare
 A Boy, now Man, now then himself more fair,
 And now on Tereus for his mothers fires
 Revenge inflicts ; who dotingly admires,

- 525 For kist by quiver-bearing Love, his dart
By fortune raz'd her tender breast; with smart
Incens'd, she thrust him from her, nor then found
The wounds deceitfull death, yet deep the wound.
Not now Cythera could the Lover please;
- 530 Nor Paphos, grasped with resulting Seas.
High Cnidos, Anoibus, renown'd for brasse,
Nor heaven frequents; her heaven Adonis was.
Him wooes, accompanies, besides him lies
In gratefull shades, and strives to please his eyes.
Now like Diana she her self attires; (Briers:
- 535 And trips o're Hills and Rocks, through Brakes and Hollows the Hound; pursuing beasts of chase,
Bucks, high-horn'd Harts, and Harts who fly apace:
- 540 But rapessull Wolves, rough Bears, fell Boars eschews;
And Lions, whom the blood of Bees imbrues.
And thee Adonis, her misdoubts dissuade
From such encounters; had they been obey'd.
Who flie, said she, be bold in following those:
Valour unsafely copes with valiant foes.
- 545 Sweet Boy! subject not me to fortunes stroke,
Nor cruel beasts by nature arm'd provoke,
For fear such glory but too costly prove.
Thy youth and beauty, though they Venus move.
Nor bristled Swine, nor shaggy Lion touch:
Pity ne'r pierc'd the eyes nor hearts of such.
- 550 Boars, in their crooked tusshes lightning have:
And Lions with impetuous fury rave.
I hate them. Asked why? We will relate
Old crimes, said she, and wonder-striking fate.
But now unusual toil my strength invades:
- 555 And lo, yon' Poplar courts us with her shades,
The grass affords a bed: There let us rest.
When, lying down, the grass and him she prest.
Her head now in her Lovers bosom laid;
Thus (words with kisses intermixing) said:
- 560 Perhaps you of a Maid have heard, who wan
The Prize in running from the swiftest Man.
'Tis true, She won indeed: nor could you tell
Whether her speed or beauty did excell.
Enquiring of an husband, this reply
- 565 Apollo gave. The use of husband flie
O Atalant: yet thou shalt vainly strive
Against thy fate, and lose thy self alive.

Frighted herewith in shady woods she lives :
And troops of pressing Sutors from her drives
With this reply : Except out-run I be,

570 I am a Wife for no man ; Run with me.

My bed and I, are both the winners meed :
The tardy dies. Upon this law proceed.
She, cruel : yet so powerfull was her look,
That many a youth the peril undertook.

575 Hippomenes beheld this tragick strife.

Will any through such danger seek a Wife ?
(Said he) and taxt their follies that pursu'd.
But when her face and naked form he view'd :
Such as is mine ; or thine, wert thou a Maid :

580 Amaz'd ! with hands up-heav'd, Forgive (he said)

O you whom late I blam'd ! not then I knew
The prizes worth. Love still by praising grew :
Who wishes now that none might run so fast :
Envies and fears : Why linger I, nor hast

585 (Said he) to try my fortune ? Gods still aid

Th' adventurous. While this in thought he said ;
The Virgin with a winged pace past by ;
Though seeming to th' Aonian Youth to fly
As swift as Scythian shafts ; her form he more

590 Admires ; by motion lovelier then before.

The wind reverberates her ancles wings,
And whisks her ham-bound buskins purple strings,
Tossing her hair, on Ivory shoulders spread.
Her pure white body so receives the red,

595 As when carnation curtains are displai'd

On pure white walls, and die them with their shade.
While this the stranger view'd, the race was run :
And Atalanta's brows the Garland won.

The vanquish'd sigh, and pay their forfeiture.

600 Nor could so sad success his fear procure :

Who rose ; and fixing on the Maid his eyes ;
Why seek you praise by easie victories ?

Contend with us : if we obtain the Bays,
Our victory will not eclipse your praise.

605 Megare me begot, Onchestus bloud ;

He Neptunes, Ruler of the sacred flood :
Nor we degenerate. My foil, your name
Will honour ; and immortalize your fame.

This while, a well-pleas'd eye she on him threw :

610 Nor knows her wish ; to lose, or to subdue.

What

- What God, a Face to beauty, would destroy
 This Youth, said she, who seeks my bed to enjoy
 With his lifes forfeiture? If I may be
 The Judge, there is not so much worth in me,
 Nor is't this beauty moves, though it might move,
 615 But that a Boy. We pity, and not love.
 Besides, his courage, and contempt of death!
 Who from great Neptunes son derives his birth!
 And then, his love; content to part with life,
 If harder fate deny me for his Wife!
 620 Be gone O stranger; shun my bloody bed,
 While yet thou mai'st: this match will lose thy head.
 No Virgin is there who would not be thine:
 And such would seek, whose lustres darken mine.
 Yet why regard I him, so many slain?
 Look to thy self, or perish, since in vain
 Admonisht by such numbers, whom this strife
 Hath sent to death, Th' art weary of thy life.
 625 And must he die, because he'd live with me?
 Must death, adventurous love, thy wages be?
 This murder will our victory defame
 And purchase hate; yet am not I in blame.
 O would thou wouldst desist, and danger shun!
 630 Or since so mad, would thou couldst faster run!
 How Boy and Virgin glory in his face!
 O poor Hippomenes! O would this place
 Th' hadst never seen! thou well deserv'st to live.
 Were I more happy, and hard fate would give Me leave to marry; thou art He alone,
 635 To whom my bed, and beauties should be known.
 Thus she, who raw, and pierc'd with loves first touch,
 Errs in her thoughts; and loves: nor knew so much.
 Now King and People call upon the Race;
 When Neptune's Issue thus implor'd thy grace.
 640 O Venus, favour my attempts, said,
 And those affections, which you gave me, aid!
 This friendly winds convey'd unto my ear:
 I pity, and no longer help forbear.
 A field there is, so fertile none, through all
 645 Rich Cyprus; which they Damascenus call.
 Antiquity this to my honour vow'd;
 And therewithall my Temples had indow'd.
 A Tree there flourish on that pregnant mold,
 Whose glittering leaves, and branches, shone with gold;
 Three

- Three golden Apples, gathered from that tree,
 650 By chance I brought : and, so us none could see,
 Himself excepted, to Hippomenes,
 Together with their use, deliver'd these.
 The trumpets sound. Both from the Barrier start,
 Whose nimble steps scarce touch earths upper-part.
 Their feet, unwet, the sea might well have born :
 655 Or unsuppressed stalks of standing corn.
 Favour and Clamour, joining in remorse,
 The youth thus hearten : now thy speed enforce,
 Make hast Hippomenes, delay decline,
 Collect thy powers : the victory is thine.
 'Tis doubtfull whether, what the people said,
 660 More joy'd the Heros or Schieneian Maid.
 How often lag'd she, when she might o're-go ;
 And gazing on him, sigh'd t' out-strip him so !
 Short breath from panting bosoms scorching flew,
 665 The Goal far off ; when Neptune's Nephew threw
 One Apple of the three : the Maid admires ;
 And greedy of the shining fruit, retires.
 To catch the rolling gold : the Youth past by,
 And all the field resounded shouts of joy.
 This hindrance she repairs with winged hast :
 670 Again Hippomenes behind her cast
 The second fruit, thrown farther then before,
 Declin'd her steps, yet him out-strips once more :
 The Race now near an end, he said, O save !
 Great Goddess, give succels to what you gave !
 675 And threw the shining gold another way
 With all his vigour, to prolong her stay.
 When I compel'd her, doubtfull what to do,
 To take it up, and added weight thereto,
 With-held, both by diverting her pursuit,
 And with the burlesk of that pondrous fruit.
 But lest my words the race in length exceed :
 680 She was out-run, and he receiv'd his Meed.
 Deserv'd not I both thanks and frankincense,
 Think you Adonis, for his lifes defence ?
 He neither gave. Provokt with sudden rage
 At this contempt, and lest the future age
 By such examples should my God-head slight,
 685 Against them both I due revenge excite.
 The Fane, erected by Eckion's vow
 Unto the Mother of the Gods, they now

Had past, obscur'd by dark and secret shades :
 When their long journey them to rest perswades.
 690 Hippomenes, incens'd by my fires ;
 Here lusteth with unseas'nable desires.
 A gloomy grot, much like unto a Cave,
 Stood near this Fane ; to which light pumice gave
 A natural cover, by devotion grac'd :
 Within this Cell the reverent Priest had plac'd
 The wooden Images of ancient Gods :
 695 This entring ; he pollutes their chaste abodes.
 The Statues wry their looks. The Mother, crown'd
 With Towers, had struck them to the Stygian sound :
 But that she thought that punishment too small.
 When yellow mains on their smooth shoulders fall ;
 Their arms to legs ; their fingers turn to nails ;
 700 Their breasts of wondrous strength : their tufted tails
 Whisk up the dust ; their looks are full of dread :
 For speech they roar : the woods become their bed.
 These Lions, fear'd by others, Cybel checks
 With curbing bits ; and yokes their stubborn necks.
 705 These O my Dear, and all such kinds of beasts
 As will not turn their backs, but bend their breasts
 T' encounter with the rash Assailant, shun :
 Left by thy courage We be both undone.
 This said : thence flew she, rais'd by yoked Swans.
 But Valour such admonishments with-stands.
 710 By chance the dogs, pursuing long before,
 His scented footings, had dillodg'd a Boar.
 Whom, rushing from his covert, the bold Youth
 Obliquely wounds. The Boar with crooked tooth
 Writhes out the javelins with his blood imbru'd.
 Who now his safety-seeking Foe persu'd ;
 715 Sheathing his tusks in his groin : and ahrew
 To earth the dying Boy. The Swans that drew
 Idalia's weightless chariot through the air,
 Yet reacht not Cyprus : when the heavenly Fair
 Thence heard his dying groans ; and wheeling round,
 720 Her silver birds directs to that sad sound :
 But when she saw him weltring in his Gore ;
 Down jumping from the skies, at once she tore
 Her hair and bosom : then her breast invades
 With bitter blows ; and Destiny upbraids.
 Not all, said she, is subject to your waist :
 725 Our sorrows monument shall ever last.

Sweet Boy ! thy deaths sad image, every year
Shall in our solemniz'd complaints appear.

But be thy bloud a Flower. Had Proserpine

730 The power to change a Nymph to Mint ? is mine
Inferiour ? or will any envy me

For such a change ? This having utter'd, she

Pour'd Nectar on it, of a fragrant smell,

Sprinkled therewith ; the bloud began to swell ;

Like shining bubbles, which from drops ascend.

And e're an hour was fully at an end,

735 From thence a Flower, alike in colour, rose :

Such as those trees produce, whose fruits inclose

Within the limber rind their purple grains,

And yet their beauty but a while remains ;

For those light-hanging leaves infirmly plac'd,

The winds that blow on all things, quickly blast,

OVID

OVID'S METAMORPHOSIS.

THE ELEVENTH BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

*A Serpent chang'd to Stone: Rough barks infold
 The cruel Bacchanals. To starving Gold
 All turns at Midas touch: His body laves
 In clear Pactolus, whose enriched waves
 Wash off his gold and gilt; and Asses ears
 His folly shame: the whisper'd Secret bears
 Like sounding Reeds. Apollo, and the Guide
 Of sacred Seas, in humane shapes reside.
 Forc'd Thetis varies forms. Dædalion
 T' a Falcon turn'd. A Wolf congeal'd to Stone.
 Morpheus to mortals, Phobetor to Brutes,
 And Phantasus to shapes inanimate sutes.
 Transform'd Halcyone and Ceyx fly.
 So Ælæus, who vainly strives to die.*

THUS while the Thracian Poet with his songs,
 Beasts, Trees, and Stones, attracts in following
 Behold, Ciconian Dames (their furlous breasts (throngs:
 Clad with the spotted skins of salvage beasts)
 The sacred Singer from an hill espy'd,
 As he his ditty to his Harp apply'd;
 Of these, one cry'd, and tols'd her staring hair;
 Lo he who hates our Sex! then threw her spear
 At his melodious mouth; which Ivy-bound,
 Kist his affected lips without a wound.

Another

- 10 Another hurls a stone; this, as it flew,
 His voice and Harps according tunes subdue:
 Which self-accus'd for such a rude assay,
 Before his feet, as in submission lay:
 Rash violence, the mean exil'd, increast:
 And mad Erynnis reign'd in every breast.
- 15 His songs had all their weapons charm'd, if noise
 Of Berecynthian thalms, clapt hands, loud cries,
 Drums, howling Bacchanals, with frantick sound
 Had not his all-appeasing musick drown'd.
 The stones then blush with silenc'd Orpheus bloud.
- 20 But first on raviht beasts that listning stood,
 On Fowl, and Serpents, they their spite infer;
 And raze the glory of his Theater.
 Then all with cruel hands about him fly:
 And flock like birds, when they by day espy
- 25 The bird of Night. And as a Stag at bay,
 In th' Amphitheater now made a prey
 To eager hounds: so they together flung
 Their leavy spears, not fram'd for such a wrong;
 Some clods, some arms of trees, some stones let fly,
- 30 And lest wild Rage should weapons want, hard by,
 By chance slow Oxen drew the furrowing ploughs;
 And Swains, providing food with sweating brows,
 Dig'd with their brawny arms: who fear-inclin'd,
 35 Before them fled, and left their tools behind.
- Their mattocks, Rakes, and Spades dispersed lay
 About the empty fields: these snatcht away,
 (The ploughs from threatning Oxen torn) their hate
 Harries them back unto the Poets fate.
 Him, holding up his hands, who then in vain
- 40 First spent his breath, nor pity could obtain,
 That Rout of sacrilegious Furies flew!
 Even through that mouth (O Jupiter!) which drew
 From stones attention, which affection bred
 In Salvage beasts, his forced spirits fled!
 Sad birds, wild herds, hard flints, and woods, of late
- 45 Led by thy verse, then wept: at thy sad fate
 Trees shed their leaves; streams with their tears in
 The Naiades and Dryades invest (creast
 Themselves in sullen sable, and display
 Their scattered hair. Thy limbs dispersed lay.
- 50 His head and harp they into Hebrus flung,
 The harp sounds something sadly; the dead tongue

Sighs out sad ditties : the banks sympathize
 (That bound the River) in their sad replies.
 Now then to Sea their native current bore ;
 55 Both cast upon Methymnian Lesbos shoar.
 A Dragon on the foreign sand prepares
 To seize his head, and lick his dropping hairs.
 When gaping to devour the Hymnists face,
Phæbus descends ; and in that very space,
 60 Into a stone converts him by his power,
 With jaws extended ready to devour.
 His Ghost retires to under-shades : once more
 He sees, and knows, what he had seen before.
 Then through th' Elysian fields among the blest
 Seeks his Euridice. Now re-posselt
 With strict imbraces, guided by one mind,
 65 They walk together: oft he comes behind,
 Oft goes before : now Orpheus safely may
 His following Euridice survey.
 Yet Bacchus renders vengeance for their hate.
 Who vexed at his Prophets cruel fate,
 70 Fixt all th' Edonian Dames that then were by
 With spreading roots ; and who more eagerly
 Pursu'd his death, their toes he deeper drew
 Within the solid earth, which down-ward grew.
 And even as fowl, whose feet intangled are
 75 Within the subtil fowlers secret snare,
 Become by fearfull fluttering faster bound,
 So, each of these, now cleaving to the ground,
 With terroure struggle to escape in vain ;
 For faster-binding roots their flight restrain.
 80 One, looking for her nails, her toes, her feet :
 Behold, her twining legs in timber meet :
 In passion, thinking to have struck her thigh,
 She strikes her breasts, hard Oak her breasts supplies ;
 Her shoulders such : her arms appear to grow
 85 In natural branches ; and indeed did so.
 Nor thus content, their fields Lyæus leaves :
 Whom Timolus, with a better troop receives,
 And swift Pætolus, who did then infold
 No precious sands nor grains of envi'd gold.
 90 Satyres and Bacchinals to him repair,
 His usual train : Silenus then not there,
 Him erst the Phrygian Rurals reeling found
 With age and wine ; and now, with Ivy crown'd,

To Midas bring, whom Orpheus Orgies taught,
And sage Eumolpus from Cecropia brought.

- 95 When known to be his partner in those Rites;
Full twice five daies, with their succeeding nights,
He entertain'd him with a sumptuous feast.

Eleven times Lucifer the stars suppress:

- When, with mild mirth, he treads the Lydian fields;
100 And to the God his foster-father yields.

He in his safe return doth much rejoice:

Whose bounty Midas frustrates by his choice.

For, will'd to with; Let all, said he, I touch
Convert to gold. His ignorance was such.

- 105 Forthwith to him his wish Lyæus gives:

And at his folly not a little grieves.

But in his curse the Berecynthian joys:

And home-ward bound, the truth by touching tries.

Scarce trusting his own sense, a tree bereaves

- 110 Of slender boughs; they shone with golden leaves.

Takes up a stone; that stone pale gold became:

Takes up a clod; the clod presents the same:

Crops stalks of corn; these yield a sheaf of gold:

An Apple pulls; therein you might behold

- 115 Th' Hesperian purchase: toucht by him alone

The marble pillars with rich metal shone.

And when he wash't; that water, showr'd in rain,

Might simple Danae have deceiv'd again.

His breast scarce holds his hopes; whose fancy wrought

- 120 On golden wonders: when his servants brought

Meat to the table. Sooner had not he

Toucht Ceres bounty, but that prov'd to be

A shining mass: the carved viands straight

- 125 Between his greedy teeth convert to plare.

About to drink mixt wine; you might behold

His thirsty jaws o're-flow with liquid gold.

Struck with so strange a plague: (both rich and poor)

He hates, and shuns the wealth he wish't before.

- 130 His plenty feeds him not; he burns with thirst:

By loathed gold deservedly accurst.

Then lifting up his shining arms, thus pray'd:

Father Lenæus, O, afford thy aid!

I have offended; pity thou, and me

From this so glorious a mischief free:

- 135 The gentle power the penitent restor'd:

And for his faith, affords what he implor'd.

Left ill-wisht gold about him still abide ;
Go, said he, to those Crystal streams that glide
By potent Sardis : keep the banks that lead
Along th'encountring Current to his head.

There, where the gushing fountain foams, dive in :
And, with thy body, wash away thy sin.
The King obeys : who in the fountain leaves
That golden virtue, which the Spring receives.

And still those ancient feeds these waters hold :
Who gild their shoars with glittering grains of gold.
He, hating wealth, in woods and fields bestows
His time with Pan ; whom mountain Caves inclose.
Yet his cross wit remains : his shallow brain,
And sottish senses punish him again.

High Tmolus with a steep ascent displays
His rigid brows, and under-seas surveys :
Whose stretcht-out bases here to Sardis join ;
There to Hypæpis, girt in small confine.
Where boasting Pan, while he his verse doth praise
To tender Nymphs, and pipes to rural lays,
Before Apollo's durst his songs prefer.
They meet (ill-matcht) great Tmolus arbiter.
Th' old Judge on his own Mountains sits ; and clears
His ears from trees : alone a garland wears
Of Oak, with Acorns dangling on his brow.
Who thus bespake the God of Shepherds, Now
Your Judge attends. He blows his wax-bound reeds,
And Midas fancy with rude numbers feeds.

Then sacred Tmolus to divine Apollo,
Converts his looks : his words his motion follow.
He, his long yellow hair with Laurel bound,
Clad in a Tyrian robe that swept the ground,
A Viol holds, with sparkling gems inchas'd,
And Indian teeth ; the bow his right hand grac'd.
A perfect Artift shew'd. Then sweetly play'd,
When Tmolus, ravisht with his musick, said,
Pan to the Viol yield thy ruder reed.
All like of what the Mountain had decreed,
But Midas onely ; whose exclaims traduce
The Censure. Phæbus for this gross abuse
Transforms his ears, his folly to declare :
Stretcht out in length, and cover'd with gray hair :
Instable, and now apt to move. The rest
The former figure of a man possest.

Punisht

- Punisht in that offending part ; who bears
 180 Upon his skull a flow-pac'd Asses ears.
 He strives to cover such a foul defame :
 And with a red Tiara hides his shame.
 But this his servant saw that cut his hair :
 Who big with secrets, neither durst declare
 185 His Sovereigns seen deformity, nor yet
 Could hold his peace. Who digs a shallow pit;
 And therein softly whispers his disgrace :
 190 Then turning in the earth forsook the place.
 A tuft of whispering Reeds from thence there grows ;
 Which coming to maturity, disclose
 The husbandman : and by soft South-winds blown
 195 Repeat his words, and his Lords ears make known,
 Reveng'd Apollo, leaving Tmolus, flies
 Through liquid air ; and on the Land which lies
 On that side Helles straightned surges stands :
 Where far-obey'd Laomedon commands.
 Between Rhæteum and Sygeum stood
 An ancient Altar, high above the flood,
 Vow'd to the Panomphean Thunderer :
 200 From whence he saw the King begin to rear
 New Troy's scarce-founded walls ; with what ado,
 And with how great a charge they slowly grew.
 Who, with the father of the swelling Main,
 Indues a Mortal shape : both entertain
 205 Themselves for unregarded gold to build
 The Phrygian Tyrants walls. That work fulfill'd ;
 The king their promised reward denies :
 And fallshood by forswearing multiplies.
 Revengefull Neptune his wild waves unbound ;
 210 Which all the shoars of greedy Ilium drown'd,
 And make the Land a Lake : the Country Swain
 His labour lost beneath that liquid Plain.
 Besides, the daughter of the King demands :
 Who chained to a Rock, exposed stands
 To feed a Monster of the Sea ; set free
 By strenuous Hercules. Yet could not He 215 The horses of Laomedon enjoy ;
 His valours hire : who sacks twice perjur'd Troy ;
 And gives his fellow-Souldier Telamon
Hesione : for Peless now had won
 A Deity ; nor in his Grandfather
 Took greater pride, then in his Sire by her.

For Jupiter had nephews more then one:
 But he a Goddess had espous'd alone.
 For aged Proteus had fore-told the truth
 To wave-wet Thetis: thou shalt bear a Youth,
 Greater then him, from whom he took his birth,
 In arms and fame. Lest any thing on earth
 Should be more great then Jove, Jove shuns the bed
 Of Sea-thron'd Thetis, though her beauty led
 His strong desires: who bids Aeacides
 Succeed his love, and wed the Queen of Seas.
 A Bay within Aemonia lies, that bends
 Much like an arch, and far-stretcht arms extends:
 Which were, if deep, an harbour lockt by land;
 Where shallow Seas o're-spread the yellow sand.
 The solid shoar (whereon no Sea-weed grows)
 Nor clogs the way, nor print of footing shows.
 Hard by, a Myrtle grove affords a shade:
 In this, a Cave; rather, though doubtfull, made
 By Art then Nature: hither Thetis swims
 On Dolphins back, here laid her naked limbs.
 In this the sleeping Goddess Peleus caught:
 Who, when she could not by his words be wrought,
 Attempts to force, and claspt her in his arms.
 And, had she not assum'd her usual charms
 In varying shapes, he had his will obtain'd;
 Now turns t' a fowl, yet he her flight restrain'd:
 Now seems a massie tree adorn'd with leaves;
 Close to the bole th' enamour'd Peleus cleaves.
 A spotted Tygress she presents at last:
 When he, with terrour struck, his arms unclaspt!
 Who pouring wine on Seas, those Gods implores;
 And with perfumes and sacrifice adores:
 Till the Carpathian Prophet rais'd his head,
 And said; Aeacides, enjoy her bed.
 Do thou but bind her in her next surprize,
 When in her cold moist cave she sleeping lies:
 And though she take a thousand shapes, let none
 Dismay; but hold, till she resume her own.
 This Proteus said, and div'd to the Profound:
 His latter word in his own waters drown'd.
 Now hasty Titan to Hesperian Seas
 Descends; when beauteous Thetis, bent to ease,
 Forsook the shoar, and to her Cave repair'd.
 No sooner she by Peleus was insnar'd;

- But forthwith varies forms : until she found
 Her virgin-limbs within his fetters bound.
 Then, spreading forth her arms, she sighing said,
 Thou hast subdu'd by some immortal aid :
- 265 Appears her self ; nor his embrace repell'd ;
 Whose pregnant womb with great Achilles swell'd.
 Happy was Pelem in his son and wife :
 And had not Phocus murder soil'd his life,
 All fortunate. With brothers blood defil'd,
- 270 Thee Thracis harbours, from thy home exil'd.
 Where courteous Ceyx, free from rigour, reign'd ;
 The son of Lucifer ; whose looks retain'd
 His fathers lustre : then disconsolate,
 Nor like himself for his lost brothers fate.
- 275 Hither, with travel tir'd, and clog'd with cares,
 The banisht with a slender train repairs :
 His flocks and herds, with men for their defence,
 Left in a shady vale not far from thence.
 Conducted to his royal presence, He
- 280 With Olive brancht, down bending to his knee,
 His name and birth declares : the murder masks
 With forged cause of flight : a dwelling asks
 In field, or city. Ceyx thus replies ;
 Our hospitable bounty open lies
 To men of vulgar rank : what owes it then
- 285 To your high spirit, so renown'd by men
 Of monumental praise ? whose blood extracts
 His source from Jove, improved by your acts ?
 To sue, is times abuse : your worth assures
 Your full desires ; of all, the choice is yours :
- 290 I wish it better. And then wept. The cause
Jove's Nephew asks : when, after a short pause ;
 Perhaps you think this Bird which lives by rape,
 To all a terrour, ever had that shape.
 He was a man ; as constant in his mind
- 295 As fierce in war, to great attempts inclin'd.
Dedalion nam'd ; sprung from that Star which wakes
 The dewy Morn ; the last that heaven forsakes.
 Affected peace I foster'd, with the rites
 Of nuptial joys : he joy'd in bloody fights.
 His valour Kingdoms with their Kings subdu'd ;
- 300 By whom the Thibian Doves are now pursu'd.
 His daughter Chione, whose beauty drew
 A thousand sutors, ripe for marriage grew.

By fortune Phæbus and the son of Mai,
 From Delphos, and Cyllene, came this way :
 Here meeting, look, and like. The God of Light
 Defers his joy-imbracing hopes till night.
Hermes ill-brooks delay : who on her laid
 His drowzy rod, and forg'd the sleepy Maid.
 Night spans the skies with stars. An old-wives shape
Apollo took, and seconds Hermes rape.
 Now when the fulness of her time drew nigh,
Autolichus was born to Mercury.
 Nor from the Sire the Son degenerates,
 Conning in theft, and wily in all sleights :
 Who could with subtilty deceive the sight ;
 Converting white to black, and black to white.
 To Phæbus (for she bears two sons) belongs
Philammon, famous for his harp, and songs.
 What is't t' have had two sons ? two Gods t' inflame
 A valiant father ? Jupiter the same ?
 Is glory fatal ? sure 'twas so to her :
 Who to Diana's durst her face confer,
 And blame her beauty. With a cruel look,
 She said ; Our deeds shall right us. Forthwith to
 Her bow, and bent it ; which she strongly drew ;
 And through her guilty tongue the arrow flew.
 It bleeds ; of speech and sound at once bereft ;
 And life, with bloud, her falling body left.
 What grief (O piety !) oppress my heart !
 What said I not, t' assuage my brothers smart !
 Who hears me so, as rocks the roaring waves
 That beat their brows ; and for his Daughter raves.
 But when he saw her burn, four times assail'd
 To sack the flamy Pile : as often fail'd.
 Then turns his heels to flight (much like a Bull
 By Hornets stung) whom scratching brambles pall ;
 Yet seem'd to run far faster then a man,
 As if his feet had wings ; and all out-ran.
 Who swift in chase of wished death, ascends
Parnassus top. As he his body bends
 To jump from down-right cliffs, compassionate
Apollo, with light wings, prevents his fate :
 With beak and talions arm'd ; with strength repeat
 Above his size : his courage still as great.
 This Falcon, friend to none, all fowl pursu'd :
 And grieving, is the cause of common ruth.

- As Ceyx thus his brothers change relates :
Phocæan Anetor rusheth through the gates ;
 (Who kept the Herd) and cri'd. (half out of breath)
 350 Pelem, I bring thee news of loss and death.
 Report, said Pelem, we are bent to bear
 The worst of fortunes. While the King with fear
 Hangs on his tongue. He panting, still afraid :
 To winding shoars we drave the weary Herd.
 When Phabm from the height of all the skie,
 355 The East and West beheld with equal eye.
 A part on yellow sands their limbs display,
 And from their rest the wavy fields survey:
 While other slowly wander here and there :
 Some swim in Seas, and lofty fore-heads rear.
 360 A Fane, undeckt with gold, or Pærean stone,
 Of blocks adjoins ; within a grove o're-grown.
 This the Nereides and Nereus hold :
 By Sea-men, who there dri'd their nets, so told.
 Near it, a Marish, thick with Sallow, stood ;
 365 Made plashy by the interchanging flood.
 A Wolf, a monstrous beast ; with hideous noise
 That frights the confines from those thickets flies.
 His lightning jaws with bloud and foam besmear'd :
 In whose red eyes two darting flames appear'd.
 370 Though fell with rage and famine ; yet his rage
 More greedy far : nor hunger seeks t' assuage
 With bloud of Beeves, and so surcrease ; but all
 He meets with, wounds ; insulting in their fall.
 Nor few of us, while we his force withstood,
 375 Fell by his cruel phangs. The shoar with bloud,
 With bloud the Sea-brim blusht, and bellowing Lakes.
 Delay is loss ; who doubts ; himself forsakes.
 Arm, arm, while something yet is left to lose :
 And joining force, this mortal plague oppose.
 380 The Herdsman ends. Nor did this loss incense
Æacides ; remembering his offence :
 Born, as the justice of sad Esamathe,
 To celebrate her Phocæan Obsequie.
 The King commands his men to arm : provides
 To go in person. Busie rumour guides
 385 This to Alcyone : ther passion bare
 Her swiftly thither ; running with her hair
 Half uncompos'd ; and, that disordering, clung
 About her neck : then weeps ; and with a tongue

- That scarce could speak, intreats, that they alone
Might go; nor bazard both their lives in one.
- 390 To whom Æacides : Fair Queen forbear
(Too much your bounty flows) your vertuous fear.
No force avails in such extreems as these :
'Tis pray'r that must the Sea-thron'd Power appease.
A lofty Tower within a fortress stood ;
A friend to wandering ships that plow the flood ;
- 395 They this ascend ; and sighing, see the shoar
With cattel strew'd ; the Spoiler drencht in gore.
Here Pelem fixt on Seas, with knees that bend,
Blue Psamathe implores, at length to end.
400 The justice of her wrath. She from his speech
Diverts her ears : till Thetis did beseech,
And got her husband's pardon : nor yet could
The salvage Wolf from thirst of blood withhold ;
Till she the beast, as he an Heifer slew,
- 405 Transform'd to Marble ; differing but in hue :
All else intire. The colour of the stone shews him no Wolf : now terrible to none.
Yet fate would not permit Æacides
To harbour here ; nor found in exile ease ;
Till at Magnesia, in an happy time
- 410 Acastus purg'd him from his bloody crime.
Mean-while perplext with former prodigies,
Both of his niece and brother ; to advise
With sacred Oracles, the joys of men,
Ceyx prepares for Claros. Phorbas then,
With his Phlegian host, alike prophane,
- 415 The passage stopt to Delphian Phæbus Fane.
Yet first to thee his secret purpose told,
Faith-crown'd Alcyone. An inward cold
Shot through her bones : her changing face appears
As pale as box, bedewed with her tears.
- 420 Thrice strove to speak, thrice weeps through dear con-
Sobs interrupting her divine complaint. (straint ;
What fault of mine, my Life, hath chang'd thy mind :
Where is that love that late so clearly shin'd ?
Canst thou thy self enjoy, from me remov'd ?
- 425 Do long waies please ? is now my absence lov'd ?
Yet didst thou go by land, I should alone
Grieve without fear : now both combine in one.
Seas fright me with their tragical aspect :
Of late I saw them on the shoar eject

- There scattered wracks : and often have I read
 430 Sad names on sepulchres that want their dead.
 Nor let false hopes thy confidency please ;
 In that my father, great Hippotades,
 The struggling winds in rocky caverns keeps,
 And at his pleasure calms the raging Deeps.
- 435 They, once broke loose, submit to no command ;
 But rage through all the Sea, on all the Land ;
 Perplex the clouds, with stern encounters roar,
 And strike forth flames. I fear, by knowledge, more
 These knew I, and oft saw their rude comport ;
 While yet a Girl, within my fathers Court :
- 440 But if my prayer no favour can procure ;
 And that, alas, thy going be too sure ;
 Take me along : let both one fortune bear ;
 Then shall I onely what I suffer fear.
 Together sail we on the toiling Main :
 And equally whatever hap sustain.
- 445 Thus spake Alcyone : whose sorrows melt
 Her star-like Spouse ; nor he less passion felt.
 Yet neither would his first intent forsake,
 Nor her a Partner in his danger make.
 Much said he to assuage her troubled brest :
- 450 As much in vain. This adds unto the rest,
 (Which answer onely could her passion tame)
 All stay is irksom ; by my father's Flame,
 I swear, if fate permit, return I will
 E're twice the Moon her shining Crescents fill.
- 455 Reviv'd with promise of so short a stay :
 He bids them launch the ship without delay,
 And fit her tacklings. This renews her fears ;
 Presaging ill success : abortive tears
 Flow from their Springs ; then kist ; a sad farewell,
- 460 Long first, at length she takes ; and swooning, fell.
 The Sea-men call aboard : in double ranks
 Reduce their oars, up-rising from their Banks
 With equal strokes. She rears her humid eyes,
 And first her husband on the poop espies
- 465 Shaking his hand : that, answers. Now from shoar
 The vessel drives, and thence her object bore.
 Her following eyes the flying ship pursue :
- 470 That lost, the sails her eager gazes drew.
 When all had left her, to her chamber goes ;
 And on the empty bed her body throws :

- The bed and place, with tears to mind recal
That absent part, which gave esteem to all.
Now far from Port ; the winds began to blow
475 On quivering shrouds ; their Oars the Sailer's slow :
Then hoist their Yards a trip, and all their sails
At once let fall to catch th' approaching gales.
The ship scarce half her course, or sure no more,
480 By this had run ; far off from either shoar ;
When, deep in night ; fierce Eurus stiffly blew,
And high-wrought Seas with chafing foamy grew.
Strike, strike the Top-sail, let the Main-shear fly,
And furl your Sails, the Master cri'd ; his cry
485 The blustering winds and roaring Seas suppress :
Yet of their own accord in this distress
They ply their tasks : some felling yards bestride
And take-in Sails ; some stop on either side
The yawning leaks ; some Seas on Seas eject.
490 While thus Disorder toils to small effect,
The bitter storm augments ; the wild winds wage
War from all parts, and join with Neptune's rage.
The Master, lost in terrour, neither knew
The state of things, what to command, or do ;
495 Confessing ignorance ; so huge a mass
Of ills oppress ! which slighted Art surpass.
Loud cries of men resound ; with rattling shrouds,
Flouds justling flouds, and thunder-crashing clouds.
Now tossing Seas appear to touch the sky,
And wrap their curls in clouds, froth with their spay :
500 The sand now from the bottom lave, and take
Their swarther die ; now black, as Stygian lake ;
Sometimes deprest, with hissing foam all white,
The Trachin ship such horrid changes fright.
Which now, as from a mountain rock with flaws,
505 Views under-vales, and Acheron's dark jaws :
Now head-long with the tumbling billows fell ;
And Heaven surveys from that low depth of Hell.
Her wave-beat sides an hideous noise repeat :
As when a battering Ram beats down a Fort.
510 As chased Lions, whom no terrors fright,
Rush on extended steel with horrid might :
So Seas invade with storm-imbated power
The ships defence ; and o're her hatches tower.
Her yielding planks now spring : stern Neptune raves,
515 Charging her breaches with his deadly waves,

METAMORPHOSIS,

- The prodigal clouds in showers their substance spend
Ambitious Seas to gloomy heaven ascend :
All heaven descending to the lofty Main :
520 At least so seem. Sails suck the falling rain ;
Show'rs join with floods. No friendly star now shone :
Blind Night in darkness, tempests, and her own
Dread terrors lost : these horrid lightning turns
To light more fear'd ; the Sea with lightning burns.
525 Now vaulting floods her upper deck oppress.
And as a Souldier, braver then the rest,
' Tempting to scale the walls with loss assails,
At length enjoys his hopes ; and spur'd with praise,
Among a thousand onely stands the shock :
530 So, while assailing waves the vessel rock,
The tenth bold billow rushest in, nor sinks
Until the ship beneath his fury shrinks.
Those Seas, without, the labouring bark assail :
535 These sack her hold. All tremble and look pale ;
As at a siege, when foes enforce a wall ;
While some within to execution fall.
Art fails, hearts sink : on every rising wave
Death sits in triumph : and presents a grave.
540 He weeps ; he stands amaz'd ; he calls them blest,
Whom funerals grace : he vows to heaven address,
Looking at what he sees not, and besought
The Gods in vain : he on his parents thought,
His children, house, and what he left behind.
545 Aleyone posselt all Ceyx mind ;
Her onely names ; now in her absence joy'd,
Whose presence was in heaven : and had employ'd
His eyes last duty, to descry the way
To her abode, but knew nor where it lay.
550 The giddy Seas so whirl, such pitchy clouds
Obscure the sky, Night two-fold darkness shrouds.
Loud-howling whirlwinds over-board now bore
The shivered Mast ; and now the Rudder tore.
A billow, with these spoils-encourag'd, raves ;
Who Victor-like contemns the under-waves :
Nor lighter falls, then if some God had torn 555 Findus and Athos from their roots, up-born
As high as heaven, and tumbled on the Main.
Nor could the ship such force and weight sustain :
But to the bottom sinks. Most of her men
The Seas infold ; who never seen again,

Accomplished their fates: while others swim
On scattered planks, a plank upholding him
Who late a Scepter held. His father-in-law,
And father, now invokes: but could not draw
(Alas!) from either succour. Still his Wife
Runs in his thoughts, in that short span of life
He wisht the waves would cast him on the sands
Of Trachis, to be buried by her hands.

Who swimming, sighs Alcyone her name
His last of speech; in Seas conceives the same.
Behold, an arch of waters, black as hell,
Asunder breaks: the breaking surges quell
Their sinking Burthen. Lucifer that night
Became obscure; nor could you see his light,
And since he might not render up his place,
With pitchy clouds immur'd his darkned face.

Mean-while Alcyone (his fate unknown)
Computes the tedious nights; by day wrought on
A garment for her Lord; another makes
To wear her self: whose flattering hope mistakes
In his return. Who holy fumes presents
To all the Gods; but most of all frequents
The Fane of Juno: at her altars pray'd
For him that was not. Grant success! (she said)
A quick return! Give he our right to none!
Of all her prayers the last succeeds alone.
The melting Goddess could no longer brook
Her death-croft prayers; but from her altar shook
Her painted hand; and thus to Iris spake:
Hast faithfull Messenger, thy journey take
To drowzy Sleep's dim palace: bid him send
A dream, that may present the wofull end
Of Ceyx to Alcyone. This said;
She, in a thousand-coloured robe array'd,
Her ample Bow from heaven to earth extends:
And in a cloud to his abode descends.

Near the Cimmerians lurks a Cave, in steep
And hollow hills; the Mansion of dull Sleep:
Not seen by Phæbus when he mounts the skies,
At height, nor stooping: gloomy mists arise
From humid earth, which still a twilight make:
No crested fowls thrill crowings here awake
The chearfull Morn: no barking Sentinel
Here guards; nor geese, who wakefull dogs excel.

Beasts tame, nor salvage; no wind-shaken boughs,
Nor strife of jarring tongues, with noises rouse
Secured Ease. Yet from the Rock a Spring,
With streams of Lethe softly murmuring,

605 Purls on the Pebbles, and invites Repose.

Before the Entry pregnant Poppy grows,
With numerous Simples; from whose juicy birth
Night gathers sleep, and sheds it on the Earth.
No doors here on their creaking hinges jar'd:

610 Throughout this Court there was no door, nor guard.

Amid the Heben Cave a downy bed
High-mounted stands, with sable coverings spread,
Here lay the lazy God, dissolv'd in rest.

Fantastick dreams, who various forms express,

615 About him lay: then Autumn's ears far more;

Or leaves of trees, or sands on Neptune's shoar.

The Virgin entering, parts the obvious Dreams:

And fills the sacred Concave with the beams
Of her bright robe. The God with strife disjoins

620 His sieled lids; again his head declines,

And knocks his chin against his breast. Anon

Sleep casts off sleep; and softly leaning on

His elbow, asketh (for he knew her) why

She thither came? when Iris made reply;

Thou Rest of things, most meek of all the Gods;

625 O Sleep, the Peace of minds, from whose abodes

Care ever flies; restoring the decay

Of toil-tir'd limbs to labour-burd'ning Day:

Send thou a Dream, resembling truth, in post

T^h Herculean Trachis; that like Ceyx Ghost,

May to Alcyon his wrack unfold,

630 Saturnia this command. Her message told,

Iris withdrew; who could the power of Sleep

Resist no longer. When she found it creep

Upon her yielding senses, thence she flies:

And by her painted Bow remounts the skies,

The Sire among a thousand sons, excites

635 Shape-feigning Morpheus: of whose brother Sprights

None (bid t^h assume) with subtler cunning can

Usurp the gesture, visage, voice of man,

His habit, and known phrase. He onely takes

An humane form: Another shews a Snakes,

640 A Birds, a Beasts. This Icelos they call,

Whom heaven imbow'r; though Phobetor by all

Of mortal birth. Next Plutus ; but he,
Of different faculty induces a tree.

Earth, water, stone, the several shapes of things
That life enjoy not. These appear to Kings,

645 And Princes in deep night : the rest among
The vulgar stray. Of all the airy throng
Their aged father onely Morpheus chose
To act Thanatua's charge. His eyes then close
Their drowzy lids, and hanging down his head,
650 Opprest with slumber, shrinks into his bed.

His noiseless wings by night fly Morpheus strains ;
And with the swiftness of a thought, attains
Th' Æonian towers ; then laid them by, and took
The form of Ceyx. With a pallid look

655 He naked stood, like one depriv'd of life,
Before the bed of his unhappy-Wife :
His beard all wet, the hair upon his head
With water dropt ; who leaning on her bed,
Thus spake ; while tears from seeming passion flow.

Dost thou, O wretched Wife, thy Ceyx know ?

660 Or am I chang'd in death ? look on the Lost ;
And for thy husband thou shalt see his Ghost.
Thy pious prayers no favour could obtain :
Lo, I am drown'd, no longer hope in vain.
Cloud-crueling South-winds in Ægeum caught
665 Our ravisht ship, and wrackt her with her fraught.
My voice the floods opprest, while on thy name
I vainly call'd. This, neither wandring Fame,
Nor doubtfull authour tells : this I relate,
I, that there perisht by untimely fate.

670 Arise, weep, put on black : nor undeplor'd
For pity send me to the Stygian Ford.

To this he adds a voice, such as she knew
Express her Lord's ; with tears appearing true,
And gesture of his hand. She sigh'd and wept ;

675 Stretcht out her arms t' imbrace him as she slept,
But clasp't the empty air. Then cri'd, O stay !

Ah, whither wilt thou ! Let us go one way.

Wak'd with his voice, and husband's ghost ; with fear
She looks about for that which was not there.

680 For now the maids, rais'd with her shrieks, had brought
A taper in. Not finding what she sought,
She strikes her cheeks, her nightly linnen tare,
Invades her breast ; nor stays t' unbind her hair,

But

- But tugs it off. Her nurse the cause demands
Of such a violence. She wrings her hands,
And in the passion of her grief repli'd :
- 685 There's no Alcyon ; none, none ! she di'd
Together with her Ceyx. Silent be
All sounds of comfort. These, these eyes did see
My shipwrack'd Lord : I knew him ; and my hands
Thrust forth t' have held him, but no mortal bands
Could force his stay. A Ghost : yet manifest :
- 690 My husband's Ghost : which, O but ill exprest
His form and beauty, late divinely rare !
Now pale, and naked, with yet-dropping hair.
Here stood the miserable ; in this place :
Here, here (and sought his airy steps to trace.)
- 695 O this my sad mis-giving soul divin'd ;
When thou forsook'st me to pursue the wind.
But since imbarqu'd for death, would I with thee
Had put to Sea : an happy fate for me !
Then both together all the time assign'd
- 700 For life had liv'd ; nor in our death disjoin'd.
Now here, I perisht there : on that Profound
Poor I was wrack'd : yet thou without me 'drown'd.
O I, then fouds more cruel ; should I strive
To lengthen life, and such a grief survive !
- 705 Nor will I, nor forsake thee, nor defer.
Though one Urn hold not both, one sepulcher
Shall join our titles : though thy bones from mine
The Seas dis sever, yet our names shall join.
Grief chok'd the rest. Sobs every accent part :
- 710 And sighs ascend from her astonish'd heart.
Day springs : She to the shoar address her hast,
Even to that place from whence she saw him last.
And while she sadly utters, Here he stai'd ;
Here parting kiss me ; from thence anchour weigh'd ;
- 715 While she such sighs recalls ; her steady eyes
Fixt on a Sea, far off she something spies ;
But knows not what : yet like a corse. First she Doth doubt : driven nearer (though not near) might see
A bo'y plainly. Though unknown, yet much
- 720 The Omen mov'd her, since his fate was such.
Poor wretch, who e're thou art ; and such (she said)
Thy Wife (if wed) by thee a widow made !
By fouds driven nearer ; the more near, the more
Her spirits faint : now nigh th' adjoining shoar.

730 She sees now what she knows ; her husband's Corse
 Woe's me ! 'tis He, she cries ! at once by force
 Her face, hair, habit : trembling hands extends
 To soul-less Ceyx, and then said : Here ends
 My last of hopes : thus, O then life more dear ;
 O Husband, thus return'st thou ! Art a Peer
 735 Had stretcht into the Surges ; which with-stood,
 Which brake the first incurſion of the flood :
 Thither forthwith (O wonderfull !) she springs ;
 Beating the paſſive air with new-grown wings,
 Who, now a bird, the waters ſummit rakes :
 About ſhe flies, and full of ſorrow, makes
 740 A mournfull noiſe ; lamenting her divorce :
 Anon ſhe toucht his dumb and bloudleſs Corſe ;
 With ſtretching wings imbrac't her periſht bliſs ;
 And gave his colder lips a beatleſs kiſs.
 745 Whether he felt it, or the floods his look
 Up-raiſ'd, the vulgar doubt : yet ſure he took
 Senſe from her touch. The Gods commiſerate :
 And change them both, obnoxious to like fate.
 As late, they love : their nuptial faiths they ſhew,
 750 Now little birds ; engender, parents grew.
 Seven Winter daies with peacefull calms poſſeſt,
 Alcyon ſits upon her floating neſt.
 Then ſafely ſail ; then Æolis incaves
 For this, the winds, and ſmooths the ſtooping waves.
 755 Some old man ſeeing theſe their pinions move
 O're broad-ſpread Seas, extolls their endleſs love.
 By theirs, a neighbour, or himſelf, revives
 Another's fate. Yon' ſable fowl that dives ;
 (And therewith ſhews the wide-mouth'd Cormorant)
 760 Of royal parentage may alſo vant.
 Whoſe anceſtors from Tro their branches ſpred ;
Ilus, Aſſaracus, Joves Ganymed,
Laomedon, and Priamus the laſt
 That reign'd in Troy : to Hector (who ſurpaſt
 In fortitude) a brother. If by power
 765 Of Fate unchanged in his youthſtirt flower,
 He might perhaps as great a name have won,
 Though Hector were great Dymas daughter's ſon.
 For Alixothoe, a countrey Maid,
 Bare Æſacus by ſtealth in Idas ſhade.
 770 He, hating Cities, and the diſcontents
 Of glittering Courts ; the lonely Woods frequents.

And

- And unambitious fields; but made repair
To Ilium rarely: yet, he Hebonair,
Nor unexpugnable to love. Who Isid
770 Eperia, oft desir'd; by Cebren's side
(Her fathers river) drying in the Sun.
Her flowing hair. Away the Nymph did run,
Swift as a frighred Hind the Wolf at hand;
Or-like a fearfull fowl thrust over-land
- 275 Beneath a Falcon. He pursues the chace:
Fear wings her feet, and love enforc't his pace.
Behold; a lurking Viper in this strife,
Seiz'd on her heel; suppressing flight with life.
Frantick, his trembling arms the dead include:
Who cri'd, Alas that ever I pursu'd!
I fear'd not this; nor was the victory
Worth such a loss. Ah me! two, one destroy.
- 780 They wound the Serpent. I th' occasion gave:
I, O more wicked; yet thy death shall have
My life for satisfaction. Therewith flung
His body from a cliff which over-hung
The undermining Seas. His falling limbs
- 785 Upheld by Tethys pity; as he swims
With feathers cloth'd, nor power of dying gives.
To be compell'd, to live the Lover grieves:
Disdaining that his soul, so well apaid
To leave her wretched seat, should thus be staid.
- 790 And mounting on new wings, again on Seas
His body throws: the fall his feathers ease.
With that, enrag'd, into the deep he dives:
And still to drown himself as vainly strives.
Love makes him lean. A long neck doth sustain
- 795 His sable head; long-jointed legs remain.
Nor ever the affected Seas forsakes;
And now a suted name from diving takes.

OVID'S METAMORPHOSIS.

THE TWELFTH BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

*A Snake-like Stone. Cynus a Swan;
Cænus the Maid, now Cænus and a Man.
Becomes a Fowl. Neleius varies shapes :
At last an Eagle, nor Alcides escapes.*

OLD Priam mourns for Æsacm, nor knew
That he surviv'd, and with light feathers flew.
While Hector and his brethren dues, with tears,
Pay to the tomb which his inscription bears.
But Paris, absent from that obsequy,
Straight with his Rape, brought ten years war to Troy.
5 A thousand ships, in one confederate,
Pursue his stealth, with all the Achaian State.
Nor vow'd revenge so long had been delaid,
If wrathfull seas had not their passage staid :
At fishy Aulis, in Bæotia,
10 Their wind-bound Navy in expectance lay.
Here (as of old) to Jove they sacrifice.
While from the antique altar flames arise,
A blew scal'd Dragon, in the Armies view,
Ascends a tree, which near the Altar grew.
A Nest there was upon an upper bough,
15 With twice four Birds : these, & their Dam (which now
Flutter'd about her young) the greedy Snake
At length devour'd : This all with wonder strake.

When

METAMORPHOSIS,

- When Chalcas cri'd (who could the truth divine)
 Rejoice, Pelassians, 'tis a happy sign!
- 20 Proud Troy shall fall; though with long toil and care,
 These thrice three birds, thrice three years war declare.
 She wound about a bough, gorg'd with her rape,
 Became a stone, that held a Serpent's shape:
 Still Nereus in Aonian surges raves,
- 25 Nor war transfers. Some think the God of waves
 Would Troy preserve, and save the walls he made.
Thestorides dissents, who knew and said,
 A virgins blood must Dian' reconcile.
 Now did the publick cause the private foil.
- 30 A King a father, Iphigenia stood
 Before the Altar to resign her blood.
 The Priest then wept, so pity did subdue
 The Goddess, who a cloud about her threw.
 And while they prosecute her Rites, and pray'd,
 Produc't a Hind to represent a Maid.
- 35 When fitter sacrifice had dull'd her rage,
 Her fury and the Seas, at once assuage.
 A forewind then their thousand Vessels bore;
 Who, suffering much, attain the Phrygian shore.
 Amid the world, between Air, Earth, and Seas,
- 40 A place there is, the confines to all these.
 Where all that's done, though far remov'd, appear,
 And every whisper penetrates the ear.
 The house of Fame, who in the highest tower
 Her lodging takes. To this capacious bower
 Innumerable waies conduct, no way
- 45 Barr'd up, the doors stand open night and day.
 All built of ringing brass, throughout resounds,
 Things heard reports, and every word rebounds.
 No rest within, no silence, yet the noise
 Not loud, but like the murmuring of a voice,
- 50 Such as from far-by rowling billows sent,
 Or as Jove's fainting thunder almost spent.
 Hither the idle Vulgar come and go,
 Millions of Rumours wander to and fro,
- 55 Lies mixt with truths, in words that vary still.
 Of these, with news unknowing ears some fill;
 Some carry tales, all in the telling grows,
 And every Author adds to what he knows.
 Here dwells rash Error, light Credulity,
- 60 Dejected Fear, and vainlygrounded Joy,

New rais'd Sedition, secret Whisperings
Of unknown Authours, and of doubtfull things,
All done in Heaven, Earth, Ocean, Fame surviews:
And through the ample world inquires of news.

She notice gave, how with a dreadful host

- 65 The Grecian Navy steered for their coast.
Nor unexpected came: the Trojans bend
Their powers t' encounter, and their shores defend.
First thou thy life, Protesilaus, lost
By Hector's fatal Lance; the battel cost
The Greeks much noble blood: so clearly shone
Their fortitudes: great Hector yet unknown.
70 Nor no small streams of blood their valours drew
From Phrygian wounds, who felt what Greece could do.
And now their mingled gores Sigæum stain:
Now Neptunes Cyenus had a thousand slain,
Now on the Foe the fierce Achilles flew;
And with his Lance whole squadrons overthrew:
75 Seeking for Cyenus, or for Hector, round
About the field; at length brave Cyenus found
(For Jove nine years great Hector's life sustains.)
Cheering his horses with the flaxen mains,
His thundring chariot drives against his foe,
And shakes his trembling Lance: about to throw;
80 O youth, he said, what e're thou art, rejoice:
Achilles honours thee with death. His voice
His spear pursues: the steel no wound imprest, (breast, 85 Though strongly thrown. When, bounding from his
He said, Thou Goddess-born. Fame bruits thee such,
Why wondrest thou? (Achilles wondred much)
This helm with horse-hair deckt, this shield I bear,
90 Defend not me: for fashion these I wear.
So Mars his person arms. Should I display
My naked breast, thy force could find no way.
The grace to be Nereis son is small.
This, who Nereis, who his Nymphs, who all
95 The Ocean guides: Then at Achilles threw
His Lance, that pierc'd his plated shield, and through
Nine Ox-hides rush: the tenth did it restrain.
The Heroe caught it, and retorts again
The singing steel; again it gave no wound.
100 The third assay no better entrance found,
Though Cyenus bar'd his bosom to the blow.
He rages like a Bull in Circian show;

294 METAMORPHOSIS,

- Whose dreadfull horns the scarlet, which provokes
His fury, tols with still deluded strokes.
- 105 Then searches if the head were off; that on :
What, is my hand, said he, so feeble grown ?
On one is all my vigour spent ? my power
Was more, when first I raz'd Lyrnessus tower :
- 110 When Tenedos, Eetian Theber, were fill'd
With blood of theirs, by my encounters spill'd.
The red Caycus slaughtered natives di'd :
Twice Telephus my javelin powerfull tri'd.
Behold these heaps of bodies ! these I slew :
Much could my hand have done ! as much can do.
- 115 This said, his former deeds almost suspects,
And at Menetes breast his aim directs.
(A Lycian of mean rank) the thrilling dart
Quite through his faithless curafs pierc'd his heart :
Whose dying body struck the groaning ground.
- 120 Snatching the weapon from the reeking wound ;
This hand, he said, this now victorious Launce
Shall urge thy fate : assist me equal chance !
With that, th' unerring dart at Cycnus flung,
Th' unevitaded on his shoulders rung ;
- 125 Which like a Rock the Launce repel'd again :
Yet where it hit, it left a purple stain ;
By vainly glad Æacides descri'd :
He woundless : this Menetes blood had di'd.
Then roaring, from his chariot leaps ; and made
- 130 A horrid on-set with his flaming blade :
Who breaches in his Helm and shield beheld ;
Yet he secure : his skin the steel repell'd.
Now all impatient, with the Hilt his Foe's
Hard front invades with thick redoubled blows :
Prest on as he gave back, pursues, insists ;
- 135 Nor lets the astonisht breathe. He faints ; blue mil
Swim over his dim eies : whose backward steps
A Stone withstood, on whom Achilles leaps
With all his strength, and Cycnus up-ward cast
On sounding earth : there held the Hero fast.
- 140 Then sets his shield and knees upon his breast ;
And, drawing hard his Helmet strings, oppress
His grasping jaws : the breathing path and way
Of life shuts up ! About t' unarm his prey,
The body mist. To a Fowl as white as snow
- 145 By Neptune chang'd ; whom by that name we know

This toil, this fight gave many daies of rest ;
 And either part from deeds of arms surcreast.
 While on their walls the watchfull Phrygians ward,
 And while the watchfull Greeks their trenches guard,
 50 A feast was kept : wherein Æacides,
 For Cycnus death with Heifers bloud did please
 Propitious Pallas. When the entrals laid
 On burning Altars, to the Gods conveigh'd
 An acceptable smell : a part addrest
 To sacred use ; the board receiv'd the rest.
 55 Down lay the Heroes, fed on roasted flesh,
 And generous wines their cares and thirst refresh
 Nor musick now, nor songs their ears delight ;
 But in discourse consume the thortned night.
 The subject, Valour : of the valour shown
 60 By their couragious foes, and of their own.
 Promiscuously of passed dangers tell,
 And former enterprizes. What so well
 Could great Achilles speak of ? or what were
 A fitter theam for great Achilles ear ?
 Then spake he of his Conquest, in the fall
 65 Of noble Cycnus : wondred at by all,
 That weapons had no power to penetrate
 His woundless body, which could steel rebate.
 This the Pelasgians, this Æacides
 Himself admires. When Nestor said to these:
 70 Cycnus is he, who in your age alone
 Contemned steel, and could be hurt by none.
 I saw Perrhabian Cæneus once indure
 A thousand strokes ; yet he from wounds secure.
Perrhabian Cæneus, excellent in deeds,
 On Oibrys dwelt : and what belief exceeds,
 75 A Woman born. This prodigy begets
 Their greater wonder. Every one entreats
Achilles thus : Divinely eloquent ;
 O thou the wisdom of our age ; consent
 To our desires ; for all desire the same :
 Of Cæneus tell ; how he a man became ;
 80 In what contention, or what battel known ;
 By whom, if so by any, overthrown.
 Then He : Though age impair my memory,
 And much beheld in youth my knowledge flie,
 I much remember : yet, of all that are
 Among so many acts of peace and war,

 Himself admires. When Nestor said to these:

 Then He : Though age impair my memory,
 And much beheld in youth my knowledge flie,
 I much remember : yet, of all that are
 Among so many acts of peace and war,

- 185 None deeper is imprinted in my brain.
 And if the length of time not spent in vain
 Can many accidents to knowledge give ;
 Two Ages finisht, in the third I live.
 Not all the Virgins that Thessalia bare,
 With Elateian Cenis could compare,
 190 For beauty. From the Cities bordering,
 And those, Æacides, which call thee King
 (For she her birth to your Æmonia ought)
 A world of Lovers her affection sought.
 And Peleus too perhaps had woo'd her bed ;
 But that already to thy mother wed,
 195 Or else assured. Cenis still forbore
 All nuptial ties. As on the secret shore
 She walkt alone, the Sea-god her dissent
 Enforc'd to Rape : for so the rumour went.
 Rapt with the joy of loves first tasted fruit ;
 All shall, said Neptune, to thy wishes sure ;
 200 Wish what thou wilt. So Fame the story told.
 My wrong, said Cenis, makes my wishes bold :
 That never like enforcement may befall ;
 Be I no woman ; and thou giv'st me all.
 Her latter words a deeper voice express,
 Much-like a mans : for now it prov'd no less.
 205 The Sea-god had assented to her will :
 And further adds, that steel should neither kill
 Nor wound his person. Young Atracides
 Departs ; rejoicing in such gifts as these :
 Who great in every manly vertue grows ;
 And haunts the fields through which Penæus flows.
 210 The son of bold Ixion now had wed
Hippodame : the salvage Centaures, bred
 Of clasped Clouds, his invitation grac't ;
 In shady bowers at sundry tables plac't.
 There were th' Æmonian Princes ; there was I :
 The Palace rung with our confused joy.
 215 They Hymen sing ; the Altars fume with flames :
 Forth cameth' admired Bride with troops of Dames.
 We call Perithous happy in his choice :
 But scarce maintain the Omen of that voice.
 For Eurytus, more heady then the rest,
 Foul rapine harbours in his salvage breast ;
 220 Incens'd by beauty, and the heat of wine :
 Lust and Ebriety in out-rage join.

Straight, turn'd up boards the feasts prophane: the fair
And tender spouse now haled by the hair.

Pierce Eurytus Hippodame; all took,

Their choice, or whom they could: sackt Cities look

35 With such a face. The women shriek: we rise:

When Theseus first; O Eurytus, unwise!

Dar'st thou offend Perithous as long

As Theseus lives? in one to suffer wrong.

30 The great-soul'd Heracles, not to boast in vain,

Breaks through the throng, and from his fierce disdain

The Rape repriz'd. He no reply affords;

Such facts could not be justifi'd by words:

But with his fists the brave redeemer prest;

Assails his face, and strikes his generous breast.

Not far off stood an antique Goblet, wrought

35 With high-raisd figures: this Aegides caught;

Hurl'd at the face of Eurytus: a flood

Of reeking wine, of brains, and clotted blood,

At once he vomits from his mouth and wound,

And falling backward, kicks the stained ground.

40 The Centaures, frantick for their brother's death,

Arm, arm, resound, with one exalted breath.

Wine courage gives: At first an uncouth flight

Of Flagons, Pots, and Boles, began to fight:

Late fit for banquets, now for blood and broils,

35 First Amycus, Ophion's issue, spoils

The sacred places of their gifts; who ramps

Tears down a brazen Cresset stuck with Lamps:

This swings aloft, as when a white-hair'd Bull

The Sacrificer strikes; which crusht the skull

40 Of Celadon the Lapithite, and left

His face unknown; confusion form bereft.

Out start his eyes; his batter'd nose betwixt

His shiver'd bones flat to his pallat fixt.

Pelleas Pelades, a tressel tore

That propt the board, and fell'd him to the floor.

35 He knocks his chin against his breast, and spu'd

Blood mixt with teeth. A vexed blow pursu'd

The first; and sent his second soul to hell.

Next Gryneus stood; his looks with vengeance swell:

Serves this, said he, for nothing? wherewith rais'd

60 Aloft a mighty altar: as it blaz'd,

Among the Lapithites his burthen threw;

Which Broteas, and the bold Orion flew.

Orion's

- Orion's* mother Mycale, with fear
 Could pale the Moon, and hale her from her sphere.
 265 Exadius cri'd: Nor shalt thou so depart,
 Had I a weapon. Of a voted Hart
 The Antlers from a Pine he pulls; they fix
 Their forks in Gryneus darkned eyes: one sticks
 Upon the horn, the other in thick gore
 270 Hung on his beard. A fire-brand Rhætus bore,
 Snatcht from the Altar; and Charaxus head
 Crackt through the skull, with yellow tresses spread.
 The rapid flame his blazing curls surround,
 275 Like corn on fire; bloud broiling in his wound
 Horribly hisses: as red Steel that gloes
 With fervent blasts, which pliant tongues dispose
 To quenching cool-troughs, sputters, strives, consumes,
 And hissing under heated water, fumes.
 280 The wounded from his singed tresses shakes
 The greedy flame; and on his shoulders takes
 A stone torn from the threshold, which alone
 Would load a Wain, at distant Rhætus thrown.
 This, falling short, Cometes life invades:
 And sent his friend to everlasting shades.
 285 When Rhætus, laughing, May you all abound
 In strength so tri'd; and aggravates his wound
 By blows redoubled, with his burning brand.
 Crush't bones now sink in brains. Then turns his hand
 290 On Coritus, Evagrus, Dryas flew:
 Who Coritus, a youth, too timely flew:
 What glory can the slaughter of a Boy
 Afford, Evagrus said? nor more could say,
 For Rhætus e're his jaws together came;
 295 Hid in his throat and brest the choking flame.
 Then whisks the brand about his brows: assails
 The valiant Dryas; but no more prevails:
 For through his shoulder, who hath triumpht long
 In daily slaughter, Dryas fixt his Prong.
 300 Who groaning, tugs it out with all his might:
 And soil'd with bloud, now saves himself by flight.
 So Lycidas Arneus, Medon (red
 With his own bloud) Prisenor, Caumus, fled:
 305 Wound-tardy Mermerus, late swift of pace;
Menelaus, Pholus, Abas, us'd to chace
 The Bore; and Astylos, who fates fore-knew:
 Who vainly bad his friends, that war eschue;

And said to frightened Nessus, Flie not so;
 Thou art reserv'd for great Alcides bow.
 But yet Eurynomus, nor Lycedas,
 Areus, nor Imbrius, unslaughter'd pass:
 All slain by Dryas hand. Thee Canens too,
 Though turn'd about to flie, a fore-wound flue:
 For looking back; the point between his sights,
 There, where the nose joins with the forehead, lights;
 Unwakened with the tumult of this fray,
 Dissolv'd in death-like sleep, Aphidus lay
 Upon a Bears rough hide on Ossa kil'd:
 Whose lazy hand a mixed goblet held.
 Phorbas far off the vainly hurtless spi'd:
 And to the thong his fingers sitting, cri'd,
 Thy wine henceforth with Stygian water brew:
 This said, at slumber-bound Aphidus threw
 His trembling dart: the steeled ash made way
 Through's naked neck, as he supinely lay.
 Death was unselt: his full throat voids a floud:
 The hide and goblet, drown'd and fil'd with bloud.
 I saw Petreus tearing from the ground
 A well-grown Oak: while he imbrac't it round
 With his strong arms, now, this, now that way hal'd,
 Perithous to the bole his bosom nail'd.
 Stout Lycus by Perithous valour fell:
 Perithous valour Chromis sunk to hell.
 These less the glory of his acts relate
 Then Aelops death and Dictys stranger fate.
 His eager Javelin Helops temples cleft:
 Which at the right ear rushed through the left.
 But Dictys from a broken mountain slides,
 As he Ixion's furious son avoids,
 And headlong fell: his weight asunder brake
 A mighty Ash, the stumps his entrails stake.
 In rusht revengefull Pherem with a stone
 Torn from a rock: his mighty elbow bone
 (About to hurl) in shivers Theseus crackt:
 Nor leisure had, or further care t' exact
 His useless life, then nimbly vaults upon
 Byanor's back, before bestir'd by none.
 His knees clap to his sides, his shaggy hair
 His left hand hales: his eyes, that grimly stare
 And threaten, crushes with his knotty Oak.
 Dart sam'd Lycospes, and Medimnus stroke

METAMORPHOSIS,

To humble earth : so Hippasus, whose beard
 Reacht to his breast ; and Riphaus, who appear'd
 More tall then trees, with Therens who caught
 Wild bears on Oibris heretofore, and brought
 Th' enraged purchase to his home alive.

- 355 Demoleon frets to see Aegides thrive
 With such success ; and from the center strives
 To tear a Pine ; which when he could not, rives
 The yielding bole, and darts it at his foe.
Theseus far off elpi'd the deadly throw ;
- 360 Who by Minerva's counsel (for so he Would have us think) with-drew : and yet the tree
 Not idle fell ; but Crantor's shoulder, breast,
 And throat divides ; which tortur'd life releas't.
 He was (Aeacides) thy father's Squire ;
 Given by subdu'd Amyntor to thy sire
 (Amyntor the well-train'd Dolopian's Guide)
- 365 In hostage for their peace, and faith affi'd.
 When Pelem saw that spectacle of ruth ;
 Receive, O Crantor, O beloved youth,
 This sacrifice, he said : and sent a dart,
 With all the vigour of his hand and heart,
 At proud Demoleon ; which the bones that join
 His ribs transfixt ; and quaver'd in the chine.
- 370 His hands from thence the headless Javelin pluck,
 And hardly that : the head behind it stuck.
 Anguish it self the heat of wrath improves :
 He rears afore, and paws him with his hooves.
- 375 Who with his shield and burganet defends
 The sounding strokes : yet still his sword extends,
 And 'twixt his shoulders at one thrust doth gore
 His double breasts. Yet had he slain before
Phlegræus, Hyles, with his Lances flight,
Hipbinous and Danis, in close fight,
- 380 Adds Dorylas to these, who wore a skull
 Of Wolf-skin tan'd, the sharp horns of a Bull,
 Instead of other weapon, fixt before,
 And di'd in crimson with Lopian gore.
 To whom, with courage fir'd I said in scorn,
 Behold how much our steel excels thy horn.
- 385 And threw my Lance : not to be shun'd, he now
 Claps his right hand upon his threatned brow,
 Which both together nail'd. They rore : and while
 Th' engaged with his bitter wound doth toil,

Thy father, who was nearest, nearest prest :
 And thrust his sword deep in, below his breast.
 He Bounds aloft, on th' earth his bowels trails ;
 390 The trilled kicks, the kickt in pieces hales ;
 Which winding, fetter both his legs and thighs :
 So falls ; and with a gutless belly dies.
 Nor thee thy beauty, Cyllarus, could save :
 If such a two-form'd figure beauty have.
 395 His chin began to bud with down of gold ;
 And golden curls his ivory back infold :
 His looks a pleasing vigour grac'd ; his breast,
 Hands, shoulders, neck, and all that man exprest,
 Surpassing arts admired images.
 Nor were his bestial parts a shame to these ;
 400 Add but a horses head and crest, he were
 For Castor's use ; his back so strong to bear,
 So largely chested ; blacker then the crow :
 His tail and feet-locke, white as falling snow.
 A number of that nation sought his love ;
 405 Whom none but fair Hylonome could move :
 None for attracting favour so excel,
 Of all the half-mares that on Othrys dwell.
 She, by sweet words, by loving, by confest
 Affection, onely Cyllarus posselt.
 With combs she smooths her hair ; her person trims
 With all that coul'd be gracefull to such limbs.
 410 Of roses, rosemary, and violets,
 And oft of Lilies curious dressings pleats.
 Twice daily washt her face in springs that fall
 From Pegasean Hills ; twice daily all
 Her body bathes in cleansing streams, and ware
 The skins of beasts, such as were choice and rare,
 Which flowing from her shoulder cross her breast,
 415 Vail her left side. Both equal love posselt :
 Together on the shady mountains stray,
 In woods and hollow caves together lay :
 Then to the palace of the Lapithae
 Together came ; and now together fight :
 A javelin from the left hand slung, thy breast,
 420 O Cyllarus, beneath thy neck imprest.
 Her heart though slightly hurt (the dart out-bal'd)
 Grew forthwith cold ; and all his body pal'd.
Hylonome his dying limbs receives ;
 Taments his wound, close to his lips she cleaves,

- 435 To stay his flying soul. But when she found
Lives fire extinct ; with words in clamour drown'd,
Even on that steel, which through his bosom past,
She threw her own : and him in death imbrac't.
Me thinks I see grim Phaocomenes yet :
- 439 Who with two Lions skins, together knit,
Protects his double form. A log he took,
Which scarce two teams could draw, this darted, strode
The crown of Phonolenides ; his brains
It through his battered skulls deep crannies strains ;
- 435 Which from his mouth, eyes, ears, and nostrils gush,
Like curds through wicker squeas'd ; or juices crush
Through draining colendars. As he the dead
Prepares t'unarm, my sword his bowels shred.
Your father saw his downfall. Chibonim too,
- 440 And stout Teleboas our sawchlon slew.
The first a forked branch, the other bore
A lance ; the lance this wound had given before ;
Whereof you see the ancient scar. Then I,
Then should I have been sent t' have ruin'd Troy,
- 445 Then might I have restrain'd, if not o'rethrown
Great Hector. But, he either then was none,
Or else a child. Now spent with age, I wain.
What speak I of two-shap'd Pyreus slain
By Periphas ? Thy dart without a head,
- 450 Brave Ampyem, four-hoov'd Oicles sped.
Macareus born by Peletbronian rocks,
Huge Erigdupas with a leaver knocks
Toechoing earth. His dart Cymelus sheath'd
Deep in Nessus groin, and life bereav'd.
- 455 Nor would you think Ampyeides alone
Could fate fore-tell ; a lance by Mopsus thrown
Odites slew : this, as the Centaure rail'd,
His tongue t' his chin, his chin t' his bosom nail'd.
Pive Caeneus slew ; Bromus, Antimachus,
- 460 Ax-arm'd Pyracmus, Helius, Stiphelm.
Although forgetfull by what wounds they fell ;
Their names, and number, I remember well,
Giant-like Latreus lightneth to these broils ;
Arm'd with Emathian Alesus spoils :
His years 'twixt youth and age ; nor age impairs.
The strength of youth though sprinkled with gray
- 465 A Macedonian spear, a sword, and shield,
Confirm his pride : o're-views the well-fought field.

Clashes his arms ; and trotting in a round,
Enforc'd the air with this disdainfull sound.

670 Shall I indure thee Cenſ ? ſtill to me
Thou art a woman, and ſhalt Cenſ be.
Thou haſt forgot thy births original,
And for what fact rewarded ; by what fall
Advanc't to this man-counterfeiting ſhape.
Think of thy birth ; think of thy eaſie rape.
Go, take a Spindle and a Diſtaſſ ; twine
675 The carded wool ; and arms to Men reſign.

While thus he ſcoffs ; and circularly ran ;
Cenſ his ſides gores with his lance, where Man
And Horſe unite. He, mad with anguiſh, flings
His ſpear at the Phyllian youth, which rings
680 On his unwounded face ; and back recoils,
As Pebbles dropt on Drums, or Hail on Tiles.
Then ruſhing on, with thruſts aſſays to wound
His hardned ſides, the ſword no entrance found.
Nor ſhalt thou ſcape ; the edge ſhall lance thy throat,

685 Although the point be dull. This ſaid, and ſmote
At once, the blow, as if on marble, ſounds,
And from his neck the broken blade rebounds.
When he his charmed limbs had open laid
Enough to wounds and wonder, Cenſ ſaid :
690 Now will we try, if thou our ſword canſt feel.
Then 'twixt his ſhoulders thruſt the fatal ſteel
Up to the hilts ; which to and fro he waves
Deep in his gurs, and wounds on wounds ingraves.

The frighted Centaurs with a horrid cry,
695 On him alone, with all their weapons, fly.
Their Darts rebated, fall, but draw no bloud :
For Cenſ ſtill invulnerable ſtood.

This more amaz'd. Ah, Monychus exclaims,
One foils us all, to all our endleſs thames !
700 He ſcarce a man ! nay he the man, and we
Are what he was : ſo poor our actions be.
What boots our mighty limbs ? our double force ?
The ſtrongeſt of all creatures, Man and Horſe,
In us by Nature join'd ? ſure we are not
A Goddeſs birth ; nor by Ixion got,

705 Who durſt the Queen of Deities imbrace :
This half-man conquers his degenerate race.
Stones, maſſe Logs, whole Mountains on him roul ;
And with a pile of Trees cruſh out his ſoul.

- Let woods oppress his jaws : o're-whelm with weight
 In stead of idle wounds. Thus he : and straight
 510 An Oak up-rooted by the furious blasts
 Of frantick winds, on valiant Ceneus casts.
 Th' example quickly Othrys dis-array'd
 Of all his trees ; and Pelion wanted shade.
 Prest with so huge a burthen, Ceneus sweats :
 515 And to th' o're-whelming Oaks his shoulders sets.
 But now the load above his stature climbs,
 And chokes the passage of his breath. Sometimes
 He faints ; then struggles to advance his crown
 Above the Pile, and throw the timber down :
 520 Sometimes the burthen with his motion quakes ;
 As when an Earth-quake high-brow'd Ida shakes.
 His end was doubtfull ; some there be, who tell
 How with that weight his body sunk to Hell ;
Mopsus dissents ; who saw a fowl arise
 525 From thence with yellow wings, and mount the skies :
 (The first I ever saw) which flying round
 About our tents, sent forth a mournfull sound.
 This he pursuing with his soul and sight,
 530 Cry'd, Hail thou glory of the Lapithae :
 O Ceneus, late a man at arms ; but now
 An un-matcht fowl ! his witness all allow.
 Grief whets our fury ; brooking ill, that one
 By such a multitude should be o're-thrown :
 And sorrow so long execures the sight,
 535 Till half were slain : half sav'd by speed, and night.
Tlepolemus could not his tongue debar :
 Since in the repetition of that war,
 Of Hercules he had no mention made.
 Old man, how can you so forget (he said)
 540 Alcides praise ? my father oft would tell,
 How by his hand the Cloud-born Centaurs fell.
 To this sad Nestor answer'd : Why should you
 Compell me to remember, and renew
 My sorrow lost in time ? or iterate
 Your father's guilt ; together with my hate ?
 545 His acts transcend belief, his high repute
 Fills all the world : which would I could refute.
 But not Polydamas, Deiphobus,
 Nor valiant Hector, are extoll'd by us.
 For who commends his foe ? Messene's walls
 550 He rais'd : Fair Elis, Pylus, in their falls

Detest his fury : Cities which his hate
Had not deserv'd ; with them did ruinate
Our House with sword and fire. Not now to tell
Of others, who by his stern out-rage fell ;
Twice six fair-fam'd Neleidae were we ;
Twice six Alcides slew, excepting me.

Others have been subdu'd : but more then strange
Was Periclymen's slaughter ! who could change
And re-change to all figures. Such a grace
Great Neptune gave ; the root of Nelem race.
He, forc'd to vary forms, at length appears
Like Jove's lov'd Fowl, who in her talons bears
Impetuous thunder ; and in his descent
His face with his strong beak and pounces rent.
At him his Bow, too sure, Alcides drew,
As tow'ring in the lofty clouds he flew,
And struck his side-join'd wing. The wound was slight ;
But sunder'd nerves could not sustain his flight.
When tumbling down, his weight the arrow smote
In at his side, and thrust it through his throat.
Now brave Commander of the Rhodian Fleet ;
Think'st thou Alcides praise a subject meet
For my discourse ? Alone with silence we
Revenge our slaughtered brothers ; and love thee :

When Nestor with mellifluous eloquence
Had thus much utter'd ; they with speech dispense,
And liberal Bacchus quaff : then all arose,
And give the rest of night to soft repose.

The God, whose Trident calms the Ocean,
For strangled Cycnus, turn'd into a Swan,
Grieves with paternal grief. Achilles fate
He prosecutes with more then civil hate.
Ten years now well-nigh laps'd in horrid fights,
This unshorn Smintheus his stern rage excites.

Of all our brothers sons to us most dear ;
Whose hands, with ours, Troy's walls in vain did rear :
O sigh'st thou not to see the Asian towers
So near their fall ? their own, and aiding powers
By millions slain ? the last of all their joy
Dead Hector drag'd about his fathers Troy ?
Yet dire Achilles, who our labour gives
To utter spoil, then War more cruel, lives.
Came he within my reach, he then should try,
The vengeance of my Trident : but since I

METAMORPHOSIS.

- 595 Cannot approach t' encounter with my foe ;
 Let him thy close and mortal arrows know.
Delius assents : his Uncles wrath intends ;
 With it, his own ; and in a cloud descends
 To th' Ilian host : amid the battel seeks 600 For Paris, shooting at un-noted Greeks.
 Then shew'd a God, and said : why dost thou lose
 Thy shaft, so basely ? nobler objects choose ;
 If thou of thine at least hast any care :
 Thy brethrens deaths revenge on Peleus heir.
 Then shew'd him stern Achilles, as he slew
 605 The Trojan troops : and while his bow he drew,
 Directs the deadly shaft. This only might
 Old Priam, after Hector's death, delight.
 Him, who with conquest cloi'd the jaws of death,
 610 A faint Adulterer deprives of breath.
 If by th' effeminate to be o're-thrown,
 Then should the Pollux of the Amazon
 Have forc'd thy fate. The Phrygian fears the same,
 And strong protection of the Grecian Name.
 - Invincible Aeides now burns :
 The God, who arm'd, his bones to ashes turns.
 615 And of that great Achilles scarce remains
 So much, as now a little Urn contains.
 Yet still he lives ; his glory lightens forth,
 And fills the world : this answers his full worth.
 This, O divine Pelides, soars as high
 As thy great spirit, and shall never die.
 620 And even his arms, to instance whose they were ;
 Procure a war, Arms for his Arms they bear,
Ajax, Oileus, Diomedes, nor
 The less Atrides ; not in age and war
 The Greater : no not any ; but the Son
 Of old Laertes and bold Telamon,
 625 Durst hope for such a prize. Tantalides,
 To shun the burthen and the hate of these,
 The Princes bids to sit before his tent :
 And puts the strife on their arbitrement.

OVID'S

OVID'S METAMORPHOSIS.

THE THIRTEENTH BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

*Those purple flowers which Ajax name display,
His blood produce. Enraged Hecuba
Becomes a Bitch. From Memnon's cinders rise
Self-slaught'ring Fowl : a yearly sacrifice.
What ever Anius daughters handle, proves
Corn, Wine, or Oil : themselves transform'd to Doves.
From honour'd Virgins ashes Sons ascend.
Th' Ambracian Judge a Stone. Light wings defend Molossus royal issue. Scilla grows
A horrid Monster. Murder'd Acys flows
With speedy streams. The kind Nereides
For Glaucus sue : inthron'd in sacred Seas.*

THE Princes sat ; the souldier crowns the field ;
Up rose the Master of the seven-fold Shield.
With wrath impatient, his stern eyes survey
Sygeum, and the Navy which there lay.
Then throwing up his hands, O Jove, he said ;
Before the Fleet must we our title plead ?
And am I rival'd by Ulysses claim ?
Who made no doubt to fly from Hector's flame.
This I sustain'd ; from this that Navy freed.
'Tis safer to contend in word than deed.
I cannot talk, nor can he fight : as far
His tongue excels, as I exceed in war.

- Nor need I to rehearse what you have seen
 In act, renowned Greeks : what his hath been
 Let Ithacus declare ; perform'd by fight,
 15 Without a witness, only known to Night.
 Great is th' affected prize, I must confess :
 But such a Rival makes the value less.
 For me, 'tis no ambition to obtain,
 (Though great) whatever he could hope to gain.
 Who now in this is honour'd, that can boast
 20 He strove with me, when he the palm hath lost.
 But were my valour question'd, I might on
 My birth insist ; begot by Telamon,
 Who under Hercules Troy's bulwarks scal'd :
 In Pegasean kell to Colchis sail'd.
 25 His father, Æacus, the Judge of Souls,
 Where Sisyphus his restless torment rous.
 High Jupiter upon a mortal Love
 Got Æacus : I Ajax, third from Jove.
 Nor let this pedigree assist my claim,
 30 If great Achilles join'd not in the same.
 He was my brother, his I ask. Why thus
 Should'st thou, thou son of damned Sisyphus,
 Alike in theft and fraud, a stranger to
Achilles race, the right of this pursue ?
 Because I first assumed arms, deserv'd
 35 By no detector, are these arms deni'd ?
 Or rather for the last in field design'd ?
 Who with feign'd lunacy the war declin'd :
 Till Palamed more politick, though more
 Unhappy, did his coward-guile explore,
 And draw him to avoided arms ? Must he 40 Now wear the best, who all eschew'd ? and we
 Un-honour'd, robbed of a Kinsman's right,
 Because we at the first appear'd in fight ?
 And would to Jove he had been truly mad ;
 Or still so thought : nor this companion had,
 This tempter to foul actions, ever seen
 The Phrygia : tow'rs. Then should'st not thou have been 45 O Pæan's son, expose'd by our crime
 To Lemnian Rocks : where thou consum'st thy time
 In lonely Caves obscur'd with woods, the stones
 Provok'd to pity with thy daily groans,
 And wishest him, what he deserves, thy pain,
 If Gods there be, thou wishest not in vain.

- 50 Now our Confederate (a Prince of brave Command) to whom his shafts Alcides gave;
Broken with pain and famine, doth employ
Those arrows, that import the fate of Troy,
For food and clothing: yet he lives the while,
55 In that removed from Ulysses guile.
And Palamed might with it have been so left:
Then had he liv'd, or been of life bereft
Not by our crime. He hellishly inclin'd,
Bears his convicted madness in his mind;
And falsely him accus'd to have betray'd
Th' Achaian host; confirming what he said
60 By shewing sums of gold, which in his tent
Himself had hid. Thus he by banishment
Or death, our strength impairs; for this prefer'd:
So fights, so is Ulysses to be fear'd.
Though faithfull Nestor, he in eloquence,
Surpass; his leaving Nestor, no defence
Of words can salve: who slow, through his hurt horse;
65 And clog'd with age, implor'd Ulysses force
To fetch him off; who left to odds of foes
His old acquaintance. This Tydid knows
For no forg'd crime; who vainly call'd, to stay
His trembling friend, reviling his dismay.
70 The Gods with justice view our humane deeds:
Who would not late assist, assistance needs:
And now to be forsaken by the Law
Himself prescrib'd. He cri'd, I came, and saw
The coward quaking, pale, about to yield
75 His ghost for fear. I interpos'd my shield;
Bestrid him as he lay; and from that strife
Redeem'd (my least of praise) his coward life.
But if thou wilt contend, rejoin we there;
Revoke the foe, thy wounds, and usual fear;
B-hind my target skulk: then plead. This man,
80 Who reel'd with wounds; freed, as un-wound, ran:
Now Hector came, and brought the Gods along;
Rusht on all parts: not thou alone, the strong
And best resolved shrink: so great a dread
He drew on all. Him, as he conquest led 85 Through blood and slaughter, with a mighty stone
I struck to earth; him I sustain'd alone,
When he to all so bold a challenge made;
When for my lot you all devoutly pray'd.

- Nor pray'd in vain : if you enquire the sum
 50 Of this our fight, I was not overcome.
 With bloody weapons, flames, and Tove, the men
 Of Troy invade our navy : where was then
 Your eloquent Ulysses ? I, even I
 A thousand ships preserv'd ; whereon relie
 The hopes of your return. These arms for all 95 Your Fleet afford. The meed more honour shall Receive then give : our glories justly please ;
 These arms do Ajax seek, not Ajax these.
Rhesus surprise, with ours let him compare,
 That poor spy Dolon's, Helenus despair ;
 100 The rapt Palladium : nothing done by day ;
 He of no worth, take Diomed away.
 If to such mean deserts these arms accrue ;
 Divide them : to *Tydid*es most is due.
 Why would he these ? who still unarmed goes,
 Conceal'd ; and cunningly intraps his foes ?
 105 This radiant Cask that shines with burnisht gold,
 Will his deceit, and lurking steps unfold.
 His neck can scarce Achilles helmet bear ;
 Nor can his feeble arms employ this spear :
 110 His shield, whose orb the figured world adorns ;
 A cowards arm, inur'd to thieving, scorns.
 O fool, that thus thy own undoing seeks !
 If given thee by th' error of the Greeks,
 It will not make thee dreadfull to thy foe ;
 But give occasion of thy overthrow.
 115 And flight, wherein thou onely dost exceed,
 Clog'd with so huge a weighr, will fail thy need.
 Besides, thy shield in battle rarely born,
 Is yet entire : but mine, all hackt and torn
 With storms of blows, a new succellour needs.
 120 What boots so many words ? behold our deeds.
 These arms deliver to the foes defence :
 And let him keep, that takes the prize from thence.
 Here Ajax ends. The Souldiers in the close
 A murmur rais'd, till Ithacus arose :
 125 Who having fix'd on the earth a space
 His eyes, unto the Prince rais'd his face ;
 And now expected, spake unto this sense ;
 With all the grace of winning eloquence.
Grecians ; if heavens with yours, had heard my prayer
 What now we seek had found no doubtfull Heir ;
 Th' had

- 130 Th' hadst kept thy arms, Achilles, and we thee.
 But since stern Fate, averſe to you and me,
 So coveted an happineſs denies,
 (With that appears to weep, and wipes his eyes)
 Who great Achilles with more right ſucceeds,
 Then he, who gave you great Achilles deeds?
 135 Favour not him becauſe he ſeems to be,
 And is a ſot: nor blame this wit in me,
 So bleſt in your affairs: or take offence
 That for my ſelf I arm my eloquence,
 (If I have any) oft for you imploi'd,
 Let none the glory of his own avoid.
 140 For Anceſtors, divine original,
 And deeds by us not done, we ours miſ-call.
 Yet in that Ajax vaunts himſelf to be Great-Granchild unto Jove; no leſs are we.
Laertes was my Sire, Arceſius his;
 His, Jupiter: in this deſcent none is 145 Condemn'd, nor baniſht. By the mother I
 From Hermes ſpring: in both a Deity.
 Not that more noble by the Mothers ſide,
 Nor that my Father had his hands undi'd
 In brothers blood, do I inforce this claim:
 150 Weigh but our worths: and cenſure by the ſame.
 That Telamon and Peleus brethren were,
 In Ajax is no merit. Not the near
 In birth, but Great in act, deſerve this grace:
 Or if proximity in blood have place,
 155 Peleus his father, Pyrrhus is his ſon:
 What right remains for Ajax Telamon?
 To Phthia then, or Scyros carry theſe.
Teucer is Coſen to Æacides
 As well as he; yet ſtirs not he herein:
 Or if he ſhould, ſhould he the honour win?
 Then ſince our actions muſt our ſuit advance;
 160 Although my deeds ſurmount my utterance,
 Their abſtract yet in order to relate:
Thetis, fore-knowing great Achilles fate,
 Diſguiſ'd her ſon: ſo like a Virgin dreſt,
 That all miſtook, and Ajax with the reſt.
 When arms, with womens triſles, that might blind
 Suſpect, I brought to tempt a manly mind.
 165 Yet was the Hero Virgin-like arraid,
 Who taking up the ſpear and ſhield, I ſaid:

- O Goddess born, for thee the fate of Troy
 Her fall reserves : why doubtst thou to destroy
 Great Pergamus ? then made him leave those weeds :
 170 And sent the Mighty unto mighty deeds.
 His acts are therefore ours. We Telephus
 Foi'd by our Lance ; the suppliant cur'd by us.
 Strong Thebes we sackt : sackt Lesbos us renowns.
Chrysa and Tenedos (Apollo's towns)
 175 Cilla, and Sea-girt Cyros, in their falls
 Our fame advance : we ras'd Lernessus walls.
 To pass the rest ; I gave, who could subdue
 The brave Priamides : I Hector slew.
 For th' arms that found Achilles these I crave :
 185 He dead, I ask but what, alive, I gave.
 The grief of one, with all the Greeks prevails :
Eubæan Aulis held a thousand sails.
 The long-expected winds opposed stand,
 Or sleep in calms. When cruel Fates command
 Afflicted Agamemnon to assuage
 190 With Iphigenia's death, Diana's rage.
 But he dissents ; the Gods themselves reproves ;
 And in a King a fathers passion moves.
 His noble disposition ne'retheless
 I for the publick won : and must confess
 (Atrides pardon ;) we did prosecute
 190 Before a partial Judge, an hatefull suit.
 Yet him his brother, Scepter, publick good
 Perswade to purchase endless praise with blood.
 Then went I to the mother for her child :
 Now not to be exhorted, but beguil'd.
 Had Ajax thither gone, our flagging sails
 195 Not yet had swell'd with still-expected gales.
 Then on a bold embassage I was sent
 To haughty Troy : to th' Ilian Court I went
 Yet full of men : and fearless, urg'd at large
 The common cause committed to my charge.
 200 False Paris I accuse : rap'd Helena
 I re-demand, with all they bore away.
 Old Priam and Antenor just appear,
 But Paris, with his brethren, and who were
 His followers in that stealth, from wicked blows
 Could scarce refrain. This Menelaus knows
 The first of dangers, wherein you and I
 205 Together join'd. But what my policy

- And force perform'd behoofull to this State,
 In that long war, too long is to relate.
 The first great battel fought, our wary foes
 Long live immur'd : nor durst their powers expose.
 Nine years expir'd, wars all the fields affright.
- 210 Meanwhile what didst thou, onely fit to fight?
 What use of thee ? inquire my actions ; I
 The foe intrap, our trenches fortifie,
 Encouraging the weary Souldier
 To brook the tediousness of lingring war
 With fair expectance : teach them waies to feed,
- 215 The use of arms : implor'd at every need.
 The King deluded in his sleep by Jove,
 Bids us the care of future war remove.
 The author was his strong agology.
Ajax should have withstood ; the sack of Troy
 He should have urg'd ; done what he could, have fought.
- 220 Why was the nobler siege by him unsought ?
 Why arm'd he not ? a speech he might have made,
 That would the wavering multitude have staid :
 To him not difficult, who looks so high,
 And speaks so big. What if himself did flie ?
 I saw, and sham'd to see thee turn thy back,
 To hoise thy sails unto thy honours wrack.
- 225 What do you ? O what madness, mates, said I,
 Provokes you to abandon yielding Troy ?
 Ten years nigh spent, what will you bear away
 But infamy ? I this and more did say ;
 Wherein my sorrow made me eloquent :
 They thus perswaded, alter'd their intent.
- 230 The King a Council calls ; distrusts afford
 No sound advice : durst Ajax speak a word ?
 When base Thersytes durst the King provoke
 With bitter words : who felt my scepters stroke.
 Their doubts with hope of conquest I inspire :
- 235 And set their fainting courages on fire :
 Since when, what he hath nobly done, by right
 To me belongs, that thus restrain'd his flight.
 Besides, what one of all the wiser Greeks
 Makes choice of thee ; or thine assistance seeks ?
Tydides us approves, builds on our will ;
- 240 Is confident in his Ulysses still.
 Among so many, 'tis a grace for me
 To be his consort ; and the choice too free.

- * The danger of the foe, and night despis'd ;
 I Dolon, then a counter-scout, surpris'd :
 245 Nor him, till I had searcht his bosom, flew ;
 Inform'd what perfidious Troy would do.
 All known, and nothing left to be enquir'd ;
 I now with praise enough might have retir'd.
 Yet not so satisfi'd, I forward went ;
 250 And Rhesus slew, with his, in his own tent ;
 When, like a Victor, on his Chariot I
 Return'd in triumph. Can you then deny
Achilles arms, whose horses were assign'd
 For one nights hazard ? Ajax is more kind.
 255 What should I of Sarpedon's forces tell,
 O're-thrown by us : by us Ceranos fell,
Iphitides, Alastor, Chromius,
Alexander, Prytanis, Noemonus,
Halius, stout Thoon, bold Pheridamas,
 260 With Charopes Eunamus fatal Pass
 Sign'd by my Lance : and many more in view
 Of hostile Troy, of meaner rank, I flew.
 And I, O Countreymen, have honour'd wounds,
 Fair in their scars ; nor trust to empty sounds :
 Behold, (said he, with that his bosom bares)
 265 This breast, still exercis'd in your affairs.
 No blood for Greece in all these lengthfull wars
 Hath Ajax shed : let him produce his scars.
 What boots it, though his deeds his brags approve ;
 That for our Fleet he fought with Troy and Jove ?
 270 I grant, he did so : nor will we detract
 With hated envy from a noble act.
 So he ingross not to himself alone
 A common praise, but render us our own.
Astoridaes (for great Achilles held)
Troy's flames and Fautor from our ships repell'd.
 He vainly glories that himself alone
 Could answer Hector's opposition :
 275 The King, his brother, and my self forgot :
 Of nine the last, and but prefer'd by lot.
 But what event, O great in valour, crown'd
 Your famous combat ? Hector had no wound.
 280 Wo's me ! with what a tide of grief I call
 That time to mind ; wherein the Grecian Wall,
Achilles fell ! tears, fears, nor sorrow staid
 My forward zeal ; his rais'd corps I laid

Upon these shoulders : these, even these did bear
 Him, and his arms ; which now I hope to wear.
 Our strength can such a weight with ease sustain :
 Our knowledge can your honour'd gift explain.
 Was Thetis so ambitious for her son,
 That such a brainless Souldier should put on
 This heavenly gift, of so divine a frame ?
 Whole figur'd shield his ignorance would shame.
 Wherein, the Ocean ; Earth with Cities crown'd ;
 Skies deckt with Stars ; cold Arctos never drown'd,
 Sword-girt Orion, sad Pleiades,
 The rainy Kids. He seeks, yet knows not these.
 Upbraids he me, that I this war did shun,
 And time defer'd till others had begun ?
 Nor can consider, how he wounds in me
Achilles honour. If a crime it be
 To counterfeit ; we join in that defame :
 If, in that tardy ; I before him came.
 Me, my kind wife, his mother him withdrew :
 Our flow'r to them we gave, the fruit to you.
 Nor fear I, should I quit my own defence,
 To suffer with so clear an excellence.
 Nor was it Ajax found out me : and yet
Achilles was discover'd by my wit.
 Left I should wonder why his foolish tongue
 Should slander me, he you upbraids with wrong.
 If Palamedes was accus'd by me
 Without just cause, must not his judgement be
 To you reproachfull ? neither Nauplius Seed.
 Could justify so evident a deed :
 Nor heard you onely of his treacheries,
 The hire of treason laid before your eyes.
Peantius in Lemnos left, was none
 Of my offence, do you defend your own :
 You to his stay consented. Yet again
 I must confess, I advis'd him to abstain
 From travel, toils of war : and to appease
 The anguish of his bitter wound with ease.
 He did ; he lives. Th' advice was good : success
 As fortunate approves it for no less.
 Since Fate designs him for the fall of Troy :
 Spare me, and Ajax industry employ.
 His tongue the mad with wrath and anguish will
 Appease : he'll fetch him with some reach of skill.

METAMORPHOSIS,

- First Simois shall retire, I'de want a shade;
 325 Achaia promise to the Trojans aid;
 E're my endeavours in your service fail,
 And sottish Ajax with his wit prevail.
 And Philoctetes, though obdure, thou be
 Incens'd against the King, these Lords, and me;
 330 Though curses lighten from thy lips, though still
 Thou covet my access, my blood to spill;
 Yet I'll attempt thee; and will bring thee back;
 That neither may, what we so wish for, lack.
 Thy shafts I must possess (so favour Fate)
 335 As I possess the Dardan prophet late;
 As I unkne the Trojan destiny,
 And doubtfull answer of the Gods; as I,
 Amid a world of foes, the fatal Sign
 Of Pirygian Pallas ravish'd from her shrine.
 Compare with me will Ajax? this unta'ne,
Troy's hop'd-for expugnation had been vain.
 340 Where was strong Ajax? where the glorious boast
 Of that great Souldier? why in terrour lost?
 How durst Ulysses trust himself to night,
 Pass through the watch, their threat'ning weapons slight?
 The walls not onely, but the highest tower
 Of Ilium scale: and from her Fane the Power
 345 That bears their fate inforce: and with this prey,
 Repass the dangers of that horrid way?
 Which, had not I atchieved, yet in field
 Had Ajax vainly born his seven-fold shield.
 That night Troy fell before Laertes son:
 Won, when I made it that it might be won.
 350 Why dost thou flee on my *Tydid*es so:
 And nod'st at me? our praises jointly grow.
 Not for our Navy didst thou fight alone:
 Thou by an host assisted, I by one.
 Who knew that wisdom valour should command;
 355 That these belong'd not to a strenuous hand:
 Else he himself had join'd in this debate;
 Or th' other Ajax, far more moderate;
 Brave Thox, fierce Euripylus; with these Idoneneus and Meriones
 Of Crete; or Menelaus. For they are,
 360 As strong, nor second unto thee in war:
 Yet yield to our advice. Thou fit for fight,
 Dost need my reason to direct thy might:

The Thirteenth Book.

- Thy valour wants forecast ; my care is set
 Upon the future : thou canst fight ; and yet
 The time and place must be by us assign'd :
- 365 Thou onely strong in body, I in mind.
 As skilfull Pilots those surpass, who row ;
 As wise Commanders, common Souldiers ; so
 I thee excel. Our vigour is les great
 In bones and sinews, yet my soul compleat.
- 370 Then O remunerate my vigilance :
 And, Princes, for so many years expence
 In anxious cares, this dignity extend
 To my deserts, Our work is at an end :
 Withstanding fates remov'd : I, in that I
 Have made it feasible, have taken Troy.
- 375 Now by our mutual hopes, Troy's overthrow,
 Those Gods which late I ravisht from the foe ;
 If ought remain to be discreetly done,
 That courage craves, through danger to be won ;
 If in the Ilian destiny there be
 A knot yet to unknit ; remember me :
- 380 Or if you can forget ; these arms resign
 To this ; and shews Minerva's fatal Sign. (charms ;
 The Chiefs were mov'd. Here words approv'd their
 And Eloquence from Valour wins those arms.
 He who alone, Jove, Hector, Sword and Fire
- 385 So oft sustain'd ; yields to one stroke of ire.
 Th' unconquer'd sorrow conquers ; Then his blade
 In hast unsheath'd : Sure thou art mine, he said ;
 Or seeks Ulysses this ? this shall conclude
 All sense of wrong. And thee, so oft imbru'd
 In Phrygian blood, thy Lords must now imbrue :
- 390 That none but Ajax Ajax may subdue.
 This said ; his breast, rill then with wounds ungor'd,
 The deadly sword, where it could enter, bor'd.
 Nor could draw back the steel with all his strength ;
 Expel'd by gushing gore. The blood at length,
- 395 A purple flower ingendred on the ground :
 Created first by Hyacinthus wound.
 The tender leaves indifferent letters paint :
 Both of his name, and of the Gods complaint.
 The Conqueror, now holling sails, doth stand
 For mild Elypsiphile's and Thoas Land ;
- 400 (Defam'd by Womens cursed violence)
 To fetch the shafts of Hercules from thence.

These

These, with their owner, to the camp convey'd,
Of that so long a war an end they made.

405 Now Troy and Priamus together fall.

Th' unhappy wife of Priam after all,
Her humane figure lost: whose raving Spright
And uncouth howling foreign fields affright.
The flames of Ilium stretch their hungry fire
To narrow Hellefpont; nor there expire.

410 That little blood which Priam's age could she Jove's altar drinks. By her anointed head
Apollo's Priest they drag, her hands in vain
To heaven upheld. The Victor Greeks constrain

415 The Dardan Dames; a deadly-hating prey:
Who imbrace their Country Gods; and while they may,
Behold their burning Fanes. Dire violence
Astyanax threw from that tower; from whence
He had seen his father, by his mother shown,
Fight for his Kingdoms safety, and his own.
North-winds to Seas invite, and prosperous gales
420 Sing in their throwds; they haste to trim their Sails,
The Trojan Ladies cry, Dear Soil farewell!
We are hal'd to loath'd captivity! then fell
On earth now kist: and leave with much delay,
Their Countries smoaking ruines. Hecuba
Her sad departure to the last defers:

Now found among her childrens sepulchres,

425 (A sight of ruth!) spread on their tombs; bewails,
Their cold bones kissing: whom Ulysses hales
From that sad comfort. Some of Hector's dust,
Up-snatcht, delivers to her bosoms trust.
Upon his tomb she left her hoary hairs
(A poor Oblation!) mingled with her tears.

430 Oppos'd to Ilium's ruines lies a Land,
Till'd by the Bistones; in the Command
Of Polymnestor. Danger to prevent,
To him his father Polydorus sent:

And wisely; had he not withall consign'd
435 A mass of gold, to tempt his greedy mind.
His foster-child, when lingring Ilium drew
To her last date, the Thracian Tyrant flew.
Whom, as if he his murder with the slain
Could cast away, he casts into the Main.

440 Now rode Atrides at the Thracian shoar;
Till winds forbore to storm; and Seas to roar.

When from the yawning earth Achilles rose ;
 Like mighty as in life : whose looks disclose
 As stern a wrath, as when his lawless blade
 445 Was on Atrides drawn, and frowning, said :
Achaïans, O ingratefull ! can you thus
 Depart ? are our deserts intomb'd with us ?
 Now honour me with what I covet most :
 Let slain Polyxena appease my Ghost.
 450 Then vanish. They th' ungentle Ghost obey'd ;
 And from her Mothers bosom drew the Maid,
 (High-soul'd, unhappy, more then feminine,)
 To his resembled tomb ; life to resign
 With Rites infernal. Of her birth she thought :
 And now unto the bloody altar brought ;
 455 Seeing her self the sacrifice prepar'd :
 And that Neoptolemus upon her star'd
 With Sword advanc'd, she said ; untoucht with dread :
 Our generous blood to your intentions shed,
 Dispatcht ; in throat or breast (I am prepar'd)
 460 Your weapon sheath. (With that her bosom bar'd)
Polyxena doth servitude despise :
 And yet no God affects such sacrifice.
 I onely wish my death might be unknown
 To my afflicted mother. She alone
 Disturbs the joys of death : though Priam's wife
 465 My death should less bewail, then her own life.
 Nor let the touch of man pollute a maid :
 That my free Soul may to the Stygian shade
 Untainted pass. If this be just, remove
 Your hand, I shall more acceptable prove Unto that God or Ghost, whate're he be,
 To whom I am offer'd, if my blood be free.
 470 And if a dying tongue prevail at all ;
 I, late great Priam's daughter, now a thrall,
 Sollicite that my corps may not be sold ;
 But given my mother : nor exchange for gold
 Sad rites of sepulture. In former years
 Sh' had gold to give, now poor, accept her tears.
 475 This having said, for her, that would not weep,
 The people wept : the Priest could hardly keep
 His eyes from tears, yet did what he abhor'd,
 And in her proffered bosom thrust his sword.
 On doubling knees she sunk, with silent breath,
 And cheerfully imbraceth smil'd on Death.

Then

- 480 Then when she fell, she had a care to hide
 What should be hid; and chastly decent di'd.
 Her corps was carried by the Trojan dames:
 Who in a funeral song repeat the names
 Of Priam's mourn'd-for Seed; what streams of gore
 One House had spent. Thee, Virgin, they deplore:
 And thee, O royal Wife, entitled late
 485 The mother-Queen, and Glory of that State:
 A Captive now, cast by a scorned lot
 On conquering Ithacus; refus'd, if not
 Forbearing Hector. Hector, so renown'd,
 A master hardly for his mother found.
 She hugs the corps that such a spirit kept.
 490 Who for her countrey, children, husband, wept
 So oft; now weeps for her: her lips she prest,
 Her wounds fills with her tears. Then beats her breast.
 Her hoary hair besmear'd with clotted gore,
 And bosom torn, this spake she; and much more.
 495 Poor daughter, our last sorrow: (what is left
 For fortunes spite!) by bloody death bereft
 On thee I see my wounds. That of my seed
 None may unwounded die, even thou must bleed.
 In that a woman, thee I held secur'd:
 But thou, O woman, suffer'd by the sword.
 This bane of Troy, our utter ruine, who 500 So many of thy princely brothers slew;
 Hath slain thee too. When he a corse was made
 By Paris and Apollo's shafts, I said,
 Now is Achilles to be fear'd no more.
 Now dead, to us as dreadful as before.
 505 Against my race his ashes rise: his tomb
 Presents a foe. O my unhappy womb!
 T' his fury fruitfull! Ruin'd Troy descends:
 And sad success the publick sorrow ends:
 Yet they are ended. Ilium alone
 To us remains: our sorrows freshly groan.
 I, late so potent, and so fortunate
 510 In husband, sons, and height of humane State;
 To exile now am hal'd: despis'd, and torn
 From my own sepulchers, from Phrygia born
 To serve Penelope, that while I sew
 Or spin at her commandment, she may shew
 Her slave to Ithacensian dames, and say,
 Lo, Hector's mother, Priam's Hecuba.

- 515 My sorrows sole relief, so many lost,
Is offer'd to appease an hostile Ghost.
Infernal sacrifices to the dead,
Even to my foe, my cursed womb hath bred.
Hard heart, why breakst thou not? What hopes engage Thine expectation? Mischievous Old-age,
For what reserv'st thou me? You cruel Powers,
520 Why lengthen you a poor old womans hours
To see new funerals? O Priam, I
May call thee happy, after ruin'd Troy.
Happy in death. Thou seest not this sad fate:
Thou lost thy life together with thy state.
Rich funerals attend thee, royal Maid:
535 And by thine Ancestors thou shalt be laid.
O no! thy mothers tears, an heap of sand,
Must now content thee in a foreign Land.
All, all is lost! Yet lives a little Boy
530 My last and youngest joy, when I could joy;
For whom I condescend to live a space,
Here foster'd by the courteous King of Thrace.
Meanwhile why stay we with the cleansing floud
To wash these wounds, and look besmear'd with bloud?
Then with an aged pace, her hoary hairs
535 All torn and scattered, to the Sea repairs.
And while the wretched said; You Troades,
A Pitcher bring to draw the brinish Seas:
She saw the cast-up corps of Polydor
Struck full of wounds upon the beachy shoar.
The Ladies shriek; she dumb with sorrow stood;
540 Whilst inward grief, her voice, her tears, her bloud,
At once devour'd. And now, as if intranc'd,
Stares on the earth; sometimes to heav'n advanc'd
Her scouling brows: oft on his visage gaz'd;
But oftner on his wounds. By anger rais'd,
545 Arm'd, and instructed, all on vengeance bent,
Still Queen-like, destinate his punishment.
And as a Lioness, robb'd of her young,
Pursues the unseen hunters steps: so, stung
With fury, when her sorrow with her rage
550 Had join'd their powers; unmindfull of her age,
But not of former greatness, ran with speed
To Polymnestor, authour of this deed.
And craving conference, the Tyrant told
How she should shew him sums of hidden gold

To give her Polydor. This held for true ;
He thirsty of his prey, with her withdrew.

555 And flattering her thus craftily begun :
Delay not, Hecuba, t^e enrich thy son :
By all the Gods we justly will restore
What thou shalt give, and what thou gav'st before.
She with a truculent aspect beheld

560 The falsly swearing King ; with anger swell'd.
Then calls the captive dames, upon him flies ;
Who hides her fingers in his perjur'd eyes,
Extracts his eye-balls : more then usual strong,
With thirsty vengeance, and the sense of wrong,

565 Her hand drowns in his skull ; the roots up-tore
Of his lost sight, imbru'd with guilty gore.
The men of Thracia incensed for their King,
Weapons and stones at Hecuba now fling.
She, snarling, bites the follow'd flints, her chaps,

570 For speech extended, bark. Of whose mis-haps,
That place is nam'd. She, mindfull of her old
Misfortunes, in Sithonian desarts howl'd.

The Trojans, Grecians, those who love or hate ;
Yea, all the Gods commiserate her fate,

575 Even spightfull Juno did to this descend ;
That Hecuba deserv'd not such an end.

Aurora had no leisure to lament,
(Although those arms she favour'd) the event
Of Troy or Hecuba. Domestical

580 And nearer grief afflicts her, for the fall
Of Memnon ; whose life-bloud the Launce imbru'd
Of stern Achilles. This when first she view'd,
The rose dye, that deckt the Morns up-rise,
Grew forthwith pale, and clouds immur'd the skies.

585 Nor could injure to see his body laid
On funeral flames : but with her hair displai'd,
As in that season, to high Jove repairs ;
And kneeling thus with tears, unfolds her cares.

To all inferiour, whom the sky sustains
(For mortals rarely honour me with Fanes)

590 A Goddess yet, I come : not to desire
Shrines, Festivals, nor Altars bright with fire ;
Yet should you weigh what I, a woman, do,
The night confine, and sacred day renew,
I merit such : such fruit not now our state ;

595 Nor such desires affect the desolate.

- Of Memnon rob'd, who glorious arms in vain
 Bare for his Uncle, by Achilles slain
 In flower of youth (so would you Gods) come I.
 600 O chief of Pow'rs, a mothers sorrow, by
 Some honour given him, lessen: death with fame
 Recomfort! Jove assents. When greedy flame
 Devour'd the funeral Pile; and curling fumes
 Day over-cast: as when bright Sol assumes
 From streams thick vapours, nor is seen below.
 605 The flying sparkles dying jointly grow
 Into one body. Colour, form, life, spring
 To it from fire, which lightness now doth wing.
 First like a fowl, forthwith a fowl indeed:
 610 Innumerable sisters of that breed:
 Together whisk their feathers. Thrice their round
 The funeral Pile; thrice raise a mournfull sound.
 In two battalions then divide their flight;
 And like two strenuous nations fiercely fight:
 Their opposite with beak and talons rend;
 615 Cuff with their wings; in sacrifice descend,
 Now dying, on the ashes of the dead:
 Remembring they were of the Valiant bred.
 These new sprung fowl, men of their authour call
Memnonides. No sooner Sol through all
 The Signs returns; but re-infore'd again
 620 In civil war they die upon the slain.
 While others therefore do commiserate
 Poor barking Hecuba in her chang'd fate:
Aurora her own grief intends; renews
 Her pious tears which fall on earth in dews.
 625 Yet fates resist that all the hopes of Troy
 Should perish with her towers. The Son and Joy
 Of Cytherea, with his household Gods,
 And aged Sire, his pious shoulders loads.
 Of so great wealth he onely chose that prize,
 And his Ascanius: from Antandros flies
 By Seas, and shuns the wicked Thracian shoar,
 630 Defil'd with blood of murdered Polydore:
 With prosperous winds arriving with his train
 At Phæbus town, where Anius then did reign,
Apollo's holy Priest; who, with the rest,
 Into the Temple leads his honour'd Guest:
 635 The City, with the sacred places, shows,
 And trees held by Latona in her throes.

Incense on flames, and wine on incense pour'd :
 Intrails of slaughtered bees by fire devour'd ;
 His Guests conducts to Court : on carpet spread

640 With Ceres and Lyæus bounty fed.

When thus Anchises ; O to Phæbus dear !
 I am deceiv'd, or, when I first was here,
 Four daughters and a son thy solace crown'd.
 He shook his head, with sacred fillets bound ;

645 And sighing said, O most renown'd of men,
 I was the father of five children then,
 Whom now (such is the change of things !) you see
 Halfchildless : for my absent son to me
 Is of small comfort ; who, my Vice-roy, reigns

650 In Sea-girt Andros, which his name retains.
 Him Delius with prophetick skill inspir'd.
 A gift past credit, still to be admir'd,
 My daughters Bacchus gave ; above their suit :
 That all they touch should presently transmute
 To wine, to corn, and to Minerva's oil.

655 Rich in the use. To purchase such a spoil,
 Great Troy's Depopulator, Atreus Heir,
 (Lest you should think we have not born a share
 In your mis-haps) with armed violence
 Enforc'd them from me : charged to dispense

660 That heavenly gift unto th' Argolian Host.
 They scape by flight : two to Eubæa cross ;
 Two fled to Andros : these the Souldier
 Pursu'd, and threatned (if unrender'd) war.
 Fear nature now subdu'd : his sisters were

665 By him resign'd ; forgive a brothers fear.
 Not Hector, not Æneas then were by
 To guard his town, who so long guarded Troy :
 About to bind their captive arms in bands ;
 Rearing to heaven their yet unchained hands,

670 O father Bacchus help ! While thus they pray'd,
 The Author of that gift presents his aid.
 (If such a loss may be accounted so)

Yet how they lost their shapes I could not know ;
 Nor yet can tell. It self the sequel proves ;

675 Converted to thy Wives white-feather'd Doves.

With such discourse they entertain the feast :
 That ta'ne away, dispose themselves to rest.
 With day they rose ; the Oracle exquire ;
 Who bids them to their ancient Nurse retir'.

And kindred shoars. Now ready to depart
 680 The King presents rich gifts, wrought with rare art &
 A Scepter to Anchises gives : a brave
 Robe, and a quiver, to Ascanius gave :
 A cup t' Aeneas, which surpass the rest ;
 By Theban Therses sent him once his Guest.
Mylean Alcon made what Therses sent :
 685 And carv'd thereon this ample argument.
 A City with seven gates of equal grace ;
 These serve for names to character the place.
 Before it, exequies, tombs, piles, bright fires,
 Dames with spread hair, bare breasts, and torn attires,
 690 Decipher mourning : Nymphs appear to weep
 For their dry Springs : sap-searing Cankers creep
 On naked trees : Goats lick the foodless ground.
 In midst of Thebes, Orion's daughters crown'd
 With fillets stand : This proffers to the Sword
 695 Her manly breast ; her hands her death afford,
 For common safety. All the people mourn ;
 And with due funerals their bodies burn.
 Yet lest the world should such a lineage lose,
 Two youths out of their virgin-albes rose.
 These Orphans wandring Fame Corona calls :
 700 Who celebrate their mother's funerals.
 The antick brags with burnisht figures shin'd :
 Whose brim neat wreaths of gilt Acanthus bind.
 Nor were the Trojan gifts of less expence :
 Who gave a Censer for sweet Frankincense,
 An ample Chalice of a curious mold ;
 705 With these a crown, that thone with gems and gold.
 In that the Teucrans sprung from Teucer's blood,
 They sail to Creet : but Jove their stay with-stood.
 Leaving those hundred Cities, now they stand
 For wisht Ausonia's destinated strand.
 710 Toft by rough Winter, and the wrath of Seas,
 They anchor at the faithless Strophades.
 Then frighted by Aello ; sail away
 By steep Dulichium, stony Ithaca,
Samas, high Neritus clasp'd by the Main :
 All subject to the lie Ulysses reign.
 Then at Ambracia touch, the strife and grudge
 Of angry Gods ; the image of the Judge
 715 Behold, by them converted into stone :
 Now by Attiacan Apollo known.

- Then the Dodonian speaking Oak they view ;
Chaonia where Molossus children flew
 With aiding feathers from the impious flame ;
 720 Next to Phæacia, rich in Orchards came ;
 Then to Epirus : at Butrotos, stai'd,
 Whose Scepter now the Phrygian Prophet swai'd ;
 And see resembled Troy. Fore-told of all
 By Priams Helenus, that would befall :
 725 They reach Sicania. This three tongues extends
 Into circumfluent Seas. Pachinus bends
 To showry Auster ; flowry Sepher blows
 On Lilybæus brows ; Polorus shows
 His cliffs to Boreas, and the frozen Bear
 That shuns the Ocean. Under this they steer
 And stretch their Oars, who favoured by the tide,
 730 That night in Zancle's crooked harbour ride.
 The right-side dangerous Scylla, turbulent
Charybdis keeps the left ; on ruine bent.
 She belches swallowed ships from her profound :
 Her sable womb, dogs, ever rav'ning round ;
 Yet bears a virgins face : if all be true
 735 That Poets sing, she was a virgin too.
 By many sought, as many she despis'd :
 To Nymphs of Seas, of Sea-nymphs highly priz'd,
 She bears her visits ; and to them discovers
 The history of her deluded Lovers :
 740 To whom thus Galatea, sighing, said ;
 While Scylla comb'd her hair : You, lovely Maid,
 Are lov'd of generous minded men, whom you
 With safety may refuse, as now you do.
 But I, great Nereus, and blue Doris seed,
 Great in so many sisters of that breed ;
 745 By shunning of the Cyclops love, provok'd
 A sad revenge. Here tears her utterance chok'd.
 These cleansed by the marble-finger'd maid ;
 Who, having comforted the Goddesses, said :
 Relate, O most ador'd, nor from me keep
 The wretched cause that makes a Goddess weep ;
 For I am faithfull. Nereis consents
 750 And thus her grief to Cratis daughter vents.
 The Nymph Simethis bore a lovely Boy
 To Faunus, Acis call'd ; to them a joy ;
 To us a greater. For the sweetly-Fair
 To me an innocent affection bare.

His blooming youth twice-told eight birthdaies crown,
 755 And cloath his cheeks with scarce appearing down.
 As I the gentle boy, so Polypheme
 My love pursu'd ; our loves alike extream.
 Whether my love to Acis, or my hate
 To him were more, I hardly can relate.
 Both infinite ! O Venus, what a power
 760 Hath thy command ! He, still austere and fowr,
 A terrour to the woods, from whom no guest
 With life escapes, accustomed to feast
 On humane flesh ; who all the Gods above,
 With them Olympus scorn'd ; now stoops to love.
 Forgetfull of his flocks and caves, a fire
 Feeds in his breast, inflamed with desire.
 765 His feature now extends, now bends his care
 To please : with rakes he combs his stubborn hair ;
 His bristles barbs with scithes : and by the brooks
 Unsolid mirrour calms his dreadfull looks :
 His thirst of bloud and love of slaughter cease ;
 770 Less cruel now : ships come and go in peace.
 When Telemus came from Sicilian Seas,
 The Augur Telemus Eurymides,
 And said to Polypheme, Thy brows large sigh
 Shall by Ulysses be depriv'd of light.
 775 O fool, he laughing said, thou tell'st a lie ;
 A female hath already stoln that eye.
 Thus flouts the Prophet's true prediction :
 And with extended paces stalks upon
 The burd'ned shoar ; or weary, from the wave-
 Beat beach retireth to his gloomy cave :
 A promontory thrusts into the main ;
 80 Whose cliffie sides the breaking Seas restrain :
 The Cyclop this ascends ; whose fleecy flock
 Unforced follow. Seated on a rock ;
 His staff, a well-grown Pine, before him cast,
 Sufficient for a yard-supporting mast :
 85 He blows his hundred reeds ; whose squeaking hills
 The far-resounding Seas, and echoing hills.
 Hid in an hollow rock, and laid along
 By Acis side, I heard him sing this song.
 90 O Galatea more then Lily-white,
 More fresh then flowry meads, then glass more bright,
 Higher then Alder-trees, then kids more blithe,
 Smoother then shells whereon the surges drive,

- More wisht then Winters Sun, or Summers air,
 795 More sweet then Grapes, then Apples far more rare,
 Clearer then Ice, more seemly then tall Planes,
 Softer then tender curds, or down of Swans,
 More fair, if fixt, then gardens by the fall
 Of Springs inchas'd. Though thus, thou art withal
 800 More fierce then salvage Bulls, who know no yoke,
 Then waves more giddy, harder then the Oak,
 Then Vines or Willow twigs more eas'ly bent,
 More stiff then rocks, then streams more violent,
 Prouder then Peacocks prais'd, more rash then fire,
 Then Bears more cruel, sharper then the Brier,
 805 Deafer then Seas, more fell then trod-on Snake ;
 And, if I could, what I would from thee take,
 More speedy then the hound-pursued Hind,
 Or chased clouds, or then the flying wind.
 If known to thee, thou wouldst thy flight repent ;
 810 Curse thy delay, and labour my content.
 For I have caves within the living stone ;
 To Summers heat, and Winters cold unknown :
 Trees charg'd with Apples ; spreading Vines that hold
 A purple Grape, and Grapes resembling Gold.
 815 For thee I these preserve, affected Maid,
 Thou Strawberries shalt gather in the shade.
 Autumnal Cornels, Plums with azure rind,
 And wax-like yellow of a generous kind ;
 820 Nor shalt thou Chest-nuts want, if mine thou be,
 Nor scalded Wildings, serv'd by every tree.
 These flocks are ours ; in valleys many stray,
 Woods many shade, at home as many stay.
 Nor can I, should you ask, their number tell :
 825 Who numbers theirs, are poor. How these excel,
 Believe not me, but credit your own eyes :
 See how their udders part their straggling thighs.
 I in my sheep-coats have new-weaned Lambs :
 And frisking Kids late taken from their dams.
 830 New milk, fresh curds and cream, with cheese well prest
 Are never wanting for thy pallats feast.
 Nor will we gifts for thy delight prepare
 Of easie purchase, or what are not rare :
 Deer, red and fallow, Roes, light-footed Hares,
 Nests, scal'd from cliffs, and Doves produc'd by pairs
 835 A rugged Bear's rough twins I found upon
 The Mountain late, scarce from each other known,

For thee to play with : finding these, I said,
 My Mistress you shall serve. Come lovely Maid,
 Come Galatea, from the surges rise,
 840 Bright as the morning ; nor our gifts despise.
 I know my self ; mine image in the brook
 I lately saw, and therein pleasure took.
 Behold, how great ! nor Jupiter above
 (For much you talk I know not of what Jove)
 845 Is larger siz'd : curls on my brows displai'd,
 Affright ; and like a Grove my shoulders shade.
 Nor let it your esteem of me impair,
 That all my body bristles with thick hair.
 Trees without leaves, and Horses without mains-
 Are sights unseemly ; grass adorns the Plains,
 850 Wool sheep, and feathers fowl. A manly face
 A beard becomes : the skin rough bristles grace.
 Amid my fore-head shines one onely light ;
 Round, like a mighry shield, and clear of sight.
 The Sun all objects sees beneath the skie :
 And yet behold, the Sun hath but one eye.
 855 Besides your Seas obey my father's throne :
 I give you him for yours. Do you alone
 Vouchsafe me pity, and your suppliant hear :
 To you I onely bow ; you onely fear.
 Heaven, Jupiter, his lightning I despise :
 More dread the lightning of thy angry eyes.
 860 And yet your scorn my patience less would move,
 Were all contemn'd. Why should you Aeïs love,
 And slight the Cyclop ? why to him more free ?
 Although himself he please ; and pleaseth thee,
 (Which frets me most) could I your darling ger,
 865 He then should find my strength and me like great.
 His guts I could extract, squeeze out his brains,
 Throw his dissevered limbs about the plains :
 And if with thee he mingle, mix thy wave
 With his hot blood ; and make thy deep his grave.
 For O, I fry ! despis'd affection burns
 With greater rage : my bulk to Aetna turns.
 And all her flames are in my bosom pent :
 870 Yet Galatea, wilt not thou relent ?
 This said, he rose ; (for I beheld him well :)
 Nor could stand still ; but terrible and fell,
 Hurries about the woods and well-known coast ;
 Much like a Bull that hath his Heifer lost.

- 875 Who me and Acis, too secure, esp'd,
 And with a voice that suits a Cyclop, cri'd,
 This hour shall be the last of all your joys ;
 Affrighted Ætna roared with the noise,
- 880 I under water div'd : he flying said ;
 Help Galatea ! You, O paren's, aid
 The utterly undone ; and entertain
 Your issue in the Empire where you reign.
 A torn-off rock the following Cyclop threw :
- 885 Whose corner over-whelmed Acis flew.
 We did, what could be licensed by Fate :
 Resuming Acis to his Grand-fires state :
 The purple blood from his crush'd body fled ;
 Which presently forsook the native red :
- 890 First like a rain-discoloured stream appears ;
 Then crystalline. The rock in sunder tears :
 Whose crannies with up-starting reeds abound ;
 And in the breach insulting waves resound :
 From whence a youth arose above the wast ;
- 895 His horned brows with quivering reeds imbrac'd.
 'Twas wondrous strange : but that his looks appear
 More blue, and he more great, it Acis were.
 And so it was : although he now became
 A living stream, which still preserves his name.
 Here Galatea ends ; th' assembly brake ;
- 900 To smiling Seas the Nymphs themselves betake.
Scylla returning, dares not trust the Deep's :
 But naked, nigh the thirsty gravel keeps ;
 Or weary, in the more-sequestred-waves
 Her comely limbs in cooling water bathes.
- 905 Lo, Glaucus in the Sea but lately known,
 Transformed near Eubæan Anthedon,
 Through yielding waves arrives : rapt with her sight ;
 By gentle words attempts to stay her flight.
 She faster fled ; who swift with fear ascends
- 910 A lofty hill, which near the shoar extends :
 Whose round congested summit, crown'd with wood,
 Did over-peer the under-swelling flood.
 There staies, secured by the place ; nor knew
 If God, or Monster : much admires his hue,
 His spreading locks, which all his shoulders vail ;
- 915 And hinder-parts, that bear a fishes tail.
 Perceived ; leaning on a rock, he said :
 I am no beast, nor prodigy, fair Maid :

- 920 Nor Proteus, Triton Atkamantides,
Are greater Gods, or more command in Seas,
Yet once a mortal ; and did then frequent
Th' affected Seas. On those my labour spent.
Sometimes with nets I fishes hale to land :
Sometimes the line directed with my wand.
- 925 The shoar a meadow bounds ; whereof one side
Is fring'd with weeds, the other with the tide.
On this nor horned cattel ever fed,
Nor harmless sheep, nor goats on mountains bred.
No Bees from hence their thighs with honey laid ;
Those flowers no marriage-garlands ever made :
- 930 That grass ne'r cut with sithes. Of mortals I
First thither came ; my nets hung up to dry.
While I expos'd the fishes which I took ;
By their credulity hung on my hook,
- 935 Or matcht in nets ; (what would a lie behove ?
Yet such it seems) my prey began to move,
Display their fins, and swim as on the flood.
While I neglect their stay, and wondring stood ;
They all by flight avoiding my command,
- 940 Together left their owner and the Land.
Amaz'd, and doubting long ; the cause I sought,
If either God, or Herb, this wonder wrought.
What herb, said I, hath such a power ? in haste
An herb I pull'd, and gave it to my taste.
- 945 No sooner swallowed, but my intrails shook :
When forthwith I another nature took :
Nor could refrain ; but said, O Earth, my last
Farewel receive ! in Seas my self I cast.
- 950 The Sea-gods now vouchsafing my receipt
Into their sacred fellowships, intreat
Both Tethys and Oceanus, that they
Would take, what ever mortal was, away.
Whom now they hallow, and with charms nine times
Repeated, purge me from my humane crimes :
And bad me dive beneath a hundred streams.
- 955 Forthwith the rivers rusht from sundry Realms ;
And Sea-raisd Surges roll above my crown.
As soon as streams retire, and Seas were down,
Another body, and another mind,
Unlike the former, they to me a lig'd.
- 960 Thus much of Wonder I remember well,
Thenceforth insensible of what befell.

Then first of all this Sea-green beard I saw,
These dangling locks, which through the deep I draw;
Broad shoulder-blades, blue arms of greater might;
And thighs which in a fishes tail unite.

965 What boots this form? my grace with Gods of Seas?
Or that a God? if thou affect not these?

While this he spake, and would have uttered more,
Coy Scylla flies. He with impatience bore
His Loves repulse: whom strong desires transport
To great Titanian Circe's horrid Court.

OVID'S

OVID'S METAMORPHOSIS.

THE FOURTEENTH BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

*Inchanted Scylla, hem'd with horrid shapes,
Becomes a Rock ; Cercopeans turn'd to Apes.
Sibylla wears i' a Voice. Ulysses men
Transform'd to Swine, are re-transform'd agen.
Picus a Bird : his Followers Beasts. Despair
Resolves sad-singing Canens into Air.
The mates of Diomed unreconcil'd
Idalia turns to Fowl. An Olive wild
Rude Apulus deciphers. Turnus burns
Æneas ships : these Berecynthia turns
To Sea-Nymphs ; who Alcynous ship with joy
Behold a Rock. The Trojan flames destroy
Besieged Ardea ; from whose ashes springs
A meager Hern, that bears them on her wings.
Æneas Deify'd. Vertumnus tries
All shapes. Rhamnusia, for her cruelties,
Congeals proud Anaxarete to Stone,
Cold Fountains boil with heat. T' an heav'nly throne
Mars Romulus assumes. Herfilia
Like grace receives : who join in equal sway.*

NOW Glucus, thron'd in tumid fouds, had past
High Ætna, on the jaws of Typhon cast ;
Cyclopien fields, where never Oxen drew
The furrowing plough, nor ever tillage knew ;

- 5 Crookt Zancle; Rhegium on the other side;
 The wrackfull Straights, whose double bounds diuide
 Sicilia from Ausonia: forward drives
 Through spacious Tyrrhen, at length arrives
 At heroy Hills, Phæbean Circe's seat,
 10 With sundry forms of monstrous beasts repleat.
 When, mutually saluting, Glaucus said:
 O God, O Goddess, pity: on your aid
 Alone relies (if my desert might move
 So dear a grace) th' asswagement of my Love.
 For none then I, Titania, better knows
 15 The power of herbs, that was transform'd by those.
 T' inform you better, in Italia,
 Against Massena, on a sandy Bay,
 I Scylla saw: it shames me to recite
 My slighted Courtship, answered by her flight.
 20 Do thou, if charms avail, in charms untie
 Thy sacred tongue: or sovereign Herbs apply,
 If of more power. Yet I affect no cure,
 Nor end of Love: like heat let her endure.
 25 But Circe (none to such desires more prone,
 Or that the cause is in her self alone;
 Or stung by Venus angry influence,
 In that her Father publisht her offence)
 Repli'd: The willing with more ease pursue;
 Who with the same, whom equal flames subdue;
 30 For thou O well deserv'st to be pursu'd:
 Give hope, and, credit me, thou shalt be woo'd.
 Rest therefore of thy beauty confident;
 Lo I, a Goddess, radiant Sol's descent:
 In herbs so potent, and no less in charms;
 Proffer my self, and pleasures to thy arms.
 35 Scorn her that scorns thee; her that seeks, pursue:
 And so at once be thou reveng'd of two.
 Glaucus repli'd to her who sought him so:
 First shady groves shall on the billows grow,
 And Sea-weeds to the mountain tops remove;
 E're I (and Scylla living) change my love.
 40 The Goddess frets: who since she neither could Destroy a Deity, nor, loving, would;
 Oh her, prefer'd before her, bends her ire:
 And high incens'd with repulst desire,
 Forthwith infectious drugs of dire effects
 Together grinds, and Hecat's charms injects:

- 45 A Sea-green robe puts on, the Court forsakes
 Through throngs of fawning beasts : her journey takes
 To Rhegium opposite to Zancle's shoar ;
 And treads the troubled waves that loudly roar.
 50 Running with unwet feet on that Profound ;
 As if sh' had trod upon the solid ground.
 A little Bay, by Scylla haunted, lies
 Bent like a Bow ; scost from the Seas and Skies
 Distemper, when the high-pitcht Sun invades
 55 The world with hottest beams, and shortest shades ;
 This with portentous poisons she pollutes ;
 Besprinkled with the juice of wicked roots :
 In words dark and perplexed nine times thrice
 Inchantments mutters with her magick voice.
 Now Scylla came ; and, wading to the wast,
 60 Beheld her lips with barking dogs imbrac't.
 Starts back : at first not thinking that they were
 Part of her self, but rates them, and doth fear
 Their threatning jaws : but those from whom she flies,
 She with her hailes. Then looking for her thighs,
 Her legs, and feet ; in stead of them she found
 65 The mouths of Cerberus environ'd round
 With rav'n'ing Currs : the backs of salvage beasts
 Support her groin ; whereon her belly rests.
 Kind Glaucus wept ; and Circe's bed refus'd :
 Who had so cruelly her Art abus'd.
 70 But Scylla, still remaining, Circe hates ;
 Who for that cause destroy'd Ulysses mates.
 And had the Trojan navy drown'd of late,
 If not before transform'd by powerfull Fate,
 Into a Rock : the stony Prodigy
 Yet eminent, from which the Sea-men fly.
 75 This, and Charybdis past with stretched oars ;
 The Trojan fleet now near th' Ausonian shoars,
 Cross winds, and violent, to Libya drave.
 There, in her heart, and palace, Dido gave
Aeneas harbour : with impatience bears
 Her husbands flight : forthwith a Pile she rears,
 80 Pretending sacrifice ; and then doth fall
 Upon his Sword : deceiv'd, deceiving all.
 Flying from Carthage, Eryx he regain'd ;
 There where his faithfull friend Acestes reign'd.
 His fathers funerals he re-solemniz'd,
 He puts to Sea, with ships well-nigh surpriz'd

- By Iris flames Hippotades, Command,
 The Sulphur-fuming Isles, the rocky Strand
 Of Acheloian Syrens leaving, lost
 His Pilot : to Inarime then crost,
 To Prochyta, and Pithecuſa, wall'd
 90 With barren hills : ſo of her people call'd.
 For Jupiter, deteſting much the lye
 And fraudulent Cercopians perjury,
 Into deformed beaſts transform'd them then ;
 Although unlike, appearing like to men :
 95 Contracts their limbs, their noſes from their brows
 He flats, their faces with old wrinkles plows ;
 And, covering them with yellow hair, affords
 This dwelling ; firſt depriving them of words,
 So much abus'd to perjury and wrongs :
 100 Who jabber, and complain with ſtammering tongues.
 Then on the right-hand left Parthenope,
Miſenos on the left, far-ſtretcht in Sea,
 So named of his Trumpeter : thence, paſt
 By ſlimy Marſhes, and anchor caſt
 At Cuma ; entring long-lov'd Sibyls Caves.
 105 A paſſage through obſcure Avernus craves
 T' his Father Minos. She erects his eyes,
 Long fixt on earth, and with the Deities
 Reception fill'd, in ſacred rage repli'd :
 Great things thou ſeekeſt, O thou ſo magnify'd
 For mighty deeds ! thy piety through flame,
 Thy arm through Armies conſecrate thy name.
 110 Yet fear not, Trojan, thy deſires enjoy :
 T' Elyſian Fields, th' infernal Monarchy,
 And Fathers ſhade, I will thy perſon guide :
 No way to noble Vertue is deni'd.
 Then to a golden bough directs his view,
 Which in Avernian Juno's Hort-yard grew :
 115 And bad him pull it from the ſacred tree.
Aeneas her obeys : and now doth ſee
 The ſpoils of dreadful Hell ; his Grand-fires, loſt
 In death, and great Anchiſes aged Gholt :
 There knows the cuſtoms of the Lavian State ;
 The toil of future war, and following fate.
 120 Ther, in retreat, his weary ſtep appli'd :
 And by diſcourſe with his Cumean Guide
 His toil bequiles ; as in that horrid way,
 Through gloomy twy-light, he re-mounts to Day.

- Whether, said he, thou bee'st a Deity,
 Or of the Gods below'd; for ever I
 125 Will serve thee as a Goddess: and confess
 That by thy favour I have won access
 Unto th' abodes of death; that by thee I
 Escape from his infernal Monarchy.
 And therefore will, when I to day return,
 A Temple build, and incense to thee burn.
 The Prophetess on him reverts her eye;
 130 And sighing, said; I am no Deity:
 To mortals offer no immortal Dues:
 Lest ignorancethy gratitude abuse.
 Yet had been free from deaths impetuous power,
 Had I to Phæbus given my virgin flower.
 While hopefull; tempting me with gifts, he said,
 135 Ask what thou wilt, my fair Cumean Maid,
 And take thy wish: I threw'd a heap of sand;
 And wistht as many birth-daies as my hand
 Contained grains: forgot to add the prime
 Of youthfull years, which should have crown'd my time.
 140 Who this had granted, also, if my bed
 He could have won. His gifts despis'd; I led
 A single life, those happy times are gone;
 And crasie age with trembling steps come on.
 Seven ages have I liv'd, and live I must
 145 Till years have equalled those grains of dust.
 Three hundred Harvests consummate the sum,
 Three hundred Vintages. The time will come,
 When length of daies my body shall abate,
 And little leave in quantity or weight.
 None then will think that I below'd had been,
 150 Or pleas'd a God. He, by whom all is seen,
 (Such change shall I endure) or will not know,
 Or else deny, that he had lov'd me so.
 No eye shall see me: yet a voice alone
 Fate will afford, by which I shall be known.
 Thus Sibyl, as they climb'd that steep ascent.
 155 Pious Aeneas through this Stygian vent
 At Cuma rose: and sacrificing came
 To shoars since called of his Nurses name.
Neritiam, Macareus, the friend
 Of Ithacus did here his travels end.
 Who knowing Achamenides, of late
 160 On Aeneas left, admires to see his mate

Long given for dead. What chance, or God, said he,
O Achæmenides, hath set thee free?

How comes a Græcian souldier to be found
In Trojan vessel? for what Countrey bound?

165 When Achæmenides: (not now forlorn,
Now like himself, his rags not pin'd with thorn)
May I fell Polyphemie behold again,
Whose jaws o're-flow with bloud of strangers slain;
If I this home prefer not far above
Ulysses ship, or less Æneas love

170 Then my own father, could I render more
Then all my All, the recompence were poor.
That now I speak, I breath, Heaven, Sun-shine see
(Can I unmindfull or ungratefull be)
Is by his bounty; that the Cyclops foul
And hungry maw had not devour'd my soul:

175 That now I may be buried when I die;
Or at the least, not in his entrails lie.
O what a heart had I! with fear bereft
Of soul and sense! when I behind was left,
And saw your flight! I had an Out-crie made,

180 But that afraid to have my self betray'd.
Yours, almost had Ulysses ship destroy'd:
I saw him rive out of the mountains side
A solid rock, and dart it on the Main:
I saw the furious Giant once again,
When mighty stones with monstrous strength he flung:
Like quarries by a warlike engine flung.

185 Lest ship should sink with waves and stones I fear:
Not then remembering, that I was not there.
He, when your flight had rescu'd you from death,
O're Æna paces; fighting clouds of breath:
And groping in the woods, bereft of sight,

190 Encounters jutting rocks: mad with despight
Extends his bloody arm: to under waves,
The Greeks pursues with curses; and thus raves.

O would some God Ulysses would ingage,
Or some of his, to my insatiate rage!
I'd gnaw his heart, his living members rend,
195 Gulp down his bloud till it again ascend,
And crash his panting sinews. O, how light
A loss, or none, were then my loss of sight!

This spake, and more, my joints pale horror shook,
To see his grim, and slaughter-smear'd look,

- 200 His bloody hands, his eyes desert'd seat,
 Vast limbs, and beard with humane gore concreet.
 Death stood before mine eyes (my least dismay :)
 Now thought my self surpriz'd ; now, that I lay
 Drown'd in his paunch. That time presents my view,
 205 When two of ours on dashing stones he threw :
 Then on them like a shagged Lion lies :
 Their entrails, flesh, yet moving arteries,
 White marrow, with crasht bones, at once devours,
 210 I, sad, and bloudless stood : fear chil'd my powers,
 Seeing him eat, and cast the horrid food ;
 Raw lumps of flesh, wine mixt with clotted blood.
 Even such a fate my wretched thoughts propound.
 Long lying hid, afraid of every sound,
 215 Abhorring death, yet coveting to die ;
 With mast, and herbs repelling famine ; I,
 Forlorn, to death and torment left, at last
 This ship espi'd : and wasting it, in haste
 Ran to the shore, nor safety vainly seek :
 220 A Trojan vessel entertain'd a Greek.
 Now, worthy friend, your own adventures tell ;
 And what, since first you put to sea, befell.
 He told how Æolus reign'd in Thuscan Seas,
 Storm fettering Acolus Hippodates,
 Who nobly gave to their Dulichian Guide
 225 A wind, inclosed in an Oxeshide.
 Nine daies they sail'd with successfull gales ;
 Sought shores descri'd : the tenth had blancht their sails
 When greedy Sailors, thinking to have found
 230 A mass of envi'd gold, the wind unbound.
 This through rough seas the Navy backward drive,
 Which at th' Æolian port again arrives
 To Lestrigonian Lamus ancient town.
 From thence, said he, we came. That Coutreys crown
Antiphates then wore. Three thither sent,
 235 Two of us scarce by flight our death prevent :
 Th' third the Lestrigonians teeth embru'd
 With his hot gore. Antiphates pursu'd
 Our flights ; incites his troops ; who tumbling down
 240 Huge stones and trees, our men and vessels drown :
 One scap't ; which us, and sad Ulysses bore.
 Jointly our lost companions we deplore ;
 And grieving reach that Sea-environ'd land,
 Which far from hence you see : Still may it stand

- 245 Far from my sight ! beware thou Goddess Son,
Just Trojan Prince, for now the wars are done,
With them for ever and our enmity,
From Circes Mansion, O Aeneas flee.
There anchoring ; mindfull of the Cyclops strand,
250 And fell Antiphates, we fear to land.
But casting lots, the lot elected us,
Faithfull Polites, sage Eurylochus,
Elpenor prone to wine, and eighteen more
To visit Circe on that unknown shore..
Approaching, we before the Portal staid,
255 A thousand Lions, Bears, and Wolves invade
Our hearts with fear, which needed not, for they
Instead of teeth their flattering tails display,
And fawning follow ; till their hand-maids came 260 And led us through that Marble-cover'd frame
Unto their Mistresses. On a throne of State,
She in a sumptuous inward chamber sate :
With gold her under garment richly thone ;
And over it a purple Mantle thrown,
Nereides, and Nymphs, nor carded wool,
265 Nor following twine with busie fingers pull :
But weeds dispose in order ; mingled flowers
Select in maunds, and herbs of different powers,
At her direction : who the vertue knew
Of every simple, of their compounds too ;
270 And gives them their due weight. Saluted, she Salutes again ; nor chearfull looks as free,
As her full bounty to supply our need
Who bids her ready damsels mix with speed
The pulp of Barley, Honey, Curds, strong wines ;
275 And to this sweet receipt hid juices joins :
Then gave the cup with her own sacred hand ;
Which thirstily we drunk, while with her wand
The direfull Goddess strokes our crowns, I shame
To tell ; yet tell ; I presently became
With bristles rough : thinking as I was wont,
280 T' have spoke, and shew'd my grief in words, I grunt.
My looks hung down, my mouth extends t' a snout,
My stiffer neck with swelling brawn sticks out ;
And go upon those hands, wherewith of late
I took the cup. With those whom frightfull fate
285 Had thus un-man'd (so great a potency
In potions lurks) included in a Sty.

Alone Eurylochus the Shape of Swine
 Avoids: alone refus'd the proffered wine.
 Which had not he rejected, with the rest
 Himself had been a bristle-bearing Beast.
 Nor should Ulysses our mis-haps have known:
 Or forced Circe to restore his own.
 Peace-bearing Hermes gave him a white flower;
 Call'd Holy by the Gods; of wonderous power,
 Sprung from a Sable root: inform'd withal
 By heavenly counsel, enters Circe's Hall.
 Proffering th' insidious Cup, her magick wand
 About to raise he thrust her from her stand;
 And with drawn sword the trembling Goddess frights.
 When vowed faith with her fair hands she plights;
 And grac'd him with her nuptial bed: who then
 Demands in dowry his transfigur'd men.
 Sprinkled with better juice, her wand reverts,
 Above our crowns, and charms with charms dispers't;
 The more she sings, we grow the more upright,
 Our bristles shed, our cloven feet unite,
 Shoulders and arms possess their former grace.
 With tears our weeping General we embrace
 And hang about his neck: nor scarce a word
 Breathes through our lips, but such as thanks afford.
 From hence our Pass was for a year deferr'd;
 In that long time much saw I, and much heard:
 Of which, a Maid (one of the four, prepar'd
 For sacred service) closely this declar'd.
 For while my Chief with Circe sports alone,
 She shew'd a young-mans Image of white stone
 Clos'd in a shrine, with crowns imbellish'd;
 Who bore a Wood-pecker upon his head.
 Demanding whose it was, why placed there,
 Why he that Bird upon his summit bare?
 I will, repli'd she, O Macareus, tell
 In this my Mistress power: observe me well.
 Saturnian Picus in Ausonia reign'd,
 Who generous horses for the battle train'd.
 His form, such as you see: whom had you known,
 You would have thought this feature were his own.
 His mind as beautifull. Nor yet could he
 Four Græcian wrastring in th' Olympicks see.
 The Dryades, in Latian mountains born,
 His looks attract: nor Nymphs of fountains scorn

- To sue for pity. Those whom Albula,
Numicus, Anio, Almo short of way,
 330 And heady Nar sustain: the shady Floud
 Of Farfarnus, the Scythian Cynthia woo'd.
 Environ'd marishes, and neighbouring Lakes.
 Yet for one onely Nymph the rest forsakes:
 Whom whilome on Mount Palatine, the fair
Venslia to the two fac'd Janus bare.
- 335 The Maid, now marriageable, honoured
Laurentian Picus with her nuptial bed.
 Her beauty admirable: yet more fam'd
 For artfull songs; and thereof Canens nam'd.
 Her voice the woods and rocks to passion moves;
 Tames salvage beasts, the troubled Rivers smooths,
 Detains their hasty course, and, when she sings,
 340 The birds neglect the labour of their wings,
 While her sweet voice cœlestial musick yields,
 Young Picus follows in Laurentian Fields,
 The salvage Bore, upon a fiery Steed;
 Arm'd with two darts: clad in a Tyrian weed
- 345 With gold close-buckled. Thither also came
 The Daughter of the Sun; who left her name
 Retaining fields, and on those fruitfull hills
 Her sacred lap with dewy Simples fills.
 Seeing unseen, his sight her sense amaz'd:
 350 The gathered herbs fell from her as she gaz'd:
 Whose bones a marrow-melting flame enclos'd:
 But when she her distraction had compos'd,
 About t' impart her wish, the following press,
 And swiftness of his horse, forbid access.
- 355 Thou shalt not so escape, said she, although
 The winds should wing thee; if my self I know,
 If herbs retain their power, if charms at least
 My trust deceive not. Then creates a Beast
 Without a body, bid to run before
- 360 The King's pursuit; and made the airy Bore
 To take a thicker, where no horse could force
 His barr'd access. He leaves his foaming horse
 On foot to follow a deceitfull Shade.
 With equal hopes: and through the forest straid.
- 365 New Vows she straight conceiveth, aid implores:
 And Gods unknown with unknown charms adores.
 Wherewith inur'd t' eclipse the pale-fac't Moon:
 And cloud her Father's splendour at high Noon,

And now with pitchy fogs obscures the day,
 370 From earth exhal'd. His Guard mistake their way,
 In that deceitfull Night, and from him strai'd.

When she, the time and place besitting, said :

By those fair eyes, which have intrall'd mine ;
 And by that all alluring face of thine,
 Which makes a Goddess sue ; assuage the fire
 By thee incens'd ; and take unto thy Sire
 375 The all-illuminating Sun : nor prove
 Hard-hearted to Titanian Circes love.

Her, and her prayers, despis'd. What e're thou art,
 I am not thine, said he, my captive heart
 Another holds ; and may she hold it long,
 380 Nor with a stranger will I ever wrong
 Our nuptial faith, so long as Nature gives
 Life to my veins, and Janus daughter lives.

Titania, tempting oft, as oft in vain ;
 Thou shalt not scape my vengeance, nor again
 Return to Canens. What the wrong'd can do,
 A wronged Lover, and a Woman too,
 Thou shalt, said she, by sad experience prove :
 385 For I a woman, wrong'd, and wrong'd in love.

Twice turns she to the East, twice to the West :
 Thrice toucht him with her wand, three charms exprest,
 He flies ; at his unwonted speed admir'd ;
 Then saw the feathers, which his skin attir'd :
 390 Who forthwith seeks the woods ; and angry still,
 Hard Oaks assails, and wounds them with his bill.
 His wings the purple of his cloak assume :
 The gold that clasp'd his garment turns to plume,
 395 And now his neck with golden circle chains :
 Of Picus nothing but his name remains.

The Courtiers Picus call, and seek him round
 About the fields, that was not to be found.
 Yet Circe find (for now the day grew fair,
 400 The Sun and Winds set free to cleanse the air)
 And charge her with true crimes, their King demand
 With threatening looks, and weapons in their hand.
 She sprinkles them with juice of wicked might,
 From Erebus and Chaos conjures Night,
 405 With all her Gods ; and Hecate intreats,
 With tedious mumblings. Woods forsake their seats,
 Their leaves look pale ; Herbs blush with drops of gore,
 Earth groans, dogs howl, rocks hoarsly seem to roar :

Upon

- 410 Upon the tainted ground black Serpents slide ;
 And through the air unbodl'd spirits glide.
 Frighted with terrours, as they trembling stand,
 She strokes their wondering faces with her wand :
 Forthwith the shapes of salvage beasts invest
- 415 Their former forms ; not one his own possest.
Phæbus now entring the Tartessian Main,
 Sad Canens with her eyes and Soul, in vain
 Expects her Spouse : Her servants she excites
 To run about the woods with blazing lights.
- 420 Who not content to weep, to tear her hair,
 And beat her breasts (though these express her care)
 In haste forsakes her roof ; and frantick, strays
 Through broad-spread fields. Six nights, as many daies
 Without or sleep, or sustenance, she fled
- 425 O're hills and dales, the way which fortune led.
 Now tir'd with grief and travel, Tyber last
 Beheld the Nymph : on his cool banks she cast
 Her feeble limbs : there weeps, and weeping sung
 Her sorrows with a softly warbling tongue.
- 430 Even so the dying Swan with low-raisd breath,
 Sings her own exequies before her death.
 At length her marrow melts with griefs despair :
 And by degrees she vanisheth to air.
 Yet still the place doth memorize her fame :
 Which of the Nymph the Rurals Canens name.
- 435 In that long year, much, and such deeds as these
 I saw and heard. Un-nerv'd with slothfull ease,
 Again we put to Sea : by Circe told
 Of our hard passage, and the manifold
 Disasters to ensue, I grew afraid
- 440 (I must confess) and here arriving, staid.
Macareus ends. Cajeta Urn inclos'd,
 This verse had on her marble tomb impos'd.
 Here, with due fires, my pious Nurse-child me
Cajeta burnt ; from Grecian fires set free.
- 445 They loose their cables from the grassie strand :
 Avoiding Circe's guilefull palace, stand
 For those tall groves, where Tyber, dark with shades,
 In Tyrrhen Seas his sandy streams unlades.
 The throne of Faunus son, the Latian star
Lavinia gains ; but not without a war.
- 450 War with a furious Nation is commenc'd :
 Stern Turnus for his promis'd wife incens'd :

While all Hetruria to Latium swarms;
 Hard victory long fought with pensive arms,
 To get Recruits from foreign States they try :
 455 Nor Trojans, nor Rutulians want supply.
 Nor to Evander town Aeneas went
 In vain : though vainly Venulus was sent
 To banisht Diomed's City, late immur'd :
 Those fields Japygian Daunus had assur'd
 To him in dowry. When Venulus had done
 460 His ambassie to Tydeus warlike son :
 The Prince excus'd his aid : as loth to draw
 The subjects of his aged father-in-law
 T' unnecessary war : that none remain
 Of his to arm. Left you should think I feign ;
 465 Though repetition Sorrow renovates ;
 Yet, while I suffer, hear the worst of fates.
 After that Pergamus our prey became,
 And lofty Ilium fed the Grecian flame,
 A Virgin, for a Virgins rape, let fall
 Her vengeance, to Oleius due, on all.
 470 Scattered on faithless Seas with furious storms,
 We, wretched Grecians, suffer'd all the forms
 Of horror : lightning, night, show'rs, wrath of skies,
 Of Seas, and dire Capharean cruelties.
 T' abridge the story of so sad a fate ;
 Now Priam would have pitied our estate.
 475 Yet Pallas snatcht me from the swallowing Main ;
 Then from my ungratefull Country chas'd again.
 For Venus, mindfull of her ancient wound,
 New woes inflicts. Much on the vast Profound,
 Much suffering in terrestrial conflicts I
 480 Oft call'd them happy, whom the injury
 Of publick tempests, and the harbourless
Caphareus drown'd : envi'd in our distress
 The worst endur'd ; with Seas and battels tir'd,
 My men an end of their long toil desir'd.
 485 But Acmon, full of fire, and fiercer made
 By usual slaughters : What remains (he said)
 O mates, which now our patience would eschew ?
 Though willing, what can Cytharea do
 More then sh^h hath done ? when worse mis-haps affright,
 Then prayers avail : but when mis-fortunes spight
 Her worst inflicts, then fear is of no use :
 490 And height of ill security produce.

Let.

Let Venus hear : although she hate us all
 (As all she hates that serve our General)
 Yet let us all despise her empty hate ;
 Whose Power hath made us so unfortunate.

Pleuronion Acmon angry Venus stung :

- 495 Revenge reviving with his lavish tongue.
 Few like his words : the most severely chid
 His tongues excess. About to have repli'd,
 His speech, and path of speech, at once grew small,
 His hair converts to plume ; plumes cover all
 500 His neck, back, bosom : larger feathers spring
 From his rough arm, his arm was now a wing.
 His feet divide to toes, hard horn extends
 From his chang'd face, and in a bill descends.
Rhetenor, Nyctew, Lycus, Abas, Ide,
 505 Admire ! and in their admiration tri'd
 Like destiny. Most of my Souldiers grew
 Forthwith new Fowl ; and round about us flew.
 If you inquire, what shape their own un-mans ;
 They are not, yet are like to silver Swans.
 510 These barren fields , with this poor remnant, I,
 As son-in-law to Daurus, scarce enjoy.
 Thus far Oenides. Venus forsakes
*Tydid*es Kingdom ; by Puteoli takes
 His way, and through Mesapia : there survey'd
 A Cave, environ'd with a sylvan shade,
 515 Distilling streams, by half-goat Pan posselt :
 Which erst the Wood-nymphs with their beauties blest.
 They terrifi'd at first with sudden dread,
 From home-bred Apulus, the shepherd, fled :
 Straight, taking heart, despised his pursuit :
 520 And danced with a measure-keeping foot.
 He scoffs : their motion clown-like imitates :
 Nor onely railleth, but obscenely prates ;
 Nor ceaseth till a tree invests his throat.
 A tree whose berries his behaviour note.
 525 An Olive wild, which bitter fruit affords,
 Becomes dis-learned with his bitter words.
 Th' Embassadour returns without the sought
Aetolian succours : the Rutulians fought
 'Gainst foes and fortune ; of that hope depriv'd :
 Whole streams of blood from mutual wounds deriv'd.
 530 Lo, fire-brands to the Navy Turnus bears :
 And what escaped drowning, burning fears.

Pitch, Rozen, and like ready food for fire,
Now Vulcan feed : the hungry flames aspire
Up to the Sails along the lofty mast ;
And catch the yards, with curling smoke imbrac't.
But when the Mother of the Gods beheld
35 Those blazing Pines, from top of Ida fell'd :
Loud Shalms and Cymbals usher'd her repair :
Who, drawn by bridled Lions through the air,
Thus said : Thy wicked hands to small effect,
40 O Turnus, violate what we protect.
Nor shall the greedy fire a part of those
Tall woods devour, which sheltered our repose.
With that she thunders, pouring down amain
Thick storms of skipping hail, and clouds of rain.
45 Th' Astreaan Sons in swift concursions join ;
Tossing the troubled air, and Neptune's brine.
One she imploies, whose speed the rest out-strips ;
That brake the Cables of the Phrygian Ships,
And drave them under the high-swelling Flood.
The timber softens, flesh proceeds from wood,
50 The crooked Stern to heads and faces grows,
The Oars to swimming legs, fine feet, and toes ;
What were their holds, to slender sides are grown,
The lengthfull keel presenting the back-bone ;
The yards to arms, to hair the tackling grew :
55 As formerly, so now, their colour blue.
And they, but lately of their floods afraid ;
Now in the floods, with Virgin pastime, plai'd.
These Sea-Nymphs, born on mountains, celebrate
The Seas, forgetfull of their former state.
Yet weighing, what themselves so oft endur'd
60 On high-wrought waves, oft sinking ships secur'd ;
Excepting such, as Grecians carry : those
They hate, yet mindfull of the Trojan woes.
Who saw Ulysses ships in surges quell'd
With pleased eyes ; with pleased eyes beheld
Alcinous ship, in swiftness next to none,
65 Unmoveable ; the wood transform'd to stone.
'Twas thought this wondrous prodigy wou'd fright-
The Rutuli, and make them cease from fight.
Both parts perlist, both have their Gods to friend ;
And Valour no less potent : nor contend
70 Now for Lavinia, for Latinus crown,
Nor dotal Kingdom ; but for fair renown :

Asham'd to lay their bruised arms aside,
 Till death to conquest had the quarrel tri'd.
Venus her son victorious sees at length,
 Great Turnus fell; strong Ardea falls, of strength
 While Turnus stood, devour'd by barbarous flame;
 In dying cinders buried. From the same

575 A Fowl, unknown to former ages, springs;
 And fans the ashes with her hovering wings.
 Pale colour, leanness, shrieking sounds of woe,
 The image of a captive City show.

Who also still the Cities name retains :

580 And with self-beating wings of Fate complains.

And now Aeneas vertues terminate
 The wrath of Gods, and Juno's ancient hate.

An opulent foundation having laid
 For young Iulus, by his merit made

585 Now fit for Heaven : the Power, who rules in Love,
 The Gods solicits ; then, imbracing Jove :

O Father, never yet to me unkind ;
 Now O enlarge the bounty of thy mind.

A Deity, mean, so it a Deity be,
Aeneas give ; that art to him by me

590 A Grand-father : th' unamiable realms ;
 Suffice it once t' have seen, and Stygian streams.

The Gods agree ; nor Juno's looks dissent,
 Who with a chearfull freeness forward bent.

Then Jove ; He well deserves a Deity :
 Thy sute, fair Daughter, to thy will enjoy.

595 She, joyfull, thanks returns : and through the air,
 Drawn by her yoked Doves, lights on the bare
Laurentian shores ; where smooth Numicius creeps
 Through whisp'ring reeds into the neighbour Deep.

600 Who bids him from Aeneas walk away
 All unto death obnoxious, and convey
 It silently to Seas. The horned Floud
 Obeys ; and what subsists by mortal food,
 With water purg'd, and onely left behind
 His better parts. His mother the refin'd

605 Anoints with sacred Odours, and his lips
 In Nectar, mingled with Ambrosia, dips ;
 So deify'd : whom Indiges Rome calls ;
 Honour'd with altars, shrines, and festivals.

Two nam'd Ascanius Latium then obey'd,
 610 And Alba : next, the Scepter Sylvius sway'd.

His Son Latinus held that ancient name,
 And crown. Him Epitus, renown'd by Fame,
 Succeeds. Then Capit. Capetus, his Son
 Succeeded him. Next Tiberine begun
 615 His reign; who, drown'd in Thuscan waters, gave,
 Those streams his name: Who Remulus got, and brave
 Soul'd Acrota. But Remulus was slain
 With thunder; Who the Thunderer durst feign.
 More moderate Acrota resign'd his throne
 620 To Aventine, upon the Mount whereon
 He reign'd, intomb'd; which yet his name retains,
 Over the Palatines next Procas reigns.
Pomona flourish'd in those times of ease:
 Of all the Latian Hemadryades,
 None fruitfull Hort-yards held in more repute;
 625 Or took more care to propagate their fruit.
 Whereof so nam'd. Nor streams, nor shady groves,
 But trees producing generous burthens loves.
 Her hand an hook, and not a javelin bare:
 Now prunes luxurious twigs, and boughs that dare
 630 Transcend their bounds: now slits the bark, the bud
 Inserts; inforc'd to nurse anothers brood.
 Nor suffers them to suffer thirst, but brings
 To moisture-sucking roots, soft-sliding Springs.
 Such her delight, her care. No thoughts extend
 To loves unknown desires: yet to defend
 635 Her self from rapessull Rurals, round about
 Her Hort-yard wal's; t' avoid, and keep them out.
 What lest the skipping Satyres unassay'd;
 Rude Pan, whose horns Pine-bristled garlands shade;
Silenus, still more youthfull then his years;
 640 Or he who theeves with hook and member fears,
 To tast her sweetness; but far more then all
Vertumnus loves; yet were his hopes as small.
 How often, like a painfull Reaper, came
 Laden with weighty sheaves; and seem'd the same:
 645 Oft wreaths of new-mow'd grass his brows array,
 As though then exercis'd in making hay.
 A goad now in his hardned hands he bears,
 And newly seems to have un-yok'd his Steers.
 Oft Vines and fruit-trees with a pruning hook
 650 Corrects, and dresses; oft a Ladder took
 To gather fruit: now with his sword the God
 A Souldier seems; an Angler with his rod:

- And various figures daily multiplies
 To win access, and please his longing eyes.
 Now, with a staff, an old-wife counterfeits ;
 655 On hoary hair a painted Miter sets.
 The Hort-yard entring, he admires the fair
 And pleasant fruits : So much, said he, more rare
 Then all the Nymphs whom Albula enjoy,
 Hail spotless flower of Maiden chastity :
 660 And kist the prais'd. Nor did the Virgin know,
 (So innocent) that old-wives kist not so.
 Then, sitting on a bank, observeth how
 The pregnant boughs with Autumns burthen bow.
 Hard by, an Elm with purple clusters shin'd :
 This praising, with the vine so closely join'd :
 665 Yet, saith he, if this Elm should grow alone,
 Except for shade, it would be priz'd by none :
 And so this Vine, in amorous foldings wound,
 If but dis-join'd, would creep upon the ground.
 Yet art not thou by such examples led :
 670 But thun'st the pleasures of a happy bed.
 I would thou wert: not Helen was so sought,
 Nor she, for whom the lustfull Centaures sought,
 As thou shouldst be ; no nor the wife of bold
 Or cautelous Ulysses. Yet, behold
 Though thou averse to all, and all eschue ;
 675 A thousand men, Gods, Demi-gods, pursue
 The constant Scorn, and every deathless Power
 Which Alba's high and shady hills imbower.
 If thou art wise, and would'st well married be ;
 Or an old woman trust, who, credit me,
 Affects thee more then all the rest, refuse
 680 These common wooers, and Vertumnus choose.
 Accept me for his gage ; since so well none
 Can know him ; by himself not better known.
 He is no wanderer ; this his delight :
 Nor loves, like common lovers, at first sight.
 Thou art the first, so thou the last shall be :
 685 His life he onely dedicates to thee.
 Besides, his youth perpetual, excellent
 His beauty ; and all shapes can represent
 With what you will, whatever hath a name :
 Such shall you see him. Your delights, the same :
 The first-fruits of your Hort-yard are his due ;
 690 Which joyfully he still accepts from you.

But neither what these pregnant trees produce
 He now desires, nor herbs of pleasant juice :
 Nor ought, but onely You. O pity take :
 And what I speak, suppose Vertumnus spake.
 695 Revengefull Gods, Idalia, still severe
 To such as slight her, and Rhamnusia fear,
 The more to fright you from so foul a crime,
 Receive (since much I know from aged Time)
 A story, generally through Cyprus known ;
 To mollifie an heart more hard then stone.
 700 Iphis, of humble birth, by chance did view
 The high-born Anaxarete, who drew
 Her blood from Teucer. Seeing her, his eyes
 Extracts a fire, wherein his bosom fries.
 Long struggling, when no reason could reclaim
 His fury, to her house the Suppliant came.
 705 Now to her Nurse his wretched love displai'd ;
 And by her foster'd hopes implor'd her aid ;
 Now humbly sues to some of most repute
 In her affection, to prefer his sute.
 The pleading Wax his sad lines often bears,
 710 Oft Myrtle garlands, sprinkled with his tears,
 Hangs on the posts : on the hard threshold laid
 His tender sides, his sighs the doors upbraid.
 But she more cruel then the Seas, imbroil'd
 With rising storms ; more hard then Iron, boil'd
 715 In fire-red furnaces ; or rooted rocks ;
 Disdains the lover, and his passion mocks.
 Who to her froward deeds adds bitter words
 Of no less scorn ; nor hope to love affords.
 Impatient of his torment, and her hate ;
 These words his last, he utters at her gate :
 720 O Anaxarete, thou hast o're-come !
 Nor shall my life be longer wearisome
 To thy disdain. Triumph, O too unkind !
 Sing Pæans, and thy brows with Laurel bind !
 Thou hast o're-come ; lo, willingly I die :
 Proceed, and celebrate thy cruel joy.
 Yet is there something in me, ne'retheless,
 725 That thou wilt praise ; and my deserts confess.
 Think how my love and life together left
 My breast : at once of two clear lights bereft.
 Nor rumour, but even I will death present
 730 In such a form, as shall thy pride content ;

But O you Gods, if you our actions see,
(This onely I implore) remember me !

Let after-ages celebrate my name :

And what you take from life, afford to fame.

Then heaves his meagre arms and watry eyes

735 To those known posts, oft crown'd with wreaths, and ties

An halter to the top. Such wreaths, he said,

Best please ; hard-hearted, and inhumane Maid !

Then, turning toward her, he forward sprung :

740 When by the neck th' unhappy Lover hung :

Struck by his sprawling feet, wide open fly

The sounding doors ; and that sad deed descry.

The servants shriek ; the Vainly-raised bore

T' his mothers house ; his father dead before.

745 His breathless corps she in her bosom plac'd ;

And in her arms his heatless limbs imbrac'd.

Lamenting long, as wofull parents use ;

And having paid a wofull mothers dues ;

The mournfull Funeral through the City led :

And to prepared fires conveys the dead.

This sorrowfull Procession passing by

750 Her house, which bordered on the way, their cry

To th' ears of Anaxarete arrives :

Whom now stern Nemesis to ruine drives.

Wee'l see, said she, these sad solemnities :

And forthwith to the lofty window hies.

755 Whence, seeing Iphis on his fatal bed,

Her eyes grew stiff ; bloud from her visage fled,

Usurpt by paleness. Striving to retire,

Her feet stuck fast ; nor could to her desire

Divert her looks ; the hardness of her heart

760 It self dilated into every part.

This Salamis yet keeps, to clear your doubt,

In Venus Temple ; call'd, the Looker-out.

Inform'd by this, O lovely Nymph, decline

Thy former pride, and to thy Lover join.

765 So may thy growing fruits survive the frost :

Nor ripening by the rapefull winds be lost.

When this the God, who can all shapes indue,

Had said in vain : again himself he grew :

Th' habiliments of heatless age depos'd,

And such himself unto the Nymph disclos'd,

770 As when the Sun, subduing with his rays

The muffing clouds, his golden brow displays.

The Fourteenth Book.

Who force prepares: of force there was no need;
Struck with his beauty, mutually, they bleed.

Unjust Amulius, next th' Ausonian State
By strength usurpt. The Nephews to the late
Deposed Numitor, him re-inthroned;
Who Rome, in Fales Feasts, immur'd with stone.
Now Tatius leads the Sabine Sires to war.

Tarpein's hands her fathers gates unbar,
To death with armlets prest; her treasons meed,
The Sabine Sires like silent Wolves proceed
T' invade their sleeping sons, and seek to seize
Upon their gates; barr'd by Iliades.

One Juno opens: though no noise at all
The hinges made; yet by the bars loud fall
To Venus known: who this had shut; but knew
That Gods may not, what Gods have done, undo.
Ausonian Nymphs the places bordering
To Janus held, inclosed with a Spring
Their aid sh' implores. The Nymphs could not deny

A sute so just, but all their floods untie.
As yet the Fane of Janus open stood:
Nor was their way impeached by the flood:
Beneath the fruitfull Spring they Sulphur turn;
Whose hollow veins with black Bitumen burn.

With these the vapours penetrate below;
And waters, late as cold as Alpin snow,
The fire it self in fervour dare provoke;
Now both the posts with flagrant moisture smoke.
These new-raisd streams the Sabine Power exclude,

Till Mirs his Souldiers had their arms indu'd.
By Romulus then in battalia led:
The Roman fields the slaughtered Sabines spread;
Their own the Romans: Fathers, Sons-in-law,
With wicked steel, blood from each other draw.

At length conclude a peace; nor would contend
Unto the last. Two Kings one throne ascend
With equal rule. But noble Tatius slain,
Both Nations under Romulus remain.

When Mars laid by his shining cask; and then
Thus spake unto the Sire of Gods, and men:

Now, Father, is the time (since Rome is grown
To such a greatness, and depends on One)
To put in act thy never-failing word;
And Romulus, an heavenly throne afford:

METAMORPHOSIS.

ou, in a Synod of the Gods, profess
 5 (Which still I carry in my thankfull-breast)
 That one of mine (this O now ratifie!)
 Should be advanc'd unto the starry sky.

Jove condescends : with clouds the day benights;
 And with flame-winged thunder earth affrights.

820 Mars, at the sign of his assumption,
 Leans on his Lance, and strongly vaults upon
 His bloudy chariot; lashes his hot horses
 With sounding whips, and their full speed inforces;
 Who, scouring down the airy region, strai'd
 On fair mount Palatine, obscur'd with shade:

825 There Romulus assumeth from his throne,
 Rendring not King-like justice to his own.
 Rapt through the air, his mortal members wast,
 Like melting bullets from a Slinger cast:
 More heavenly fair, more fit for lofty shrines;
 Our great an' scarlet rob'd Quirinus shines.

830 Then Juno to the said Herfelia
 (Lost in her sorrow) by a crooked way
 Sent Iris to deliver this Command:
 Star of the Latian, of the Sabine Land;

835 Thy sexer glory: worthy then, the vow
 Of such an husband, of Quirinus now;
 Suppress thy tears. If thy desire to see
 Thy husband so exceed, then follow me
 Unto those woods which on mount Quirin spring;
 And shade the Temple of the Roman King.

840 Iris obeys: and by her painted Bow
 To earth descending, told Herfelia so.
 When she, scarce lifting up her modest eyes:
 O Goddess (which of all the Deities
 I know not; sure a Goddess) thou clear light
 Conduct me, O conduct me to the light

845 Of my dear Lord: which when the Fates shall shew;
 They heaven on me, with all their gifts bestow.
 Then, with Thaumasias, entring the high
Romulian Hills, a Star shot from the sky,
 Whose golden beams inflam'd Herfelia's hair:

850 When both together mount th' enlightned Air.
 The builder of the Roman City took
 Her in his arms, and forthwith chang'd her look;
 To whom the name of Ora he assign'd.
 This Goddess now is to Quirinus join'd.

OVID'S METAMORPHOSIS.

THE FIFTEENTH BOOK.

THE ARGUMENT.

*Black stones convert to White. Pythagoras
In Ilium's lingering war Euphorbas was.
Of transmigrations, of the change of things,
And strange effects, the learned Samian sings.
Recur'd Hippolytus is deify'd;
Whom sister Age, and name of Virbius hide.
Ægeria thaws into a Spring. From Earth
Prophetick Tages takes his wondrous birth.
A Spear a Tree. Grave Cippus virtues shun
The Crown, his horns present. Apollo's Son
Assumes a Serpents shape. The Soul of War,
Great Cæsar, slain, becomes a Blazing Star.*

MEan-while a man is sought that might sustain
So great a burthen, and succeed the reign
Of such a King : when true Fore-shewing
To God-like Numa destinates the same. (Fame
He, with his Sabine rites unsatisfi'd,
5 To greater things his able mind appli'd
In Nature's search. Incited with these cares,
He leaves his Countrie Cures, and repairs
To Croto's City : asks, what Grecian hand
Those walls erected on Italian Land ?
10 A Native then, in time and knowledge old,
Who much had heard and seen, this story told;

METAMORPHOSIS,

- ve's son, enrich with his Iberian prey,
 Came from the Ocean to Lacinia
 With happy steps : who, while his cattel fed
 Upon the tender clover, entered
 15 Heroick Croto's roof ; a welcom-Guest :
 And his long travel recreates with rest.
 Who said, departing ; In the following age
 A City here shall stand. A true presage.
 There was one Mycilus, Argolian
Alemon's issue : in those times, no man
 20 More by the Gods affected. He, who bears
 The dreadful Club, to him in sleep appears
 And said : Be gone, thy Countreys bounds forsake ;
 To stony Æsarns thy journey take.
 And threatens vengeance if he dis-obey.
 25 The God and sleep together flew away.
 He, rising, on the Vision meditates :
 Which in his doubtfull Soul he long debates.
 The God commands ; the Law forbids to go ;
 Death due to such as left their Countrey so.
 Clear Sol in Seas his radiant fore-head vail'd,
 30 Swart Night her brow exalts, with stars impal'd ;
 The self-same God the same command repeats :
 And greater plagues to disobedience threats.
 Afraid, he now prepares to change his own
 35 For foreign seats. This through the City blown ;
 Accus'd for breach of Laws, arraign'd, and try'd ;
 They prove the fact, not by himself deni'd.
 His hands and eyes then lifting to the sky :
 O thou, whom twice Six Labours deifie ;
 40 Assist, that art the author of my crime !
 White stones and black they us'd in former time ;
 The white acquit ; the black the pris'ner cast :
 And in such sort this heavy sentence past.
 Black stones all threw into the fatal Urn :
 But all to white, turn'd out to number, turn.
 45 Thus by Alcides power the sad Decree
 Was strangely chang'd, and Mycilus set free.
 Who, thanking Amphitryoniades,
 With a full fore-wind-croft th' Ionian Seas.
Lacedemonian Tarentum past,
 50 Fair Sybaris, Neæthus running fast
 By Salentinum, Thurin's crooked Bay,
 High Temesis, and strong Japygia :

Scarce searching all that shoars Sea-beaten bound,
The fatal mouth of Æsar out-found.

55 A Tomb, hard by, the sacred bones inclos'd
Of famous Crota : here, as erst impos'd,

Alemos son erects his City-walls :

Which of th' intomb'd he Crotona calls.

Of this Original, this City boasts :

Built by a Grecian on Italian coasts :

60 Here dwelt a Samian, who at once did flee
From Samos, Lords, and hated Tyranny ;

Preferring voluntary banishment :

Though far from heaven, his mind's divine ascent

Drew near the Gods : what Nature's self denies

To humane sight, he saw with his Souls eyes.

65 All apprehended in his ample breast,

And studious cares ; his knowledge he profess

To silent and admiring men, and taught

The Worlds original, past humane thought :

What Nature was, what God : the cause of things ;

From whence the Snow, from whence the Lightning

70 Whether Jove thunder, or the winds, that take (springs ;

The breaking Clouds : what caus'd the Earth to quake ;

What course the Stars observ'd ; what-e're lay hid

From vulgar sense : and first of all forbid

With slaughtred creatures to defile our boards :

In such, though unbeliev'd, yet learned Words.

75 Forbear your selves, O Mortals, to pollute

With wicked food : fields smile with corn, ripe fruit

Weights down their boughs : plump grapes their vines at-

There are sweet herbs, and savory roots, which fire (tires ;

May mollifie ; milk, honey redolent

80 With flowers of thyme, thy palate to content :

The prodigal Earth abounds with gentle food ;

Affording banquets without death or blood.

Bruit beasts with flesh their rav'nous hunger cloy ;

And yet not all ; in pastures horses joy :

So flocks and herds. But those whom Nature hath

85 Indu'd with cruelty, and salvage wrath

(Wolves, Bears, Armenian Tigers, Lions) in

Hot blood delight. How horrible a Sin,

That intrails bleeding intrails should intomb !

That greedy flesh, by flesh should fat become !

90 While by one creatures death another lives !

Of all, which Earth, our wealthy mother, gives :

- Can nothing please, unless thy teeth thou imbrue
 In wounds, and dire Cyclopean fate renew?
 Nor satiate the greedy luxury
- 95 Of thy rude punch, except another die:
 But that old Age; that innocent estate,
 Which we the Golden call; was fortunate
 In herbs, and fruits, her lips with bloud undi'd.
 Then Fowl through air their wings in safety pli'd;
- 100 The Hare, then fearless, wandred o're the plain;
 Nor Fish by their credulity were ta'ne.
 Not trecherous, nor fearing trechery,
 All liv'd secure. When he, who did envy
 (What God so'ere it was) those harmless cates,
- 105 And cramb'd his guts with flesh; set ope the gates
 To cruel Crimes, First, Slaughter without harm
 (I must confess) to Piety, did warm
 (Which might suffice) the reeking steel in bloud
 Of salvage Beasts, which made our lives their food:
- 110 Though kill'd; not to be eaten. Sin now more
 Audacious; the first sacrifice, the Boar
 Was thought to merit death; who bladed corn
 Up-rooting, left the husbandman forlorn.
 Vine-brouzing Goats at Bacchus altar slain,
- 115 Fed his revenge: in both, their guilt their bane.
 You sheep, what ill did you? a gentle beast,
 Whose udders swell with Nectar, born t' invest
 Exposed man with your soft wool: and are Alive, then dead, more profitable far.
- 120 Or what the Ox? a creature without guile,
 So innocent, so simple; born for toil.
 He most ungratefull is, deserving ill
 The gift of corn; that can un-yoke, then kill
 His painfull Hind: that neck with ax to wound.
- 125 In service gall'd, that had the stubborn ground
 So often till'd; so many crops brought in.
 Yet not content therewith, t' ascribe the sin
 To guiltless Gods: as if the Powers on high
 In death of labour-bearing Oxen joy.
- 130 A spotless sacrifice, fair to behold,
 ('Tis death to please) with ribbands trickt, and gold,
 Stands at the altar, hearing prayers unknown!
 And sees the meal upon his fore-head thrown,
 Gor by his toil: the knife smear'd in his gore,
- 135 By fortune in the Layer seen before.

- The entrails, from the panting body rent,
 Forthwith they search, to know the Gods intent.
 Whence springs so dire an appetite in man
 To interdicted food? O mortals, can,
 Or dare you feed on flesh? henceforth forbear,
 140 I you intreat, and to my words give ear:
 When limbs of slaughtered Beeves become your meat;
 Then think, and know, that you your servants eat.
Phœbus inspires; his Spirit we obey:
 My Delphos, heaven it self, I will display;
 145 The Oracle of that great Power unfold:
 And sing what long lay hid; what none of old
 Could apprehend. I long to walk among
 The lofty stars: dull earth despis'd, I long
 To back the clouds; to sit on Atlas crown:
 150 And from that height on erring men look down
 That reason want: those thus to animate
 That fear to die; I' unfold the book of Fate:
 O you, whom horrors of cold death affright;
 Why fear you Sisyx, vain names, and endless Night;
 155 The dreams of Poets, and feign'd miseries
 Of forged Hell? Whether last flames surprize,
 Or Age devour your bodies; they nor grieve,
 Nor suffer pains. Our Souls for ever live:
 Yet evermore their ancient houses leave
 To live in new; which them, as Guests, receive.
 160 In Trojan wars, (I do remember well)
Euphorbus was Panthous son; and fell:
 By Menelaws Lance: my shield again
 At Argos late I saw, in Juno's Fane.
 165 All altar, nothing finally decays:
 Hither and thither still the Spirit strays;
 Guest to all Bodies: out of beasts it flies
 To men, from men to beasts; and never dies.
 As pliant wax each new impression takes;
 170 Fixt to no form, but still the old forsakes;
 Yet it the same: so souls the same abide,
 Though various figures their reception hide.
 Then lest thy greedy belly should destroy
 (I prophesie) depressed Piety,
 Forbear! expulse thy kindreds Ghosts with food:
 175 By death procur'd, nor nourish bloud with bloud.
 Since on so vast a Sea, my Sails uncurl'd,
 And stretcht to rising winds; in all the World

- There's nothing permanent ; all ebb and flow :
 Each image form'd to wander to and fro.
 Even time, with restless motion slides away
- 180 Like living streams : nor can swift Rivers stay,
 Nor light-heel'd Hours. As billow billow drives,
 Driven by the following ; as the next arrives
 To chase the former : times so flie, pursue
 At once each other ; and are ever new :
 What was before, is not ; what was not, is :
- 185 All in a moment change from that to this.
 See, how the Night on Light extends her shades :
 See, how the Light the gloomy Night invades.
 Nor such Heav'n's hue, when Midnight crowns repose,
 As when bright Lucifer his taper shows :
- 190 Yet changing, when the Harbinger of Day
 Th' enlightned World resigns to Phæbus sway.
 His raised Shield, Earth's shadow scarcely fled,
 Looks ruddy ; and low-sinking, looks as red,
 Yet bright at Noon ; because that purer skie
 195 Doth far from Earth, and her contagion flie.
 Nor can Night-wandering Dian's wavering light
 Be ever equal, or the same : this night
 Less then the following, if her horns she fill ;
 If she contract her Circle, greater still.
- 200 Doth not the image of our age appear
 In the successive quarters of the year ?
 The Spring-tide, tender-sucking infancy
 Resembling : then the juicefull blade sprouts high ;
 Though tender, weak ; yet hope to plough-men yields:
 All things then flourish : flowers the gaudy fields
- 205 With colours paint : no virtue yet in leaves.
 Then following Summer greater strength receives :
 A lusty Youth : no age more strength acquires,
 More fruitfull, or more burning in desires.
 Maturer Autumn, heat of Youth allay'd,
- 210 The sober mean 'twixt youth and age, more staid.
 And temperate, in Summers wane repairs :
 His reverent temples sprinkled with gray hairs.
 Then comes old Winter, void of all delight,
 With trembling steps ; his head or bald or white :
 So change our bodies without rest or stay.
- 215 What we were yesterday, nor what to day,
 Shall be to morrow. Once alone of men
 The seeds and hope ; the womb our mansion when :

- Kind Nature shew'd her cunning; not content
That our vext bodies should be longer pent
In mothers stretched intrails, forthwith bare
220 Them from that prison, to the open air.
We strengthless lie, when first of light possess;
Straight creep upon all four, much like a Beast:-
Then, staggering with weak nerves, stand by degrees,
And by some stay support our feeble knees:
225 Now, lusty, swiftly run. Our Youth then past,
And those our milder times, we pass in haste
To inevitable Age: this last devours
The former, and demolisheth their powers.
Old Milo wept when he his arms beheld,
230 Which late the strongest beast in strength excell'd,
Big, as Alcides brawns, in flaggy hide
Now hanging by slack sinews: Helen cri'd
When she beheld her wrinkles in her Glass;
And asks her self why she twice ravish't was.
Still-eating Time, and thou O envious Age,
235 All ruinate: diminish't by the rage
Of your devouring teeth. All that have breath
Consume, and languish by a lingring death.
Nor can these Elements stand at a stay:
But by exchanging alter every day.
Th' eternal World four bodies comprehends,
240 Ingendring all. The heavy Earth descends
To Water, clog'd with weight: to light, aspire,
Deprest by none; pure Air, and purer Fire.
And though they have their several seats; yet all
Of these are made, to these again they fall.
245 Resolved Earth to Water rarifies;
To Air extenuated Waters rise;
The Air, when it it self again refines
To elemental Fire extracted, shines.
They in like order back again repair:
50 The grosser Fire condenseth into Air;
Air into Water: Water thickning, then
Grows solid, and converts to Earth again.
None holds his own: for Nature ever joys
In changes, and with new form the old supplies;
In all the World not any perish quite:
255 But onely are in various habits dight.
For, to begin to be, what we before
Were not, is to be born; to die, no more.

Then

Then ceasing to be such : although the frame
Be changeable, the substance is the same,
For nothing long continues in one mold :

- 260 You Ages, you to Silver grew from Gold ;
To Brass from Silver ; and to Irⁿ from Brass.
Even places of such change of fortunes pass :
Where once was solid Land, Seas have I seen ;
And solid Land, where once deep Seas have been.
Shells, far from Seas, like quarries in the ground ;
265 And anchors have on mountain tops been found.
Torrents have made a valley of a plain ;
High hills by deluges born to the Main
Deep standing lakes suckt dry by thirsty sand ;
And on late thirsty earth now lakes do stand.
Here Nature, in her changes manifold,
270 Sends forth new fountains ; there shuts up the old.
Streams, with impetuous earth-quakes, heretofore
Have broken forth ; or sunk, and run no more.
So Lycus, swallowed by the yawning Earth,
Takes in another world his second birth.
275 So Erasinus, now is hid, now yields
His rising waters to Argolian fields.
And Mysus, his first head and banks disclaim'd,
Elsewhere ascends, and is Caicus nam'd.
Cool Amasenus watering Sicily,
280 Now fills his banks, now leaves his channel dry.
Men formerly drunk of Anigrus streams :
Not to be drunk (if any thing by dreams
The Poets tell) since Centaurus therein washt
Their wounds, by great Alcides arrows gash'd.
285 So Hypanis deriv'd from Scythian hills,
Long sweet, with bitter streams his channel fills.
Antissa, Tyrus, and Aegyptian Phare,
The floods imbrac't : yet now no Islands are.
Th' old Planter knew Lucania Continent :
290 Which now the Sea hath from Epirus rent :
So Zancle once in Italy confin'd ;
Till interposing waves their bounds dis-join'd.
If Bura and Helice (Grecian Towns)
You seek ; behold, the Sea their glory drowns :
Whose buildings, and declined walls, below
295 Th' ambitious flood as yet the Sailers shew.
An Hill by Pythæan Trazen mounts, uncrown'd
With Sylvan shades, which once was level ground,

- For furious winds (a story to admire)
 Pent in blind caverns, struggling to expire;
 300 And vainly seeking to enjoy th' extent
 Of freer air, the prison wanting vent;
 Puffs up the hollow earth extended so,
 As when with swelling breath we bladders blow,
 305 The tumor of the place remained still,
 In time grown solid, like a lofty hill.
 To speak a little more of many things,
 Both heard and known; New habits sundry Springs
 Now give, now take. Horn'd Hammons at high Noon
 310 Is cold; hot at Sun-rise, and setting Sun.
 Wood, put in bubling Athamas is fir'd,
 The Moon then farthest from the Sun retir'd:
Ciconian streams congeal his guts to stone
 That thereof drinks: and what therein is thrown.
 315 Crathis, and Cybaris (from your mountains told)
 Colour the hair like Amber, or pure Gold.
 Some Fountains, of a more prodigious kind,
 Not onely change the body, but the mind.
 Who hath not heard of obscene Salmacis?
 320 Of th' Æthiopian Lake? for who of this,
 But onely tast, their wits no longer keep,
 Or forthwith fall into a deadly sleep.
 Who at Critorin Fountain thirst remove;
 Loath wine, and abstinent, meer water love.
 Whether it by antipathy expel
 325 Desire of wine; or (as the Natives tell)
Melampus having with his herbs and charms,
 Snatcht Fratus frantick daughters from the harms
 Of entred Furies, their wits physick cast
 Into this Spring; infusing such distast.
 With streams to these oppos'd, Lyncestas flows:
 330 They reel, as drunk, who drink too much of those.
 A Lake in fair Arcadia stands of old,
 Call'd Phenew; suspected, as two-fold:
 Fear, and forbear, to drink thereof by night:
 By night unwholesome, wholesom by day-light.
 335 So other lakes and streams have other power:
Orygia floated once, fixt at this hour:
 Once Argo fear'd the justling Cyanes;
 Which rooted now, resist both winds and Seas.
 340 Nor Ætna, burning with embowel'd fire,
 Shall ever, or did alwaies, flames expire.

- For whether Tellus be an Animal,
 Have lungs, and mouths that smoking fumes exhale;
 Her organs alter, when her motions close
 345 These yawning passages, and open those.
 Or whether winds, in caves impris'ned, rave;
 Jostling the stones, and minerals which have
 The seed of fire, inkindled with their rage;
 Their furious flames the falling winds assuage.
 350 Or if Bitumen do the fire provoke;
 Or Sulphur burning with more subtil-smoke:
 When Earth that food and oily nourishment
 Withdraws, the matter by long feeding spent;
 The hungry fire of sustenance bereft,
 355 Ill-brooking famine, leaves by being left.
 In Hyperborean Pallene live
 A People, if to fame we credit give,
 Who, diving three times thrice in Triton's lake,
 Of fowl the feathers and the figure take:
 360 The like they say the Scythian Witches do
 With Magick Oils: incredible, though true,
 If we may trust to trial: see you not
 Small creatures of corrupted flesh begot?
 Bury your slaughtred Steer (a thing in use)
 365 And his corrupted bowels will produce
 Flow'r-sucking Bees; who, like their parent slain,
 Love labour, fields, and toil in hope of gain.
 Hornets from buried horses take their birth.
 Break off the Crabs bent claws, and in the earth
 370 Bury the rest; a Scorpion without fail
 From thence will creep, and menace with his tail.
 The Caterpillars, who their cob-webs weave
 On tender leaves (as Hinds from proof receive)
 Convert to pois'nous Butterflies in time.
 375 Green Frogs, ingendred by the seed of slime,
 First without feet, then legs assume; now strong
 And apt to swim, their hinder parts more long
 Then are their former, fram'd to skip and jump.
 The Bears deformed birth is but a lump
 380 Of living flesh: when licked by the Old,
 It takes a form agreeing with the mold.
 Who sees the Young of honey-bearing Bees
 In their sexangular inclosure, sees
 Their bodies limb-less: these unformed things
 In time put forth their feet, and after, wings.

- 385 The star-imbellisht Fowl, which Juno loves
Jove's Armour-bearer, Cytherea's Doves,
 And birds of every kind ; did we not know
 Them hatcht of eggs, who would conjecture so ?
 390 Some think the pith of dead-men, Snakes becomes ;
 When their back-bones corrupt in hollow tombs.
 Yet these from others do derive their birth.
 One onely Fowl there is in all the Earth,
 Call'd by th' Affyrians Phoenix, who the wane
 Of age repairs, and sows her self again.
 Nor feeds on grain nor herbs, but on the gum
 Of Frankincense, and juicy Amomum.
 Now, when her life five ages hath fullfill'd ;
 395 A nest her horned beak and talons build
 Upon the crownet of a trembling Palm :
 This strew'd with Cassia, Spikenard, precious Ba'm,
 Bruis'd Cinnamon, and Myrrh ; thereon she bends
 400 Her body, and her age in Odours ends.
 This breeding Corps a little Phoenix bears :
 Which is it self to live as many years.
 Grown strong ; that load now able to transfer,
 405 Her cradle, and her parents sepulcher,
 Devoutly carries to Hyperion's town :
 And on his flamy Altar lays it down.
 If these be wonderfull, admire like strange
 410 Hyæna's, who their sex so often change :
 Those foodless creatures, fed by air alone ;
 Who every colour, which they touch, put on.
 The Lynx, first brought from conquered India
 By vine-bound Bacchus, his hot piss, they say,
 415 Congeals to stone. So Coral, which below
 The Water is a limber weed, doth grow
 Stone-hard, when toucht by air. But Day will end,
 And Phæbus panting Steeds to Seas descend,
 Before my scant Oration could pursue
 420 All sorts of shapes, that change their old for new.
 For this we see in all is general,
 Some Nations gather strength, and others fall.
Troy, rich and powerfull, which so proudly stood :
 That could for ten years spend such streams of bloud ;
 For buildings, onely her old ruines shows ;
 425 For riches, tombs ; which slaughterd Sires inclose:
Sparta, Mycenæ, were of Greece the flowers ;
 So Cecrop's City, and Amphion's towers :

Now

- Now glorious Sparta lies upon the ground ;
 Lofty Mycenæ hardly to be found.
 Of Oedipus his Thebes what now remains,
 430 Or of Pandion's Athens, but their names ?
 Now fame reports that Rome by Dardan's sons
 Begins to rise, where yellow Tyber runs
 From fountfull Apenmines ; and there the great
 Foundation of so huge a fabrick seat.
 This therefore shall by changing propagate,
 435 And give the World an Head. Of such a fate
 The Prophets have divin'd. And this of old,
 As I remember, Priams Helen told
 To sad Æneas, of all hope forlorn,
 In sinking Troy's eclipse. O Goddess-born,
 If our Apollo can preface at all ;
 440 Troy, thou in safety, shalt not wholly fall.
 Both fire and sword shall give thy virtue way :
 Flying, with thee, thou Ilium shalt convey ;
 Untill thou find a Land, as yet unknown,
 To Troy and thee, more friendly then thy own.
 A City built by Phrygians I fore-see,
 445 So great none ever was, is, or shall be.
 Others shall make it great : but He, whose birth
 Springs from Iulius, Sovereign of the Earth,
 He, having rul'd the World, shall then ascend
 Æthereal thrones, and heaven shall be his end.
 450 This, I remember, with prophetick tongue,
 Sage Helen to divine Æneas sung.
 We joy to see our kindreds City grow ;
 The Phrygian's happy in their over-throw.
 But lest our heedless Steeds too far should range
 From their proposed course ; All suffer change :
 The heavens themselves, what under them is found ;
 455 Earth, what thereon, or what is under ground.
 We, of the World apart, since we as well
 Have Souls as Bodies, which in beasts may dwell :
 To those, which may our parents Souls invest,
 460 Our brothers, dearest friends, or men at least :
 Let us both safety and respect afford :
 Nor heap their bowels on Thyestes board.
 How ill inur'd ! to shed the blood of man,
 How wickedly is he prepar'd, who can
 465 Asunder cut the throat of Calves, and hears
 The bellowing breeder with relentless ears,

- Or silly Kids, which like poor infants cry,
 Strick with his knife ! or his voracity
 Feed with the fowl he fed ! O to what ill
 Are they not prone, who are so bent to kill !
- 470 Let oxen till the ground and die with age :
 Let sheep defend thee from the Winters rage :
 Goats bring their udders to thy pail. Away
 With nets, gins, snares, and arts that do betray:
- 475 Deceive not birds with lime, nor Deer inclose
 With terrours, nor thy baits to fish expose.
 The hurtfull kill : yet onely kill : nor eat
 Defiling flesh, but feed on fitter meat.
- With other, and the like Philosophy
 480 Instructed, Numa, now return'd, was by Th'intreating Latins crown'd. Taught by his Bride
 The Nymph Ageria, by the Muses guide,
 Religion institutes, a People rude
 And prone to war, with Laws and Peace indu'd.
- 485 His reign and age resign'd to funeral,
 Plebeians, Roman Dames, Patricians, all
 For Numa mourn. His wife the City fled :
 Hid in Aricia's Vale, the ground her bed,
 The woods her throud, disturbs with groans and cries
Orestean, Diana's sacrifice.
- 490 How oft the Nymphs who haunt that Grove and Lake
 Reprov'd her tears, and words of comfort spake !
 How oft the Thesean Hero, Moderate
 Thy sorrow, said ! nor onely is thy fate
 To be deplor'd : on worse misfortunes look,
- 495 And you wi l yours with greater patience brook.
 Would mine were no example to appease
 So sad a grief : yet mine your grief may ease.
- Perhaps y'have heard of one Hippolytus,
 By Step-dame's fraud, and father's credulous
 Belief bequeath'd to death. Admire you may
 That I am he, if credit, what I say :
- 500 Whom Phædra formerly solicited,
 But vainly, to defile my fathers bed.
 Fearing detection, or in that refus'd,
 She turns the crime, and me of her accus'd.
 My father, banishing the innocent,
- 505 Along with me his winged curses sent.
 Toward Pythean Træzen me my chariot bore:
 And driving now by the Corinthian shoar,

- The smooth Seas swell ; a monstrous billow rose,
Which, rousing like a mountain, greater grows ;
510 Then, bellowing, at the top asunder rends :
When from the breach, breast-high, a Bull ascends :
Who at his dreadful mouth and nostrils spouts
Part of the Sea. Fear all my followers routs :
But my afflicted mind was all this while
515 Unterrifi'd ; intending my exile.
When the hot horses start, erect their ears :
With horror rapt, and chased by their fears,
O're ragged rocks the totter'd chariot drew :
In vain I strive their fury to subdue,
The bits all froth'd with foam, with all my strength
520 Pull the stretcht reins, I lying at full length :
Nor had their heady fright my strength o're-gone,
Had not the fervent wheel, which rolls upon
The bearing Axletree, rush'd on a stump ;
Which brake, and fell asunder with that jump :
Thrown from my chariot, in the reins fast bound,
525 My guts drag'd out alive, my sinews wound
About the stump, my limbs in pieces hal'd ;
Some stuck behind, some at the chariot trail'd ;
My bones then breaking crackt, not any whole,
While I exhal'd my faint and weary Soul.
No part of all my parts you could have found,
That might be known : for all was but one wound.
530 Now say, self-torred Nymph, or can, or dare
You your calamities with ours compare ?
I also saw those Realms, to Day unknown :
And bath'd my wounds in smoking Phlegeton.
Had not Apollo's Son implo'd the aid
Of his great Art ; I with the dead had staid.
But when by potent herbs, and Paeon's skill,
535 I was restor'd, against stern Pluto's will :
Lest I, if seen, might envy have procur'd :
Me, friendly Cynthia with a cloud immur'd :
And that, though seen, I might be hurt by none ;
She added age, and left my face unknown.
540 Whether in Delos, doubting, or in Creet ;
Rejecting Creet and Delos as unmeet,
She plac'd me here. Nor would I should retain
The memory of One by horses slain :
But said ; Hence-forward Virbius, be thy name
That wer't Hippolytus : though thou the same.

- 545 One of the lesser Gods, here, in this Grove.
 I Cynthia serve : preserved by her love.
 But others miseries could not abate
Ageria's sorrows, nor prevent her fate.
 Who, couched at the bases of an hill,
 Thaws into tears, that stream-like ran ; untill
 550 Apollo's sister, pitying her woes,
 Turn'd her t' a Spring ; whose current ever flows.
 The Nymphs and Amazonian this amaz'd,
 No less then when the Tyrrhen Plough-man gaz'd
 555 Upon the fatal clod, that mov'd alone :
 And for an humane shape, exchang'd its own.
 With infant lips, what was but earth of late,
 Reveal'd the mysteries of future fate :
 Whom Natives Tages call'd. He first of all
 Th' Hetrurians taught to tell what would befall.
 Or when astonisht Romulus of old
 560 Did, on mount Palatine, his Launce behold
 To flourish with green leaves : the fixed foot
 Stood not on Steel, but on a living root.
 Which, now no weapon, spreading arms display'd,
 And gave admirers unexpected shade.
 Or when as Cippus in the liquid grass
 565 Beheld his horns, which his belief surpass.
 Who lifting oft his fingers to his Brow,
 Felt what before he saw : nor longer now
 Condemns his sight. Return'd with victory,
 570 His eyes and horns erecting to the sky :
 You Gods, what e're these prodigies portend,
 If prosperous, he said, let them descend
 On Romans and on Rome : but if they be Unfortunate, O let them fall on me.
 An Altar then of living turf erects,
 575 The fire feeds with perfumes, pure wine injects,
 And with the panting intrails of a beast
 New slain, consults, to know the Gods behest.
 This, when the Tyrrhen Augur had beheld,
 And saw therein endeavours that excel'd,
 Although obscure, he from the sacrifice
 580 To Cippus horns converts his steady eyes :
 Hail King, to thee, and to those horns of thine,
 This place, and Latian towers, their rule resign.
 Delay not, enter thou the yielding gate.
 Hast, Cippus, hast : such is the Will of Fate.

- Thou shalt be crown'd a King upon that day :
 And safely an eternal Scepter sway.
 He, starting back, from Rome diverts his face :
 And said, you Gods, far hence this Omen chase.
 Better that I in banishment grow old,
 Then me, a King, the Capitol behold.
 Hiding his horns with leavy ornaments,
 590 The people and grave Senate he convents,
 Then mounts a Mound, late by the Souldier made,
 And praying first (as was the custom) said :
 Unless expel'd your City, here is one
 595 Will be your King ; though not by name, yet known
 By his strange horns. I heard the Augur say,
 If once in Rome, you all should him obey.
 He might, unstopt, have entred without fear :
 But I withstood ; though none to me more near.
 600 Be he, Quirites, into exile sent :
 Or, if he merit such a punishment,
 Bind him in heavy chains, and keep him sure :
 Or with the Tyrant's death your fears secure.
 The troubled people such a murmuring make ;
 605 As when far off the roaring surges rake
 On ratling shoars ; or when loud Eurus breaks
 Through tufted Pines : then one distinctly speaks
 In this confusion, asking, Which is he ?
 All seeking for the horns they could not see.
Cippus repli'd ; 'Tis I for whom you look.
 610 Then from his head (with-held) his garland took ;
 And shew'd the horns which on his fore-head grew.
 Not one but sigh'd, and down his count'nance threw :
 And those clear brows (a thing beyond belief)
 Adorn'd with merit, they behold with grief.
 Nor suffer him his honour to debase :
 615 But on his head a Laurel Garland place.
 And since he his own entrance did withstand :
 The Nobles, in due favour, To much Land
 To Cippus gave, as well two Oxen might
 Round with a Plough from morning until night.
 The monumental figure of his horns,
 620 So much admir'd, the golden Posts adorns.
 Now Muses, Goddesses of Verse, relate
 (You know, nor years your memory abate)
 How Æsculapim in our City found
 625 A Temple, by circumfluent Tyber bound.

A deadly plague the Latian air defil'd :
 Souls from their seats the pale disease exil'd.
 Wearied with funerals, when physick fail'd ;
 Nor any humane industry prevail'd ;
 630 They seek celestial aid. To Delphos sent,
 Built in the round Earths navel, and present
 Their prayers to Phæbus ; that he would descend
 To their relief, and give their woes an end.
 His Temple, Laurel, and his Quiver shake :
 635 Who thus, they trembling, from his Tripod spake :
 What here you seek, you nearer should have sought :
 And seek it nearer yet. Apollo ought
 Not now to cure you, but Apollo's Seed.
 640 Go with success ; and fetch my son with speed.
 The Senate having heard this Oracle,
 The City search, where Phæbus Son should dwell :
 The shoar of Epidaure the Legate seeks :
 645 Their anchouring, h' intreats th' assembled Greeks
 To send their God : who might th' Ausonian State
 To health restore ; and urg'd the charge of Fate.
 They vary in opinion, some assent
 To send this succour ; many, not content
 To lose their own in giving others aid,
 650 Strive to retain him, and the rest dissuade.
 While thus they doubt, the Day declin'd his Light :
 And Earth-born shadows cloth'd the world in Night :
 The Health-giving God, in sleep, appears to stand
 655 As in his Fane : a staff in his left hand ;
 And stroking with his right his reverend beard ;
 From his hope-rendring breast these words were heard :
 Fear not, I come ; my shape I will forsake :
 660 View, and mark well this staff-infolding Snake :
 Such will I seem, yet shew of greater size ;
 So great as may a Deity comprize.
 He with the Voice, with him and Voice away
 Sleep flew : fled Sleep pursu'd by chearfull Day.
 665 The stars now vanquish'd by the morning flame ;
 The doubtfull Nobles to the Temple came,
 Intreat him by celestial signs to shew
 Whether he were content to stay or go.
 This hardly said, the God in Serpents shroud,
 670 His high crest gold-like glistering, hift aloud.
 His Statue, Altar, Gates, the Marble floor,
 And golden roof, shook at th' approaching Pow'r.

He,

- He, in his Fane, breast-high his body rais'd :
 Rolling about his eyes that flame-like blaz'd.
 675 All tremble. The chaste Priest, his tresses ty'd
 With sacred fillet, knew the God, and cry'd,
 'Tis he ! 'tis he ! all you that present are
 Pray with your hearts and tongues : O heav'nly Fair,
 Propitious prove to these who thee implore !
 680 All that were there the present Power adore !
 Reiterating what the Priest had said :
 With heart and tongue the Romans also pray'd.
 He, by the motion of his lofty crest,
 And doubled hisses, signs to their request.
 685 Then sliding down the polish'd stairs, his look
 Reverts on his old altars ; now forlook :
 Salutes his shrine, and Temple deckt with towers ;
 Then creeping on the ground, strew'd with fresh flowers,
 Indenteth through the City ; stopping where 690 The Harbour is defended by a Peer.
 The following troops, and those whose zeals assist
 In honouring him, with gentle looks dismiss ;
 He climbs th' Ausonian ship : which felt the weight,
 And sunk with bearing of so great a freight.
 695 The joyfull Romans offering on the strand
 A Bull to Neptune : anchor weigh, and land
 Forfake with easie gales. Rais'd on his train,
 He, leaning, looks upon the blue-wav'd Main.
 700 Through Ionian Seas by friendly Zephyrus born,
 They fell with Italy on the sixth morn.
Lacinian Juno's Fane, Scyllæan shoars,
Japygia past, they shun with nimble oars
Amphrysian rocks ; Ceraunian, whether cleft ;
 705 Romechium, Caulon, and Narycia left ;
Sicilian Straits o'recome, and wrackfull Seas ;
 Sail by the mansion of Hippodates :
 By Temesa, in metals fruitfull ; by
Leucosia, and the Pasian Rosary.
 Near Capree, and Minerva's Fore-land row,
 710 Surrentine hills, where wines so generous grow ;
Heraclea, Stabia, Naples born to ease,
Cumæan Sibyls Temple : next to these,
 Hot Baths ; Linternum, sweet with Mastick flow'rs,
Vulturnus, who his sandy channel scours,
 715 Sinuessi, swarming with white Snakes, ill-air'd,
Miniurnæ, and where piety prepar'd

His Nurse a tomb : forthwith the mansion make
 Of fell Antiphrates ; and the Lake
 Besieged Trachon : thence directly bore
 To Circe's Isle, and Antium's solid shore.
 The Sea now swelling high, this harbour holds
 The Sail-wing'd Ship. The God his wreaths unfolds ;
 And, with huge doublings, o're the yellow sand
 Slides to his father's Temple on that strand ;
 Rough waves allwag'd the Epidaurian Orest
 His fathers Altar leaves ; to Seaward prest,
 Slicing the sandy shore with rustling scales :
 And, by her stern the ship ascending, falls :
 Till he to Castum, to Lavina's name-
 Retaining Seat, and mouth of Tyber came.
 All hither throng ; sons, daughters, mothers, fires ;
 The Nuns who keep the Phrygian Vesta's fires,
 With loud salutes of joy. On either side
 The River, as the Vessel stems the tide,
 Altars, with incense fed, the air perfume :
 And knives from sacrifices heat assume.
 Rome entering, the Worlds Head, He winds about
 The lofty Mast ; and from on high thrusts out
 His glittering head, to chuse a fitting place.
 The arms of Tyber do an Isle embrace,
 Which equal stream from either bank divides ;
 Thither Apollo's sacred Serpent slides,
 Who now celestial shape assuming, ends
 Their miseries, and health to all extends.
 He here, a foreign Power, makes his abode.
 In his own City Cesar is a God.
 Glorious in Peace and War : whom wars surcrease
 With triumphs crown'd, his government in peace.
 Nor race of wonder with such quickness run ;
 More make a blazing Star, then his great Son :
 For of all Cesars acts, none may compare
 With his adopting so divine an Heir.
 For, was it more t' o'recome the Brittish Isle ;
 Fill the seven mouths of paper-bearing Nile
 With conquering sails ? Numidian rebelling
Cinyphian Juba, Pontus proudly swelling
 In Mithridates to subject to Rome ?
 Meriting many, to triumph for some ?
 Then him beget, in whose dominion
 The Gods so abundantly have favour'd man ?
 To the other they a Deity decreed ?

- That this might not from mortal birth proceed:
 Which when fair Venus saw; and saw withal,
 Conspiring weapons threat the High-Priests fall;
 Her colour fled: to every God she met,
 765 She said, behold, what snares for me are set!
 To murder me in him how Treason strives;
 Who onely of Iulus race survives!
 Still must I undeserv'd afflictions bear!
 How lately wounded by Tydides spear!
 770 Now ill defended Troy again is lost:
 My son Aeneas, with long terrours tost
 On wrathfull Seas, I saw descend to Hell!
 Then war with Turnus; or, the truth to tell,
 With Juno rather. How remember I
 775 Old harms sustain'd in my posterity!
 I, through this fear, all former fears forget.
 Lo, they their wicked swords against me whet:
 O help! restrain their furies! nor, for shame,
 With th' High-Priests blood extinguish Vesta's flame.
 Thus through all heav'n, her sorrows vainly speak;
 780 And melt the Gods: who since they could not break
 The ancient Sisters adamantine doom,
 By sure Ostants demonstrate Woes to come.
 Arms, clashing in the air with clouds o're-cast:
 Terrible Trumpets, and the Cornet's blast,
 785 Proclaim the murder: Sol's afflicted look,
 And pale eclipse, the World with terrour strook.
 Oft, Meteors through the air their flames extend:
 Oft, drops of blood from purple clouds descend.
 Black rust obscures dim Lucifer's aspect:
 790 And Cynthia's chariot bloody stains infect.
 The Stygian Owl each where disturbs their sleep
 With ominous screeches: Ivory Statues weep.
 The sacred Groves resound with yelling cries,
 And fearfull menaces. No sacrifice
 The Gods appease: the headless inwards show
 795 Signs of succeeding Tumults, Death, and Wo.
 Dogs nightly, in the Court, about the Gods,
 And holy Temples howl. From sad abodes
 The Dead arise, and wander here and there:
 Rome trembling, both with Earthquakes, and with fear
 800 These warnings of the Gods no changes wrought
 In Fate, or Treason. Murd'rous swords were brought Into the Temple: for no place might fort
 With such a slaughter, but the sacred Court.

The Fifteenth Book

Then Venus smote her breast ; who sought to throw
 And snatch him thence in that Aethereal cloud,
 805 Which Paris from Atrides rage convey'd :
 And freed Aeneas from Tydid's blade.

Daughter, said Jove, canst thou resist the doom
 Of conquering Fates ? Into their mansion come :
 There shalt thou see Decrees that needs must pass,
 810 Writ in huge folds of solid steel and brass,
 Which safe, eternal, ever fixed there,
 My thunder, lightnings rage, nor ruine fear.
 In lasting Adamant there maist thou read,
 What shall to thy great Progeny succeed.
 I read, remember well, and will relate
 815 What may inform thee in succeeding fate.
 He, whom thou striv'st to save, his Race hath run
 Of Time and Glory : whom thou, and his Son
 Shall make in heav'n a God ; on Earth, with pray'r
 The Temples dignifi'd. His names great Heir
 820 Alone his load shall bear ; and strongly shall
 By our conduct revenge his Fathers fall.
 By his good fortune Mutina shall ow
 To him her peace : Pharsalian fields shall flow
 With blood ; blood twice Philippi shall imbrue :
 825 On red Sicilian Seas he shall subdue
 A mighty name. Th' Egyptian Spouse shall fall,
 Ill trusting to her Roman General :
 To make our stately Capitol obey
 Her proud Canopus, shall in vain assay.
 What need I of those barbarous people tell,
 And Nations, which by either Ocean dwell ?
 830 He shall the habitable Earth command ;
 And stretch his Empire over Sea and Land.
 Peace giv'n to Earth ; he shall convert his care
 To civil Rule, just Laws ; and by his fair
 Example virtue guide. Then looking to 835 The future times, and Nephews to ensue :
 A Son shall bless him from an holy womb,
 To him he shall resign his name, and room.
 Nor shall, till full of age, ascend th' abodes
 Of heav'nly Dwellers, and his kindred Gods.
 840 Meanwhile from this slain corps his Soul convey
 Unto the stars, and give it a clear Ray :
 That Julius may with friendly influence
 Shine on our Capitol and Court from thence.
 This said : invisible fair Venus stood

METAMORPHOSIS, &c.

- And the Senate ; from his corps, with bloud
 All'd, her Cæsar's new-fled spirit bare
 To heaven, nor suffer'd to resolve to air.
 And, as in her soft bosom born, the might
 Perceive it take a Power, and gather light,
 When once let loose, it forthwith upward flew ;
 And after it long blazing tresses drew.
 850 The radiant Star his Sons great acts beheld ;
 Out-shining his : and joy'd to be excell'd.
 Though he would have his Fathers deeds prefer'd
 Before his own : yet free-tongu'd Fame deter'd
 By no commandment, yields th' avoided Bayes
 To his clear brows ; and but in this gain-saies :
 855 So Atreus yields to Agamemnon's fame ;
Ægeus so to Theſeus : Feleus name
 Stoops to Achilles. That I may confer
 Th' illustrious to their equals, Jupiter
 So Saturn tops. Jove rules the arched sky ;
 And triple world ; the Earths vast Monarchy
 860 T' Augustus bowes : both Fathers, and both sway.
 You Gods, Æneas guides, who made your way
 Through fire and sword ; you Gods of men become ;
Quirinus, Father of triumphant Rome ;
 Thou Mars, invincible Quirinus Sire,
 Chast Vesta, with thy ever-burning fire,
 Among Great Cæsar's Household-Gods inshrin'd ;
 865 Domestick Phæbus, with his Vesta join'd ;
 Thou Jove whom in Tarpeian towers we adore ;
 And You, all You, whom Poets may explore :
 Slow be that day, and after I am dead,
 Wherein Augustus, of the world the Head,
 Leaving the Earth, shall unto heav'n repair ;
 870 And favour those that seek to him by prayer.

- And now the work is ended, which Jove's rage,
 Nor fire, nor sword shall raze, nor eating Age.
 Come when it will my deaths uncertain hour ;
 Which of this body onely hath a power :
 875 Yet shall my better part transcend the skie ;
 And my immortal name shall never die.
 For wheresoe're the Roman Eagles spread
 Their conquering wings, I shall of all be read :
 And, if we Poets true presages give,
 I, in my Fame eternally shall live.
